TURDAY MORNING, JUNE 13, 1885

general lack of support of ductions from logical standints have proved nothing but vague and From recent indications it appears likely not aggregations of ideas. The ned in a few words-a lack of confince. That this is painfully true may be erred from the fact that to-day business we not recognized as formerly and that ollaterals with good security are in deones with various excuses, and banks will touch nothing but giltred paper. In fine, all our business are being conducted on a nt of confidence" basis. Just so soon confidence returns business will revive, ttle market fight is evidently contest between the Gran Trunk and the Canadian Pacific, But the itizens want all the good that both rall ays can do in the way of supplying them with cheap meat. Now let us do a little figuring. Say that a hundred thousand Jingoism. That would be a little over thirty cents to be paid by each one of twenty thousand families, on the average. If two hundred thousand iollars were required, that makes an situation is, and that can best be done by average of say twenty-five cents average for each family, at the very outside. Now, how much would probably be saved to each family on the year's meat bill, by cheap supplies of the best meat, the subject was, and what were the powers nstead of having dear supplies of the of the company and what additional ones poorest? We cannot understand how the readers of the Mail allow that journal to insult their intelligence as it does. Look at its spected at Paris, Berlin and St. Peters- description of a "radical" given in yesterburg. To-day she is insulted and day's paper. It is an insult to some of the defied in all quarters, we may say with Italy as the one important exception. For this extraordinary result somebody must an editorial prig and much more truthfully have been to blame. No mere temporary by putting in a short sketch of the career mistake—no mere accident of a day— of the vulgar snob who writes the Mail could have caused such a tremendous falling off, The plea that the Gladstone policy must have been right, because it was in the interests of peace, is not a very strong one. The peace policy, so called, brought the country to the very brink of war; and even now he would be a bold man who dare promise that war is delayed for more than a year or two. Never before, that history tells of, was there so much done in five years to encourage Britain's enemies and to chill and discourage her friends. General Kom. aroff loaded with honors and rewards, General Lumsden practically recalled in disgrace—such is the spectacle presented to the worlds; and a most humiliating on it is for England. It was surely time for this sort of thing to be stopped. The change of government will do more than an army of fifty thousand men to make and was favorably impressed with the England respected abroad. Bismarck will improvements—electric lights, good music, change front, and that speedily. A etc. We were just about taking refresh-

But, then, those terrible tories are But, then, those terrible tories are soming into power, and how can that be for the good of the country? The answer must be that the tories do not come into power until after two sweeping measures of parliamentary reform have been carried.

There is no such thing for the tories as There is no such thing for the tories as going back on the new legislation; that must stand now, whether they like it or not. The new constituencies may give the tories but a short lease of official life; ere a twelve monthal time Lord Salisbury and his friends may be voted out. If so it his friends may be voted out. If so it will be after a re-consideration of the whole question of home and foreign policy ogether. If the two millions of new electors will have Chamberlain for prime minister they must even have it so, but it may be possible in the meantime to get the Evaluation of the sale of beer, etc. So they should be. Let our license commissioners study the wants and needs of the public instead of listening to a few elergymen. Let us enjoy ourselves in a law-abiding manner. To do that we must have our Evaluation of the public instead of listening to a few elergymen. country's foreign relations out of the fear. ful muddle into which they have been

After the big lift which domestic reform has just had, it would not suffer very badly were it allowed to rest a few years. As we have just said, the tories cannot possibly go back on the reforms now prac-ically adopted, and therefore the cause of form and progress can stand a few year of tory rule without coming to any serious harm. But to save England from some, thing like wreck and ruin a change of foreign policy is urgently necessary. The abroad will be im proved, while at home it will be no weaker,
