

of all tracts capable of producing timber or fuel.

In carrying out this reservation all lands suitable for permanent cultivation should be excluded and definite areas should be set aside for such communities as must exist by taungya cultivation.

Communal Forests.

The settlement might be by townships or any other suitable units and should be carried out on broad-minded lines. To begin with unnecessary bogies, such as that relating to the use of fire in areas unlikely to be brought under fire-protection, should be eliminated from the proclamation. We should also revise our ideas on the subject of what constitute trespass by man and beast and modify the ruling, limiting the exercise of rights to the number of houses actually inhabiting a village at the time of settlement.

The area, within a reasonable radius of habitations, should be reserved for management mainly as communal forests, the original inhabitants getting their produce free, and provision being made for immigrants, being as far as possible provided for at privilege rates. The profit on the management of such communal forests should be utilized for the benefit of the villages in their vicinity.

It should not be considered trespass by man or beast to stray within a reasonable distance of a right of way. Above all the necessity for dealing with unimportant technical offences in a broad-minded way should be impressed on Divisional Forest Officers.—(Official Bulletin)
