Better for Students

There is a strong possibility that the wards of the Western Hospital will shortly be thrown open to the medical students of Toronto University for clinical instruction. Of late there have been complaints from time to time, it seems, about the clinical facilities at one of the hospitals, where instruction is now given to students. Consequently the university authorities have been planning to make the Toronto Medical School one of the best for hospital instruction on the American continent, and the new Western Hospital, how nearly completed, will be of great assistance.

Part of the afternoon and the whole of the evening session were taken up with the consideration of the insurance bill, containing 243 clauses. With the exception of the legal members of the house, there was little interest taken in the proceedings, and most of the members spent the time reading the newspapers or with private conversations, some of the tete-a-tetes centring around the action of the senate in throwing out the federal government's proposed subsidy for the T. & N.
