less waiting for the last one to come.

"Oh, we are waiting for you, Monteith," the premier said as he grasped the hand of the new farmer-general and led him up the staircase. In three minutes Mr. Whitney came down and announced to the waiting newspaperment that his cabinet was complete, and that he would be back from government house in ten minutes after submitting the names to the lieutenant-governor. The waiting ones were rewarded within the time specified, and were taken upstairs, where the new cabinet were having an informal session.
