A DANGEROUS COURSE

The Montreal Star, commenting upon Hon. Mr. Meighen's London speech Thursday evening, says that the Premier is quite right in putting protection into the forefront of the battle. Nobody questions Mr. Meighen's right to do so, nor does anyone maintain that Canada is not in need of a tariff for revenue. It is in its attempt to create the impression that those who are opposed to the policy of Mr. Meighen are dangerous radicals the Montreal Star is doing this country a grave injury. Here is a sample of its comment:

"It would seem to us that the champion of protection might well broaden the issue and call the attention of the nation quite frankly to the ultimate consequences which would infallibly follow a destruction of the protective tariff. British connection is at stake. A purely fiscal campaign may easily resolve itself into a puzzling discussion of percentages. There is no enthusiasm in such a dry debate, and fatal public indifference may follow. But point an arresting finger to the real issues that lie behind this juggling with schedules—to the old flag in danger and Canadian freedom from American domination menaced—and the public will flock to the forum, and an aroused and resolute Canadian people will drive the mesmerizing Cramer and the quibbling King out from behind their carefully contrived devices to deceive the electorate and compel them to tell plainly where they stand."

If it is the intention of the Montreal Star to misrepresent the opponents of the present discredited administration and to drag in the old flag once more in the hope of belounging the real issues of the campaign and thereby directing attention away from the government's bad record, it will find that that sort of thing. Time was when charges of disloyalty hurled against political opponents were accepted more or less as a matter of course and made the most of by unscrupulous politicians. But the war has changed all that. Canada's sons who offered their lives that freedom and righteousness might not perish, did so irrespective of party affiliations. They raised no question of politics in the trenches, but as comrades-in-arms, fought the enemy who bled on the battlefields overseas. As Conservatives, or as Liberals, but as comrades-in-arms, fought to fight to the last ditch in order to make the world—and Canada—safe for democracy and to crush the very spirit that the Montreal Star would attempt to arouse by editorials designed to create the impression that all who differ from the political views of its own party are radicals of a dangerous type. It is significant indeed that of all the papers so far quoted by the Canadian Press, the Star is the only one which has begun to waver the issue and stir up ill-feeling among the parties over the question of loyalty and patriotism. The Star knows perfectly well that there is not the slightest danger of American domination over Canada, that Canadian freedom is not at stake, that British connection is not at stake, that the continued existence of the Dominion is not at stake. As the Times pointed out yesterday, there is no issue of protection versus free trade. Hon. Mackenzie King and the leaders of the Farmers' party have made that clear again and again. Does the Montreal Star or any other supporter of the Meighen government dare to say that tariff revision would not be as safe in the hands of the Liberals or the Farmers as it would be in the hands of a government which has been clinging to office for two years in the face of most determined protests from the Atlantic to the Pacific? Would not the people's interests be safeguarded by them in a higher degree than by a party whose tariff ideas are based on the demands of the big interests? The tariff of Canada is not an instrument to be used for the benefit of a favored few; it must be reconstructed on lines designed to bring the greatest possible benefit to the Canadian people as a whole. And the Canadian people will tell Mr. Meighen at the polls what they think of his record, of his tariff side-stepping, of his bungling tactics and of the government's failure ever since the close of the war to grapple with the problems of the day and give the nation bold, determined leadership, following its refusal to give the electorate an opportunity to choose a new House of Commons representative of public opinion. Mr. Meighen is going to the country before another session of Parliament, not because he wants to, but because he is forced to, and no man knows better than he that his party is doomed to a crushing defeat.

