POOR DOCUMENT

Cough-Cures

Are abundant; but the one best known for its extraordinary anodyne and expectorant qualities is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For nearly half a century this preparation has been in greater demand than any other remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, and pulmonary complaints in general.

"I suffered for more than eight months from a severe cough accompanied with hemorrhage of the lungs and the expectoration of matter. The physicians gave me up, but my druggist prevailed on me to try

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

I did so, and soon began to improve; my lungs healed, the cough ceased, and I became stouter and healthier than I have ever been before. I would suggest that the name of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral be changed to Elixir of Life, for it certainly saved my life."—F. J. Oldeis, Sal'r, Buenos Ayres.

"A few years ago I took a very bad cold, which settled on my lungs. I had night sweats, a racking cough, and great soreness. My doctor's medicine did me no good. I tried many remedies, but received no benefit; everybody despaired of my recovery. I was advised to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, as a last resort, did so. From the first dose I obtained relief, and, after using two bottles of it, was completely restored to health."—F. Adams, New Gretna, N. J.

RAILWAYS TO OUR WHARVES.

The lack of railways to our wharves has always been a serious difficulty in respect to the shipping trade of St. John. It is useless for us to advertise the advantages of our port or to claim that the freight of Canada ought to be landed here if we do not provide proper facilities for carrying on the work. It is quite clear that the proper facilities are lacking so long as we have no railways to our principal wharves. At the present time the only wharves which have the advantages of a railway connection, are the government wharf, the Long wharf, and the Sand Point wharf on the Carleton side of the harbor. The government wharf has far too small a warehouse upon it, and as was shown the other day, it may be occupied at any time by a private sailing vessel to the exclusion of steamships, so that the accommodation there is not sufficient to answer the requirements of a large traffic. Sand Point wharf is another small wharf with only 180 feet front, and there is no warehouse upon it, except a temporary one which has been recently erected by the C. P. R. company. The Long wharf is not a deep water wharf in the proper sense of the term, it having only 16 feet of water in front of it at low water, and the railway upon it has been placed there as the result of private enterprise. What is really needed is railway connection with the other principal wharves in the city. The government have already provided for the carrying of the railway track from their own wharf up Charlotte street extension, past Reeds' point and along to the city wharf near the custom house. The delay in doing this work seems to be due to the neglect of the common council to buy the right of way, or pay the land damage, which may be necessary. It would be a thousand pities if any delay on our part now should result in the offer of the Dominion government, which is a liberal one, being withdrawn, and we think that the common council cannot move too quickly in this matter. There ought to be railway connection also between the North wharf and the Intercolonial by York Point slip. The owners of the North wharf properties would probably contribute to this result, and should, at all events, provide the right of way if the city or the government undertook the rest. We think that if we had railway connection with the North wharf on one side, and to the custom house on the other, the immediate needs of the city in that respect would be satisfied, and that we would be in a position to do a great deal of business which cannot now be undertaken for lack of facilities.

THE SCOTT ACT IN CHARLOTTETOWN.

The defeat of the Canada Temperance Act in Charlottetown yesterday by a majority of 14 is an important event as indicating the drift of public sentiment with regard to this absurd law. Prince Edward Island, from its isolated position, offered peculiar facilities for the enforcement of the Canada Temperance Act, if it could be enforced, and for more than ten years the whole of that island has been under the operations of the law prohibiting the sale of liquor. Every one who is at all familiar with Prince Edward Island knows that the Canada Temperance Act has not prevented the sale of liquor. In Charlottetown just as much liquor has been consumed under the act as before it came into operation and perhaps more. In that city the Act was originally adopted in 1879 by a majority of 584. There was another election in 1884 to decide whether the operation of the Act should be continued in Charlottetown and it was sustained by a majority of 40. The act was again assailed in 1887 and that year it was sustained by a majority of only 20. Now the verdict is reversed and the act is defeated by a majority of 14. The majority is small but it is a verdict in favor of freedom and against the claim of a bare majority of a community that they have a right to control the actions of the merely nominal minority. Fredericton now enjoys the unenviable distinction of being the only city in Canada in which the Canada Temperance Act is in operation, but when the matter is tested again in Fredericton it will probably be repealed. As for the rural counties of the maritime provinces it is quite immaterial whether the Act is in operation in them or not, except as to the moral consequences of having laws on the statute book which are not and cannot be enforced.

THE PEOPLES' PALACE IN EAST LONDON.

