“THANKS.”

WE wish to thank the Library Committee of the G. T. R., for their kindness in donating papers and books weekly for the reading room at York

TWO engineers of the G. T. R. recently, were in conversation when the call boy came and called one of them to get ready to take a train out. His words on being called were “I am first out and I didn’t know it.”

In the unrevealed duration of our life here, we know not the time when the inexorable messenger, Death, shall summon us to appear before the Great Judge.

O how we should pause and consider!—and prepare for “that call!” To all of us the summons will come.

Whilst there was more or less anticipation on the part of the Engineer of being called on duty, in the case of soul life, men are callously content to go on duty as if to them life was unending, and to be unaccounted for.

My brother, while in time prepare for that call which will ring for Eternity.—Behold now is the accepted time, now is the day of Salvation! To morrow will be to late. DECIDE TO DAY.

COTTAGE PRAYER MEETINGS.—Railway people are asked to remember that a standing and cordial invitation is extended to them to attend these social gatherings for prayer and conference every Thursday Evening for one hour, commencing at 7.30. Come.

He shall choose our inheritance for us.
