Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."

MRS. LIZZIE PAINTER 8031/2 3d Ave. Evansville, Ind. For twenty years we have been constantly receiving just such letters as these. There is scarcely a locality in the United States where there is not some one who can testify to the merits of this remarkably successful Heart Remedy.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all drugglets. If the first bottle falls to benefit, your drugglet will return your money.

The play has the firmly established reputation of being vastly superior to any of the dramatic offerings of the stage in many years. The improbabilities in the play, it is contended, rather-more make it real and human and logical. Because of its absorbing construction the play concentrates the auditor's faculties and communicates the intensity of the narra tive right from the beginning. Bernstein's work is not accepted as a prob-lem play. It does not call for exertion for the holidays with Mrs. C. A. Pipon, or penetration of thought. Its plot is ple and limpid and clearly told. Matinees are underlined for Wednes-"St. Elmo" At The Grand. Emotion as gentle as the flitting of shadow, and passion as tempestuous as the blue blood which flowed in the veins of the cavalier during the ante bellum days in Dixie, mark every scene and climax in "St. Elmo," the attraction at the Grand Opera House, mmencing with a special matinee on Monday, Boxing Day. The play is a dramatization by Willard Holcomb of Augusta J. Evans Wilson's celebrate l novel. The title role of "St. Elmo" is being played by Vaughan Glaser, who is ably assisted by Miss Fay Courtenay, as the heroine Edna Earle. The production and staging are under the direction of the well-known star, and is one of the most elaborate dramatic offerings of the year.

The scene of the story is laid near Lookout Mountain. The characteristics of the southern people are admirably brought out. Edna Earl, blacksmith's daughter, in taken to live in St. Elmo Murray's home as a companion for his mother. She has previously witnessed a duel between St. Eimo and Murray Hammond in which the latter was slain, and later a great deal of St. Elmo's wickedness is brought to her mind. In spite of her just aversion to him, he finally wins her love, is reconciled to the father of the man he has killed, and rededicates his life to the service of good. * The play is beautifully staged and
