Herald Would Oppose Hon. W. S. Fielding Running for Yarmouth Seat

(Ottawa Journal.)

The proposal that the Conservative party shall facilitate the presence of Hon. W. S. Fielding in parliament by not opposing his return for the constituency of Yarmouth, where Mr. Law, the present Liberal member has offered to retire in his favor, is one that has not met with universal approval. The Halifax Herald, the chief Conservative newspaper of Nova Scotia, insists vigorously that the Conservative party shall put up a candidate in Yarmouth, if that constituency is opened, and turn the power of its organization towards encompassing Mr. Fielding's defeat.

While the Halifax Herald appears to be free that any divergence from its view on this matter is a species of traitorous disloyalty, there are many broad minded Conservatives, party men just as loyal as the Herald, who believe that the presence of Mr. Fielding in parliament will be advantageous, both to Canada as a country, and to the Conservatives as a party.

Parliament is the business council of this nation. The more men of breadth of experience, of ability it possesses, the better it is for Canada.

TOWN-PLANNING

(Toronto News)

They are nothing if not progressive in Australasia. The Commonwealth has made arrangements to build a brand new capital city, where no houses now stand. It will be laid out on the advice of the most expert town-planning authorities, will have artificial lakes at its heart, and altogether be a thing of beauty and a joy forever. In New Zealand a few weeks ago a member of the house of representatives stood on the floor of the chamber (that one day the political capital of the dominion would undoubtedly move from Wellington. He said that under the Town Planning bill now before parliament - the government could easily secure a block of suitable front, say 10,000 acres up the Waikato valley, in the Macawatu or at the back of Blue Lake - he did not care which - and establish there a capital which would be a joy to all time. "Imagine what could be done in this direction," he argued, "rather than what has been done already in Europe. We could lay out a city as a regular town, with a park in the middle, and a garden house by the water's edge, and it would not cost the country one red cent. That is one remarkable feature about it." It would be shown by estimations, he said, that within a year of starting the scheme interest would be paid on the $1,000,000 that would have to be sunk in it, and that in five years it would pay half the expense of running the whole country.

PRESSURE WAS BROUGHT

New Premier Was Beset With Difficulties in Making His Choice
—Ontario Fared Better—A
Montreal Paper's Comment

(Montreal Herald)

It is not putting it too strongly to say that there was extreme disappointment among Montreal Conservatives today over the personnel of the new Borden cabinet. St. James and St. Francois Xavier streets buzzed with uncomplimentary remarks and gossip regarding the incidents surrounding the creation of the cabinet. It was openly stated by Conservatives who are in the swim that the difficulties which confronted Mr. Borden were so serious that as late as Friday night he was disposed to advise the governor-general that it was not in his power to form a cabinet.

There was undoubtedly an extraordinary amount of pressure brought to bear upon Mr. Borden from all sides, and probably one of the most difficult situations he had to face was in this province. So fiercely did the contentions rage in Montreal, that as late as 4 o'clock last night it was understood that Mr. Borden was coming to this city to discuss the situation with his followers. Later in the evening he appears to have changed his mind, thrown overboard some of the most insistent of his advisers, wrote out his slate, and practically said to the party "take it or leave it."

Sir Hugh Displeased

The quid nuncs say that Sir Hugh Graham was one of the men whose recommendations had to go to the wall, and that he came back to Montreal a very much disgruntled man. As a result, an article severely criticizing the new cabinet is said to have been prepared for yesterday's Star but through the intervention of Mr. Borden's friends was not published. However this may be Sir Hugh's protegee, Mr. Marchal, was not given a portfolio, and Mr. Pelletier, whom he opposed, has been taken into the cabinet. However, Sir Hugh is credited with having secured the promise of the reversal of the High Commissioner's so his work will not go entirely without recognition.

Montreal, English-speaking Conservatives are not at all satisfied with the absence from the cabinet of a representative of the Montreal English-speaking business interests. They evidently feel that Mr. Ames should have got a portfolio as a representative of those interests. They also point out that Ontario with a population of about two million and a half, secured six cabinet positions and practically a seventh inasmuch as Mr. Perley is an Ontario man. From the Ottawa river to the Atlantic there are probably over three millions of people yet they have but six representatives.

