JOHNSTON'S FLUID BEEF

*First Buffalo Detective (to companion).—*I say, Jack, that was a splendid piece of work done by Barnes to-day, wasn't it?

Second Buffalo Detective.—You don't mean
to say that he caught the murderer?

First Buffalo Detective.—Better than that.

Second Buffalo Detective.—You don't say so?

First Buffalo Detective.—Yes, he got the murderer's brother. Great case, I tell you.

—Onlooker (T. B.).

THE Magwump never refuses an office.
He reminds one of an inebriate who said to his wife as they were about to retire for the night:

"Wake me up, darling, to-night, and give me a toddy."

"But how will I know when you want one?"

"You can't make a mistake. I am always thirsty when I am woke up."

First Dude (to mate).—Mercy, Harry,
deah boy, don't associate with that dweadful Snooks. Our set call him "Magazine."

Second Dude.—Deah me, what an odd name. Dewelop, deah boy!

First Dude.—Oh, because we've cut him
you see.—Onlooker (T. B.).

He.—That was a shocking tragedy, wasn't it?

She.—What was it?

He.—A man without the slightest provocation killed a woman he had never seen before in all his life.

She.—He had never been introduced to her?

He.—No. He knew nothing about her.

She.—Then he was certainly a very rude man.

"Why don't you finish eating your hash, Tommy?" asked a Brooklyn mother of her boy, who suddenly laid down his knife and fork as he caught sight of the servant dishing out ice-cream.

"Impossible, ma," replied the lad.

"Why?"

"'Cause it's crowded out to make room for more interesting matter," answered Tommy,
who had been working in a newspaper office
during his vacation.—New York Journal.

THE concert at the Pavilion the other evening was an unqualified success, and not more than five hundred witty persons present remarked that the great violinist was a
"Musin little cuss."
