> the building of the railway is justifiable from a commercial point of view the next point to consider is Toronto's interest in the project. Why should Toronto busy itself about the Hudson Bay Railway while Montreal is taking no concern about it? Is it not a probability, nay almost a certainty, that if Toronto builds the road Montreal will use it and profit more than Toronto by it? A Montreal paper, commenting on Toronto's enthusiasm in the project says that "all the ocean freight which could be secured at James' Bay, or within a considerable distance north or 35c—Men's and Boys' White Unlaundried Shirts, reinforced front, linen bosom, linen cuffs or wristbands, well stayed, large bodies, continuous staying, all sizes, regular project, but Toronto should not commit the folly of building weak Men Makes this Offer. south, would inevitably go forward to it for Montreal.