The opponents of the Meighen government should lose no time in organizing for the coming campaign. Although it is plain that the government cannot hope to gain a victory at the polls, its opponents should leave no stone unturned to make its defeat sweeping and decisive. Nothing can be taken for granted in an election campaign, and organization is not perfected in a day. Now is the time to begin and in every constituency in New Brunswick the workers should get together and make their plans for a vigorous campaign.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

Harvard University, which now has one of the finest medical colleges in the world, is to have, in addition, the largest and best equipped public health school in the United States. A magnificent gift from the Rockefeller Foundation has made this possible. The Rockefeller Foundation first presented to Harvard $1,785,000 for the public health school, and this is to be followed by other gifts totalling $500,000 to be used as required. Opportunity is to be provided at the school for extensive research work. Existing courses will be unified and teaching facilities in public health administration, vital statistics, bacteriology, medical zoology, physiological hygiene and communicable diseases will be extended. There will be close co-operation between the school and the large number of laboratories, hospitals and public health agencies in Boston, and the students will have an unusual opportunity for first hand investigation and practical field experience. As a result of an arrangement whereby the school will be in close touch with manufacturing and commercial corporations, there will be special opportunity for work in industrial hygiene.

The movement to improve and safeguard the public health during the last few years has had far-reaching results, but there are many possibilities which remain untouched. The new health laws in the province of New Brunswick have attracted the attention and received the praise of health experts all over America, and the last three years have seen in this province a marked improvement in public health administration and a sharp raising of the standards of provincial health supervision. New Brunswick, therefore, will be deeply interested in the Harvard health school for the better training of public health officials and the better understanding of the need and scope of public health work.

"I wish with all my heart that there will be less of armies and navies," said President Harding of the United States this week in a public address. He said there probably would never be a time when nations would not find it necessary to maintain armed forces, but he saw coming a day when the burdens of armament could be diminished. If the United States brings these sentiments to the Washington disarmament conference soon to be held, much will have been gained. A war-torn world will heartily agree.

Now let's all resolve to make the Exhibition a marked success in point of attendance. Keep the turnstiles clicking.

NOVA SCOTIA FIRES.

Serious forest fires are raging in various parts of Nova Scotia. A pall of smoke hangs over a good part of the railway line from Windsor to Digby, and trenches are being dug around the towns of Berwick and Waterville. Two lumber mills were on fire at South Mountain, near Morrisville, King county, last evening, and the village was threatened. At Canard fifty acres of orchard land were destroyed, and at Canning fruit trees valued at $1,800. Two houses were burned, and the Baptist church with other houses, damaged at Canso. A farm house a half mile from New Glasgow was burned last night by a brush fire.

The closing exercises of the Carleton playgrounds were held yesterday. The boys, under the direction of their instructor, Mr. Crowley, assisted by Captain A. J. Muleahy, held exhibition sports, and the girls took part in a very pretty fancy dance. Prizes were won for general proficiency by Edith Trearthen, Gladys Koeniger and Edna Fraser. Miss Lundy and Miss Tait were trainers.

When Ignorance is Bliss.
After much reflection Marian had composed her telegram and handed it through the window to the clerk. She tripped out, and the transaction seemed completed; but in a moment she returned to the window.

"Let me have that telegram I wrote just now," she said, "I forgot something very important."
The clerk handed out the message and Marian added, "I want to underline perfectly 'loving' in acknowledging the receipt of a present. Will it cost anything extra?"
"No, Miss," said the clerk, with a smile, and as Marian drew two heavy lines beneath the words, she sighed with content.

"Thanks so much for letting me do that; it will please Augustus so much!"
The New System.
"My room is burglar-proof."
"How can you be positive of that?"
"It couldn't possibly accommodate a second person!"—Judge.

GETTING WISE ABOUT FLOUR.
There is nothing which we Canadians eat so much of as bread; just plain loaf bread. And this being so, why shouldn't we eat the best?

There is no reason except that frequently our housekeepers are not particular to buy the best quality of bread flour.

But we think they are getting wiser on this point. The standard in loaf bread quality in St. John today is higher than it used to be, and the change is due to the introduction of "Regal" flour. Not all the people, however, are as yet using "Regal." But they will be soon. When they are, then all the bread in St. John will be the best obtainable anywhere. It cannot be otherwise if everybody is using "Regal."
