ARE REUNITED AFTER 30 YEARS

Sisters Were Separated in Childhood Days

CHANCE WORD STARTS INQUIRY

On Mother's Death One Had Been Adopted and Other Stayed With Father—Happy Result of Weston Woman's Search

Weston, Mass., May 6.—A strange case has just come to light in this town, that of two sisters reunited after thirty years. During that period the two lived in ignorance of each other's existence. They were reunited through a casual remark made by an aunt, and a diligent search of the birth records at Salem and the probate court records at Dedham.

The story as told by Mrs. B. L. Ogilvie of this town, is as follows:—About thirty years ago, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arrington, she lived in Salem. When she was about three years old her mother died, leaving her father with herself and a sister, seventeen months old. After the death of her mother, Mrs. Ogilvie says, her father found it hard work to care for the two children, and he finally consented to the adoption of the younger sister, Constance, by Benjamin Sanborn, of Welleley. The older sister, who was named Delcie, and is now Mrs. Ogilvie, continued to live with her father.

The agreement between her father and Mr. Sanborn was that the former was never to mention the fact that Constance was his child. This was so that she would always believe that Sanborn was her own father. She was known in Welleley as Alice Sanborn. She was given a good education, and special attention was devoted to her musical education. For fourteen years after her mother died, Delcie lived with her father in Salem. They then moved to Boston. Soon after going to Boston Delcie started out to earn her own living. She secured work in a family living in Welleley, and lived there until she married Mr. Ogilvie.

Meanwhile Constance became the wife of Robert T. Woodruff, a Lynn attorney. About two weeks ago an aunt of the two girls, came to visit Mrs. Ogilvie at her home in this town. During their talks one afternoon, the aunt mentioned the fact that Mrs. Ogilvie had a sister, but she did not know her present whereabouts. Mrs. Ogilvie became interested at once, but the aunt was unable to give her any further information.

The father died about a year ago, and Mrs. Ogilvie started out on her own ac-

WILL DEPRESSION FOLLOW WAR?

Cambridge Professor Thinks It Will Not

BRITAIN'S FINE POSITION

Currency Contraction Which May Have Its Effect on Continent Will Not Appreciably be Felt in British Empire

London, May 6.—The whole business world is vitally concerned in the question of how the war will affect commercial and industrial conditions. Will there be depression or prosperity? What will be the result of the destruction of such a large portion of the efficient and productive classes? Will money be scarce and dear or plentiful and cheap?

These and other economic aspects of the great struggle were discussed with an Associated Press correspondent by Professor Herbert Somerton Foxwell, director of economics of St. John's College, Cambridge, and professor of political economy in the University of London. Prof. Foxwell, in addition to his activities in these institutions, has collected the most important private library on social and political economy in Europe. When asked whether in his opinion the war would be followed by a business depression, Prof. Foxwell said:—

"Generally, my view is that there is no sufficient reason to hold that a great depression must necessarily be followed by severe depression; and less than usual in this particular case, where an immense work of reparation will be required on the conclusion of the war. A contrary view rests largely, I think, on our experience after 1871, and to a smaller extent after 1873. But the prolonged depression in both cases seems to me to have been mainly due to currency causes."

"The peace of 1871 was followed by what Hoffman and Roscher called a 'Geldtheuerung', and absolute scarcity of currency; and a similar condition resulted in 1873 from the demonetization of silver. War or no war, prolonged depression must necessarily be the result of severe depression; and less than usual in this particular case, where an immense work of reparation will be required on the conclusion of the war. A contrary view rests largely, I think, on our experience after 1871, and to a smaller extent after 1873. But the prolonged depression in both cases seems to me to have been mainly due to currency causes."
