TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Soft, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble. In some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bluish-magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bluish-magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the most or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bluish-magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bluish-magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

Canadians From 20 To 44 To Be Drafted In U. S.

New Treaty Names These as Ages for Drafting of Britishers There —Irish and Australians are Ex- empt

Washington, June 18.—Irish and Australians in this country are exempted, and only Americans between the ages of 21 and 31 are subject to draft in Great Britain and Canada, under the British-American military convention now awaiting ratification by the United States senate.

Details of the treaty, which became known today, disclosed that it required a formal exchange of notes between the United States and Great Britain to settle the questions relating to application of American draft age limits to Americans in Great Britain and Canada.

The text of Article one, the principal article in the treaty, reads:

"All male citizens of the United States in Great Britain and all male British subjects in the United States, shall, unless before the time limited by this convention they enlist or enroll in the forces of their own country or return to the United States or Great Britain, respectively, for the purpose of military service, be subject to military service and be entitled to exemption or discharge from military service and regulations from time to time in force of the country in which they are. Provided that in respect to British subjects in the United States the ages for military service shall be for the time being twenty to forty-four years, both inclusive; provided, however, that no citizen of the United States in Great Britain, and no British subject in the United States, who before proceeding to Great Britain or the United States, respectively, where the law does not impose compulsory military service, shall, by virtue of this convention, be liable to military service under the laws and regulations of Great Britain or the United States, respectively; provided, further, that in the event of compulsory military service being applied to any part of his majesty's dominions in which military service at present is not compulsory, British subjects who, before proceeding to Great Britain or the United States, respectively, in such part of his majesty's dominions shall, thereupon, be included within the terms of this convention."

The military authorities have agreed to the arrangement, and yesterday, when the case of J. B. Robinson came up for review before Mr. Justice Macdennan, His Lordship transferred the draftee to Class 2, and granted him exemption until such time as the married men's class is called to the colors.

Captain Robinson and his cousin were engaged in the management of the Montreal office of J. M. Robinson & Sons, stock brokers. John Boone Robinson reported to the registrar in accordance with the Military Service Act, and he was granted exemption by a local tribunal for business and other reasons. Subsequently Mr. Justice Macdennan, sitting in review yesterday, on the question of granting an extension.

Captain Robinson came forward and volunteered to take his cousin's place. If the military authorities would accept him, he was quite ready to enlist at once as a private.

The court granted the transfer and commended Captain Robinson on his action.

ATTACK 70 TIMES A WEEK

Allies Sink More U-Boats Than Are Being Built, Geddes Reports.

London, June 18.—(British Admiralty per Wireless Press)—In an interview with the London correspondent of the Petit Parisien, Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, had the following to say with regard to submarines:

"The allied navies continue to sink more German submarines than the enemy can build. It is certainly a fact that since January we have sunk more submarines than they have built. We attack their submarines seventy times a week on the average."

We base our returns of submarines destroyed only on those we are sure of having seen wrecked or secured the crews, but most of the other submarines hit are in urgent need of repairs, and it is evident that the results of many of our attacks are unknown. If you have moles in your garden you may put down a thousand traps without catching any of them, and it is the same with submarines."

MAKING THEM HUMAN AGAIN

How English Surgeons Provide New Faces for Disfigured Soldiers

Chicago, June 18.—Sir Arbuthnot Lane, a noted British surgeon, was one of the principal speakers at the convention of the American Medical Association, and to an audience that packed the Auditorium to the doors, told how English surgeons are providing new faces for the maimed and making new noses out of ribs.

"Their wives may love them, and their children too, and their country honors them, but there's something about a man with his face gone that hurts the eyes of people. They don't want him in their houses, nor where they can see him. Better had the poor man died," they say. And so the man without a nose or jaw, or a chin, comes to our hospital at Sidcup, Kent. We moved inland to be away from people, so our patients would be isolated while they were being fixed up."

Dr. Lane's fingers fidgeted with the hem of his officer's coat. Clearing his throat, he resumed, in his swift manner of talking:

"That's the way it is. They've got to be alone. They're just nobodies—men without faces—and even if they work with their hands and legs, and think with their brains, there's no place for them in the world. Not among men, and worse yet, not among women. They're things of horror. Well, we repair them. The work is new. Before the war started, surgery had not concerned itself with this branch. But when the wounded started coming in three years ago, with their faces eaten away by flame, with their features blown off by shot, we got busy, as you say over here."

"We take their ribs out now and change them into noses, using the ligaments for nose structures. We slice off sheets of flesh from other parts of their bodies and use them for cheeks. Our dental surgeons make mouths for them, and make lips for the mouths. Ears and noses, and eye sockets, both before and after, we give back to the poor fellows, and send them out looking human again. About 10 per cent of all the wounded are facial disfigurements."

"You see, the race is only human, and people who look as some of these creatures look haven't much of a chance. But there are many women in England who see beyond the absence of face, and they look at these wounded. The hospital in Kent is filled with such women workers, and so are the streets of London. We've learned that a smile from a woman is worth as much to one of these men without jaws, or noses, or mouths, as the most soothing anesthetic the surgeon can give them."

SHOWS HOW U-BOATS FAILED

London, June 18.—(British Admiralty, per Wireless Press)—An example of the routine work carried out by the British Admiralty during the three and a half years of the war is shown in the fact that, despite Germany's submarines, seventeen million passengers have been conveyed to the various theatres of war.

The number of animals conveyed exceeds 2,000,000. The number of vehicles carried was more than 400,000, and the quantity of stores transported exceeded 50,000,000 tons. In addition, considerable assistance in transport has been given by British ships to other allied powers.

The British Admiralty has carried nearly a million tons of stores for the Italian government, and also about three and a half million tons of coal for Italy in requisitioned steamers.

Captain of Raider Served in U.S. Navy

Submarine Operating Along the Coast

Has Crew of 76—Is 210 Feet in Length

New York, June 18.—The commander of the U-101, one of the German submarines which have been operating off the American Atlantic coast, has been identified as Captain Neustadt, and he served five years as a gunner's mate in the United States navy, according to affidavits of officers and sailors of the schooner Hattie B. Dunn, Edna and Hauppauge, victims of the submarine. The documents were brought here today by naval reserve officers arriving from Cuba.

The submarine is manned by a crew of 76, is 210 feet long, 29 feet wide, has a shell of 3/4-inch steel, two "50"-inch guns mounted fore and aft, is equipped with two periscopes, one over the conning tower and the other aft; has four stationary rapid-fire guns on each side, six deck, in racks, carries 106 rapid-fire rifles, and had about 18 torpedoes, according to the affidavits.

Captain Neustadt told his captives, they said, that his vessel left Kiel April 14, and up to June 2 had sunk fifteen ships, six of which were American.

WILL NOT AT PRESENT RECOGNIZE THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT.

London, June 18.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—In the House of Commons yesterday Hon. A. J. Balfour, foreign secretary, said that the government did not propose for the present to recognize the Finnish government, which seemed undoubtedly to be under German influence. He also said that so far as he was aware, none of the Allies recognized the independence of Ukraine, which had received no assistance from the Allies since it became completely subservient to Germany.

J. R. Clines announced that the food ministry was assuming the responsibility for the wholesale collection, utilization and distribution of milk.
