LECTURE FIRST

RELIGION AND AUTHORITY

	PAGE
Importance and difficulty of the Philosophy of Religion. Method followed is to examine typical ways of conceiving the world with a view to a higher synthesis, .	1
Religion at once a life, a creed and a ritual ; but, as any one of these constituents may be accentuated, there are three main types of religious philosophy. The lectures first consider that sub-division of the second type which bases religion on Authority,	3
Christian dogma inevitable, because Christianity had to satisfy men nourished on Greek philosophy, and was required as the unifying bond of the Church ; just as, conversely, the Church was needed to guarantee dogma. Hence the early view of Authority, which must now be modified to seem even plausible. Cardinal Newman the first to propound the modern view,	6
Newman's theory of development right in holding that there is an intellectual element in faith, and in denying that the religious consciousness is created by dogma ; wrong in not recognizing that reflection enriches faith ; as also in viewing doctrine as a "symbol" of faith, and faith as a "symbol" of truth,	9
The problem of the comprehension of the Infinite must be faced. The solution does away with Newman's plea for the Authority of the Church,	18
