Special Despatch

CHICAGO, ILL., Mar. 31, 1906.

At the National Office Appliance Show, held in Coliseum, MISS ROSE FRITZ once more demonstrated beyond a doubt that she is the most marvellous typewriter operator in the world. Miss Fritz accomplished the wonderful feat of writing 4007 words, while blindfolded, in one hour. This was written from direct dictation of unfamiliar matter. Her nearest opponent in the contest was 1343 words behind these figures. In the Ladies' Championship Miss Fritz wrote 4101 words in the hour, one-half from dictation, one-half from copy. The crowning event was the World's Championship and Office Appliance Trophy. In this event Miss Fritz won with ease, leaving all competitors hopelessly behind from the start, her record being 2289 words in the half hour, copied from MSS.

Bill Jones, he was a curious chap. He always liked to chaff. When hard luck caught him in a trap he'd wait for time to let him out. He wouldn't get delirious. An' all at late, an' storm an' shout—He didn't take things serious.

When trouble came to some good friend He simply let his aid. An' didn't lecture him an' send His kindness on a parade. The luck he had as years went by Was strikin' an' mysterious; We wouldn't take things serious, 'cause why? He didn't take things serious.

Grand Master Banqueted. St. Catharines, March 30.—(Special.)—J. B. Burritt of Pembroke, Masonic Grand Master of Canada, was banqueted by Maple Leaf Lodge Thursday night. The occasion was the official birthday of the D.D.G.M., R. W. Bro. R. McDonald of Niagara Falls, who had just returned from the Niagara district where he had been visiting. A large number of the brethren from Niagara Falls were present.

Quaint Family Pets. The tiny lap dog, so long the first favorite among drawing-room pets, is threatened with many rivals, says an English paper. One lady mistress of a large country estate has trained a lamb as her pet, and the small creature lives indoors and gambols about a dainty boudoir. "White mice and rats, so long associated with the schoolboy's privileged sessions, are now emigrating from the stables to the drawing-room. Many pretty tricks have these sharp little animals mastered, and one tiny mouse, which rejoices in the name of "Mithra," has been taught at the word "Cats" to run up its mistress's arm and shoulder to the top of her well-dressed collar. A lady who spends most of the year in Scotland has a pet gander, who gives a great disturbance if he does not always attend her when she goes out shopping. He solemnly precedes her into the village, and waits outside the shop till she knows she patronizes it. A small grey Persian kitten was to be seen solemnly wending its way along High-street, Kensington, on Saturday. It was adorned in a red velvet coat bordered with ermine and ornamented with tiny silver bells, and followed in the steps of its owner as carefully as a dog.

Drawing the Line. "When I get to congress I'm going in for 'reform'."

"What kind of reform?" "General."

"Reform in election methods?" "Certainly not—I want to be re-elected."

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Pictures and poetry," said the artist's young woman, "do much to smoothe the pathway of life." "Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox, "there's a lot of other elements that wouldn't be read if it weren't for them."—Washington Star.

PHILLIPS IS UNDER ARREST

it as rental," said Myers. He went on to say that he rendered a statement to the company every month. The personal agreement started on the first of the year, by which the company was to get two-thirds of the profits of the printing company.

Myers said he paid at the rate of $100 a month for rental of the premises. The York Loan Company advanced him certain sums every month, which he paid back by deducting the amount of work done from the state ment he rendered.

"I will ask that no further bail be given to Phillips or else that it be increased," said Crown Attorney Curry. "I think the evidence shows that there has been straight stealing here, and I want to get to the bottom of it."

"The bail has hitherto brought the man here," said Magistrate Denison. "Yes, but the evidence is piling up," said the crown attorney.

The magistrate then asked for two sureties of $400 each, and a third of $200, to be furnished by the company.

"Well then, Phillips can stay here," said the magistrate. "We will look after him." Things were getting worse all the time, the bookkeeper said.

V. E. Jones, secretary-treasurer, again put in the witness box, could not give any information concerning the cheques for $500, $300, and $100 drawn on the York Loan Company's account in the Bank of Montreal.