Thrones have been shaken by a word spoken in jest or a woman's smile. In the 17th century Cervantes-Saavedera, by writing the romance of Don Quixotte struck a blow at a species of romanticism in Spain which is felt to this day. A few years later, Le Sage caused a revolution in the thought of his countrymen by the story of Gil Blas. No one can say but that Smollett and Fielding through their novels exerted a considerable influence upon the men of their time and the generation that followed them. Shakespeare, a dramatist, a writer of romances, furnishes motives for action and is quoted consciously or unconsciously, by almost every speaker of the English language in the world. By the publication of Oliver Twist Charles Dickens did more for the parish poor of England than had ever been done by all its members of parliament, preachers, charity commissioners and benevolent societies, and in another of his novels he was equally successful in opening the eyes of society to the barbarousness of imprisonment for debt. Through the medium of fiction Wilkie Collins was hardly less powerful in the cause of prison reform than was Howard who preceded him by a hundred years, and by her stories, John Ward, Preacher, and Sydney, Margaret Deland has set more men and women a-thinking than Henry Drummond has been able to by his Natural Law in the Spiritual World.

Seven years ago Walter Besant published a novel called "All sorts and Conditions of Men," the scene of which was laid in East London, and in the preparations of his material Mr. Besant made himself thoroughly acquainted with his subject. London is divided into three parts: the city proper, which is the commercial centre of the world; West London, a city of palaces and luxury, and East London, unbeautiful, densely populated and the home of the poor and miserable. Miss Bisland writes in the Cosmopolitan, that in this quarter of London "the number of those who belong to the lowest class of occasional laborers, loafers and semi-criminals is 11,000; the number of the very poor whose earnings are casual is 100,000; the class earning good but intermittent wages numbers 75,000, while those in receipt of moderate but regular wages mounts up to 75,000, and regular standard wages are made by 388,000." Mr. Besant found among these people hospitals and alms houses, numerous churches and active religious workers, but he found that the young, among whom all reforms must be begun, were left to content themselves with the dull round of labor and cheap, coarse amusements. In other words, they were left to grow up as their fathers and mothers had grown up, generally in ignorance and squalor, and at best, with little hope of bettering their condition. In All Sorts and Conditions of Men, Mr. Besant set forth a plan for the elevation of these young people which, though it was embodied in a novel, appeared so feasible and practical that a committee was promptly formed and subscriptions began to flow in freely. About £75,000 was paid in, the erection of the "People's Palace" was begun, and though not yet completed the great auditorium was opened by the Queen on the 14th. of May, 1887. What are the objects of the People's Palace? They are thus set forth:—

"The People's palace, by its library, its music, its pictures, its lectures, its literature classes and its technical schools, will it is hoped, offer to all the means of thought and knowledge, which feed aspiration. Those who have not knowledge of history easily become the blind servants of demagogues, and thus are taught to seek rights and not duties, and to become enemies to social unity. Those who are ignorant of literature and the great thoughts that are the common property of all ages find life dull, and are tempted to take their pleasure to their own injury, or by the sacrifice of the best in others. Those whose eyes or ears are untaught to accept the best in art or music, are apt to seek beauty in sensationalism or joy in excitement, and thus they become incapable of the gentler pleasures which create and foster home life; and it is those who are ignorant of science and its immutable laws whose lives suffer, whose health becomes enfeebled and whose children are sacrificed to the great loss of the nation. All alike want the knowledge which in any form transmutes existence into life."

