AND QUEEN STREET SCHOOLS HOLD JUBILEE GAMES -- THE WIN-

It was a most successful union school jubices a credit to teachers sind taught and a litting celebration to inspire loyalty and love of her most gracious Majesty the Queen. The weather was delightful, and the whole program was most enjoyable. The King street school grounds, the scene of the gathering, were tastefully decorated with foliage and bunting. A temporary stand had been erected for the speakers and orchestra, while chairs and benches were supplied while chairs and benches were supplied for the many parents, who spent a happy afternoon with the children. Principal T. C. Smith and his staff of assistants are to be congratulated on the successful outcome of their efforts.

The opening event, a warmly contested baseball match, took place on Tecumser Park, and proved most exciting, the little fellows playing a lively game. The score was as follows: ly game. The score was as follows:

Dr. McKe wigh presided at the interesting part of the program which followed from the stand. After several excellent renditions by Prof. Philp's orchestra, the chairman briefly addressed the gathering, congratulating all and appropriately referring to the occasion which they had assembled to commemorate. Under the direction of Mr. Marshall, the children then rendered spiritedly and well a spierdid series of patriotic songs. This was followed by short and help'ull addresses by Rev. Messrs. Dr. McCall, R. McCosh, F. H. Larkin, E. N. Baker, and E. Grigg and Trustee J. A. Wilson. The speeches were commendably short and enjoy-sich of Queen Victoria to the throne of the British Empire, early in the morning of June 20th, 1837. The Princess Victoria, of Kent, was awakened from her slumbers and informed that she was Queen of England, and the first words she addressed on that memorable occasion to the Archbishop of Captercury, who brought her the news were these: "I lask your prayers on my behalf," and Queen Victoria began to reign over the greatest empire on earth by invoking the assistance of flim while is King of kings and Lord of londs. How well and in what measof lords. How well and in what meas-une that prayer has been answered, we The Victorean era is without a rival in the history of the world. In the progress of the sciences, the arts, and Christian civilization England was never so prosperous nor so powerful as on this sixtieth anniversary of as on this sixtieth anniversary of Queen Victoria's reign. How much of this is owing to the wisdom and dis-cretion, to the beautiful and blame-less life of Her Most Gracious Majesty, it is difficult to estimate; but at all events she is the emblem of the greatevents she is the emblem of the great-ness, the power and the glory of the British Empire. It should be a mat-ten of pride, satisfaction and congratu-lation to every boy and girl here, as well as parent, to know that they be-long to such a nation, of which our fair Canada is the brightest gem in the
