GAY MUSICIAN MAKES A FIRST NIGHT CAPTURE

Marked Success of Musical Comedy in Opera House—A Round of Pleasure and Jingling Music and Fun Galore

Greeted by an audience that taxed the capacity of the house, the Play Musicians Musical Opera Company, opened their four night and Wednesday matinee engagement in the Opera House last night. The play abounds in catchy music, pretty dances and funny situations, and was exceptionally well received. Particular mention should be made of the stage settings used, the drawing rooms set in the second act being very elaborate. As for the cast, they were excellent and played the roles entrusted to them most capably. The chorus is composed of pretty girls, who have voices as well as looks, and are good dancers as well. The costumes worn in some of the numbers were handsome.

In the title role of Eugene Dubois, the gay musician, Harold J. Rehill was well received. He has a pleasing voice and a good stage appearance. His song Love-light, which runs all through the play, was very appealing, a haunting melody which was well rendered, as were his duets with Miss Gertrude Taylor and also with Miss Keddell.

Miss Gertrude Taylor as Maud Granville, and Miss Lottie Kendall as Marie Dubois also had plenty of opportunity to display their ability. Miss Taylor was encored several times in her captivating little song A Cup of Tea, while Miss Kendall was heard to good advantage in A Fussy Sparrow and other solos. Both young ladies are charming actresses and made a distinct hit with the audience. Harry Short as Samuel Lyons, theatrical manager, was very funny and repeated the success he attained here when he was with the Madame Sherry Company, playing the role of Theophrastus. His song Hum Tum Tiddle had the audience in roars of laughter and he was forced to respond to six encores. On the last encore he and the chorus ran through the aisles of the house singing the song. He was also especially good in the second act, when with Miss Taylor, Miss Keddell and Hayden Clifford, he played several burlesque scenes, including a baseball game, a game of golf and a tragedy. These burlesques were very cleverly executed and were loudly applauded.

Miss Isabelle Miller as Matilda Yager, Dubois' mother-in-law was very funny in character work, and as a comedian. Her Dutch dialect was very good. She had several good scenes with Roy Torrey as Captain Feh, and they were well played. Their song "I Want to be Your Blue Eyed Baby Boy" in the last act, was particularly good and they received several hearty encores. The captain also received an ovation when he sang "That's How I Got Treated," in the first act.

Miss Fritzie Kingle in the role of Billie Brennan, the songstress, was very captivating, and sang and danced her way into the hearts of the audience. She is an exceedingly graceful and charming girl, and her clear musical voice which was heard to good effect throughout the performance. Hayden Clifford as Hon. Clarence Beresford and W. F. Ryan as a Corker also assisted in the fun making. They had minor roles but played them well.

Taken all through, the performance is an excellent one and is deserving of a large patronage. It will be repeated to night and on Wednesday and Thursday nights, with a Wednesday matinee.

LUTHERIAN MINISTER ARRESTED IN MAINE AS MURDER SUSPECT

Charged With Death of August Jacobson in June of Last Year—Plot to Make it Look Like Suicide

New Sweden, Me., June 11.—Rev. Charles Emelius, a Lutheran minister has been arrested on the charge of murder for the death of August Jacobson, on June 12, 1911. Jacobson was a suicide, according to the decision reached at the time of his death, but it always has been contended by representatives of the attorney general's office that he was murdered.

Emelius, who is about thirty years of age, came to New Sweden eighteen months ago and assumed the pastorate of the Lutheran church. After the death of Jacobson he moved to the neighboring town of Stockholm. Last fall he was married to Jacobson's daughter.

He was taken to Presque Isle for a hearing. Witnesses were taken along, including Edgar Jacobson, son of the dead man, who was arrested early in April on the charge of murder at the instigation of the attorney general's department, but was discharged after the grand jury had investigated the evidence and reported a "no bill" against him.

August Jacobson was found dead in a clump of bushes on his own farm with four bullet holes in his body. A note written with a lead pencil was found fastened to a railing rod beside the body. The inscription was in Swedish, and purported to state that Jacobson had committed suicide.

It was contended by Attorney General Pattangall's investigating officers that suicide was impossible, as the man had been killed at his own gate, and that his body had been dragged some distance away to a clump of trees.

The four wounds were caused by bullets from a .44 calibre rifle which was found beside the dead body. The position of the wounds satisfied Attorney General Pattangall that the suicide theory was impossible, as any two of them would have caused death.

As further evidence of murder a pool of blood was found at the gate of the Jacobson farm, it was said, but there was none where the body was found. It was said that the secret of the identity of the alleged murder was disclosed by an examination of the note by a Boston handwriting expert.

New Sweden was settled by colonists from Sweden in 1870, under the direction of William W. Thomas, Jr., of Portland, commissioner of immigration, and later minister to Sweden, and the alleged murder was the first blot on the good name of the community. Behind the murder is said to lie a tale of love and jealousy. Jacobson was a farmer and one of the most prominent men in the town.

The Royal Society, which is the oldest scientific association in Great Britain, will celebrate the 25th anniversary of its incorporation this summer. It was definitely constituted in the year 1860, but the charter of its incorporation granted by Charles II. was dated July 18, 1662. Sir Christopher Wren was one of the original members, and was president of the society in 1680.

When choosing a carpet select one with a light ground and a small pattern, as it will not then show signs of wear so quickly, and can be more easily turned about.

In St. Petersburg late hours are the rule. The principal streets are generally crowded at one o'clock in the morning. Many of the theatres do not open before midnight.

The longest canal in the world is in Russia. It extends from St. Petersburg to the frontier of China, and its total length is close on 4,500 miles.

The state of education in Russia may be judged from the fact that there is only one village school for every 12,000 persons.

THE WHY AND WHEREFORE

In all large factories a rigid system of inspection prevails so that any shoe going through the works that becomes soiled or defaced is not shipped out but cast aside and sold as factory damaged. We purchased the accumulation of Canada's best maker consisting of some 500 pairs of the season's high grade Low Shoes in Tan, Dull Calf, and Patents. In many cases the defect is so slight as to be invisible.