The auditorium, to which reference has been made, and which serves for lectures, concerts, theatricals and balls, is 130 feet long, 75 feet broad and the height of the roof of stained glass is 60 feet from the floor. It has a large organ, and is ornamented with statues of twenty-two queens famous for their virtues. The library is an octagon, 75 feet long and broad, with a domed roof of stained glass and contains 15,000 volumes, with shelving for 235,000 more. The library is open seven days in the week with an attendance of about 900 on week days and from 1500 to 1800 on Sundays. Opening out of the library is the museum which already contains many orinthological specimens and ships' models. Near by is the swimming bath, 75 feet long and 3 to 8 feet deep, which is warmed by steam. Fifteen tickets to the bath are sold for a shilling, and pupils in the technical schools are required to bathe as often as twice a week. Opening into the library a winter garden is being erected, the gift of Sir Edward Guinness, which will be filled with exotic plants and birds. The technical schools, in which day and evening classes are taught, are in a wing of the main building. No pupils are admitted to the former the income of whose parents exceeds £200 a year. The average attendance at present is 288. At the evening classes last year 5,500 pupils were registered. Admission to these schools for children whose parents have an income not exceeding £200 is one shilling a week or £2 a year. But the advantages are so great that many children are sent to them by wealthy people who pay £8 8s. a year. What is taught in those technical schools? Tailors' cutting, upholstery, plumbing, cabinet making, metal turning and lathe work, carpentry and joinery, wood carving, etching, hand rail and stair case work, boot and shoe making, engineering, photography, printing, electrical engineering, lighting, instrument making and telegraphy, machine construction and drawing, geometry, chemistry, geology, mineralogy, mechanics, physiology; all kinds of drawing, all branches taught in the common schools, French and German, vocal and instrumental music and dressmaking, cutting, millinery and cooking. Already graduates from these schools command the highest wages paid in London. This, says Miss Bisland, is the beautiful, the noble result growing out of the novelist's idea—an idea that was born from his realization of the fact that the great difference between the rich and the poor is not in the necessities of life but in the luxuries, not in the food and clothes but in the pleasures of mind and body: and it is these luxuries and pleasures which wake the discontest and bitter envy of those deprived of them and form the sharpest contrast of the dull blankness and ugliness of their lives. Here is a bridge with which to cross the gulf. It does not degrade the people because they pay for what they get: and yet a noble liberality puts these pleasures within the reach of meagre purses, opens to these starved minds and hearts the heaven of knowledge, of art, of beauty and of pure delight.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The statement which is telegraphed from Lewiston that the Grand Trunk is negotiating with the Boston & Maine Ry. Co. for the sale of its line from Portland to Richmond, is important if true. It would seem to show an intention on the part of the Grand Trunk to abandon Portland as a port of shipment.

Another cold wave has struck the British Islands and men are being found frozen to death just as if England had been moved ten degrees nearer the north pole. In Germany and France the weather is also unprecedentedly severe and there is much distress and suffering. After all there are worse places than Canada in winter.

The clergymen of one Protestant denomination were conspicuous by their absence from the Bible Society meeting in the Centenary church last evening. Why was this? The reason could hardly have been that the meeting was held in a Methodist church. The distribution of the Bible all over the world ought to be an object as dear to one Protestant denomination as to another.

If we are to believe the news which now comes from Chatham, Williams, who was alleged to have been mutitated, and murdered at Belledune, was seen alive after the period of his alleged death, and was shipped from Newcastle on board the barque Ruby for Dublin. Thus ends this scandalous attempt to make political capital against the provincial government out of the alleged murder of Williams. We can only regret that respectable papers allowed themselves to be deceived into giving countenance of the story.

The silly Telegraph is assailing a Sun correspondent who writes under the signature of F. on the New Brunswick farmers and reciprocity. The Telegraph says this correspondent has in former times written under the signature of "Merchant". If so the editor of the Telegraph has reason to remember him for "Merchant" very signally defeated him in a discussion in the papers years ago. This fact perhaps accounts for his present attack but the editor should be careful and avoid further controversy with so doughty a champion as "F" or "Merchant."

We do not think that the chief of police is increasing the respect which the public feel for himself or for his office by planning small raids against Mrs. Woodburn of Sheffield street, and bringing up newspaper reporters as evidences against her. It looks too much like taking revenge on this person for her testimony against some of the police, and this is altogether too small a game for a chief of police to be engaged in. The magistrate fined the woman for keeping liquor for sale, because some broken bottles were found in a hole in the floor with the smell of ale upon them. This may be sufficient evidence to convict, but we doubt it. If the chief wishes to distinguish himself we advise him to strike at higher game than Mrs. Woodburn. The citizens of St. John are not so much interested in keeping Sheffield street free from the taint of liquor selling as they are in restricting its sale in some other localities.

The Trades Journal of yesterday has two articles from Springhill, both of which indicate that the men anticipate serious trouble in the near futnre. There is much dissatisfaction among the miners regarding certain new rules which came in force at the beginning of the New Year. The prospect is not very encouraging, yet it is hoped another strike will be averted. The men hold that the company has not held to its agreement at the end of the last strike.

The Weymouth Free Press states that Mr. Joseph Lent, of Barton, Digby Co., picked eighty barrels of Baldwin apples from thirteen trees the past fall. We have always been under the impression that Annapolis and Kings counties were looked upon as the greatest apple yielding districts in Nova Scotia, though it must now be admitted that they possess excellent orchards in our sister county.

Mr. Carmine O'Dell, one of the Annapolis patrons of the concert last Monday evening, informed us that he had just returned from a hunting trip back of Bear River, having as companions Mr. H. A. Smith of Digby, and C. M. Stark, of Winchester, Mass., and during their fortnight's absence from home they succeeded in still-hunting and killing three fine moose.—Bridgetown Monitor.

Purify The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.