Strong Men Omitted

As regards the personnel of the cabinet it is pointed out by the Conservatives who are taking umbrage at its composition that many of the strongest men in the party have been omitted from the list. They say: "Where are McBride, Whitney, Rolin, Tupper, Casgrain, Sproule, and Ames, McLean, Bennett, and Broder?" These are all names well known throughout the dominion, yet their places are taken by men who are probably well meaning and publicspirited, have not developed any particular aptitude for public life in the least. Of those thus characterized may be mentioned Messrs. Reid, Burrell, Crothers, Nantel, and Roche. As to the discomfiture of the local Conservatives we have the fact that Mr. Borden's first lieutenant, W. T. White, is not known to politics, has never had any parliamentary experience and has absolutely to win his spurs as a public man.

In addition to these objections, all of which were heard on the streets, and in the offices of Montreal today, is another one which naturally is strongly felt by several groups of prominent Conservatives, it is the objection voiced by our Ottawa correspondent today that the cabinet will be in the main friendly to the Canadian Northern Railway and to the Bank of Commerce interests. In other words, as one prominent Conservative put it, Toronto appears to have captured what Montreal has long held.

From Ottawa

The Herald's Ottawa correspondent wrote as follows:—
It is being broadly charged, not by Liberals, but by disaffected Conservatives that Mr. Borden has surrendered to the Mackenzie and Mann influence and that

THE REASON WHY

You don't take sauce? Perhaps not, but if you look for the reason why, you will find it in the fact that the word "sauce" suggests to your mind a thin, dark, hot-tasting fluid, which, if taken at dinner, runs all over the plate, saturates the vegetables, and eventually leaves a disagreeable burning sensation in the mouth. No wonder that "sauce" suggests to you a circumstance, and the taste of a properly changed sauce.

A new sauce has been introduced to the Midland Valley Co. of England, which is known as "P. Sauce" and is quite different from the old-fashioned sauces referred to.

H. P. Sauce has proved an immediate success, and is now used regularly by those who previously served cold sauces. It is prepared by blending together the choicest Oriental fruits and spices with pure white vinegar. The manufacturers' secret process produces a thick, frisky sauce, which, if poured on the side of the plate, can be eaten with the meat like mustard.

If P. Sauce is also used very extensively in the kitchen, for housekeepers have discovered that old and familiar dishes of which everyone has grown tired become tempting and delicious when enriched and enlivened with H. P. Sauce. All family grocers are selling H. P. Sauce. Of course its success has brought many imitations, but if you ask for H. P. and see that these letters appear on each label, you will preclude the possibility of disappointment.

MANUFACTURERS LOOK FAVORABLY

Alex. Saunders, of Goderich, asked what could be done towards enforcing proper systems of accident prevention. It had been his experience that employees were prone to remove various safety appliances as soon as they were installed.

P. C. Schwedman, an expert from the United States, said that a simple solution lay in the direction of a law now pending in Germany, whereunder the removal of any safety appliance by either employee or employer, would be made a penitentiary offence. Without wishing to recommend any special system, he emphatically endorsed the proposition for a committee of Canadian manufacturers to decide on standard safety devices for the prevention of accidents and to formulate a scheme of compensation for unpreventable accidents.

Canada should be able to outdistance Germany, he hoped in this just as much as in other directions, evolving a system better than the British workmen's compensation act, which, it must unfortunately be admitted, was the worst law of the sort in the world.

The funds should come from three sources—the employee as being responsible for a proportion of accidents; the employer, for the same reason; and the state, because it would benefit from the withdrawal of the many law suits which now clogged the courts of justice.

Some drastic alterations in the methods of the association were advocated in the report of G. M. Murray, general secretary, the most radical being a suggestion that the work now undertaken by the different committees, should be delegated to the department heads, leaving the committees more free for duties of a purely advisory nature.