Not for York Loan. Eva Jones, the bookkeeper, was asked if any of the profits of the printing business went into the York Loan. Not so far as she was aware, she replied.

"Did any of these big cheques, $500 and so on, come to the York Loan?" Not to witness's knowledge. She would have known if they had.

Stewart Lynn, secretary of the Toronto Life, who received a subpoena during the day to produce the Toronto Life books, said he knew where they were. He remembered the bonds of the Canadian Northern, £2000 worth, bought at 102, guaranteed by the Manitoba Government, but he could not say what money bought the bonds.

"Did you see the money paid by the Toronto Life for the printing company?"

"Yes," witness, however, could not remember whether it was cash or a cheque.

Magistrate, crown-attorney, prisoners counsel and G. R. Burt formed a little quartet at the resumption of the case in the afternoon. Burt was subjected to further questions concerning items he was charged as being paid by the York County Loan, for which no deposits appeared in his bank book.

Numbers of books were fetched from Mr. Curry's room adjoining.

More Cheerful. Phillips, who had resumed his former cheerfulness, took his usual position at the solicitors' table. Now he appeared in no wise depressed by the developments of the morning; he smiled as he chatted with an acquaintance during one of those intervals in which the quartet conned over the figures.

Looking back in his chair he looked as if he were taking it easy after lunch; he glanced curiously at Miss Hall when she was searching amongst a pile of ledgers.

Mr. Curry and his assistants were constantly searching amongst these books. Mr. Burt's apparent lack of knowledge, certain facts necessitated these walking, stooping and lying exercises in which his policemen joined—attendant upon the researches amongst the books. Much time was spent by Mr. Curry in reading sums paid to Burt in respect of the $58,000 advance.

Affairs were somewhat tedious until the agreement between himself and Mr. Phillips.

"That is," said the crown attorney, "the agreement upon which you and Phillips were doing business."

"We had no agreement."

No Agreement. "Then you want us to understand that Mr. Phillips in violation of his trust as manager and president of the York County Loan disbursed money to you without security and without any hope of advantage to the company?"

"Moners were advanced to me from month to month."

"What advantage was the company getting?"

"I do not know."

"A cheque for $6000 was encashed about by Mr. Curry. He read a memo, by Mr. Burt, to the effect that $6000 should be paid to Burt and credited to interest and rent; a further order on the treasurer, signed by Mr. Phillips, tended to show the amount had been paid."

Burt did not remember the payment. He recollected no conversations with Phillips or Lynn.

A register showed that in August, 1905, 265 pianos were furnished to the company at $150 per piano. Burt, however, declared he did not furnish any to the company.

"Well, that is for the court to decide," said the crown attorney. "We have evidence that you did. These pianos would entitle you to a credit of $39,750."

OBJECTION TO SUNDAY LAW BASED ON MISCONCEPTION

Lord's Day Alliance Replies to Criticism of Mr. Fitzpatrick's Bill.

The Lord's Day Alliance has prepared a reply to the criticisms of the Sabbath observance bill. It says in part:

The criticisms so far offered for the most part are of three classes; first, those based on misconception of the purpose and import of the measure; second, those resting on religious conviction, e.g. the Jews and other Sabbatharians on the one hand and infidels and their sympathizers on the other; and third, those of corporate financial interests which would be affected by its provisions.

The Jews and Adventists and infidels consisting of one per cent. of the people of Canada, can hardly hope to override the will of the other ninety-nine per cent. It is unreasonable to propose that they should. There is only one day in the week that in Canada can be protected as a rest day, and that is Sunday. And if each citizen is to enjoy the liberty of rest one day in seven it is essential that we have a law of rest for all citizens.

The corporate interests, transportation and industrial, have heretofore been a law unto themselves, and have very frequently been requiring their employees to work on Sunday when there was no necessity and no excuse for so doing, excepting only the pros and cons of larger dividends. The government's bill provides for the continuance of passenger traffic and of live stock and perishable goods. It may be found necessary to add "wheat" to this list to avoid congestion from the west. But who will defend the unhindered hauling on "Sundays" of such "perishable goods" as steel rails and coal and building stone and ties and using Sunday for the clearing out of yards along the lines?

Maintaining of fires in blast furnaces, pumping out and ventilation of mines and other work that modern industry finds "necessary" are allowed in terms of the government's bill.

But most of the opposition thus far expressed is based on misconception as to how the bill's provisions will affect amusement, recreation, getting about, etc. Even the Montreal city council makes childish and stupid blunders along this line. Sunday cars are not affected by the bill, nor trains, nor steamers that "convey travelers."

Therefore people can, after the bill becomes law, get about when and where and as much as they please, just as they do now. The only restriction the bill puts on travel is "excursions for pleasure," that is, special trips gathering crowds with needless and unbecoming hilarity and very often drunkenness and rowdiness, such as usually accompany "excursions." The Catholic archbishops as much as other church leaders, in common with all thoughtful citizens, are opposed to the Sunday excursion as much as to the Sunday theatre.

If parties such as that to St. Helen's Island or Isle Orleans or Toronto Island are not protected under "conveying travelers," as allowed in the bill, they are free to object to their being expressly exempted by some amendment.

Business Amusements. So as to amusements, it is only the business amusements that are prohibited. For instance, after the law is passed, in Quebec, ball, lacrosse or any other game will be just as lawful as they are now, so long as no admission fee is charged or prize or award contended for. But the business amusements are not allowed, and surely no respectable Canadian will contend that it should.

Again the bill puts no embargo on going to pleasure parks as such—only

Heintzman & Co. PIANO

Made by the old firm of Heintzman & Co., Limited.

a supreme and distinctive place in the highest musical circles

- The name Heintzman was first introduced to the Canadian public—now fifty years ago—by the firm to-day operating as Heintzman & Co., Limited.
- They started out fifty years ago to make an ideal instrument. Never for a day have they lowered the Standard.
- The "Genuine" and "Original" Heintzman & Co. piano is always to be depended upon.
- It is the instrument used exclusively by the Duke and Duchess of York in their tour of Canada from ocean to ocean.
- The world's great artists, including Friedheim, Burmeister, Hyllested, Jonas, Nordica, Albani, Calve, Plunkett Greene, Watkin Mills, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and a host of others, have made this piano their voluntary and particular choice when visiting Canada.
- The leaders of music in Canada—Vogt, Fisher, Torrington, Forsyth, Barron and many others—have eulogized and praised this great instrument.
- This piano is laurel-crowned on its merits—the choice of those whose opinions in the world of music command the highest influence and the greatest weight.

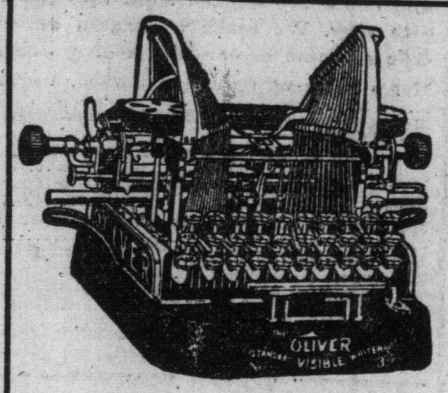

Too much is at stake in buying a piano to take anything that offers itself.

One needs to be particular—very particular—to know that he is dealing with a house whose honor is never brought into question, whose methods appeal to good taste, whose word is never doubted whose every promise is kept.

A CERTAIN COMPETITOR advertised in the local papers of March 24th, implying that we had no American Oliver Typewriters for sale, and therefore could not fill orders. THEY FORGOT to mention that we had shipment. But we did receive another shipment and can fill all the legitimate orders that are presented to us. Furthermore, the machines can be seen at our showrooms, 72 Victoria Street, or we have to guess again. Yes, our Oliver machines are of the very latest model. IT IS TRUE that our source of supply has been affected, and we now have to pay more per machine, nevertheless our price of $85 is a fair one and high enough, and we contend that the public should not have to pay more, when this machine can be bought from us at that figure.
