

EVANGELINE PIER—Where the Boston steamers land their passengers.

The scenery in and around Yarmouth is charmingly diversified—a succession of hill and dale, lake and river, island and ocean, bursting upon the view at every turn.

The facilities offered for sport or healthful recreation are scarcely to be excelled. For boating, fishing or bathing there is a choice of ocean, bay, harbor, lake or river. For camping and hunting Yarmouth County offers opportunities that are hard to excel. The country is intersected with excellent roads for driving, motoring or wheeling.

The town of Yarmouth has about thirty miles of streets, and a drive about town will repay the stranger. Many of the streets are lined with shade trees and the visitor will feel constrained to ask the drivers to walk their horses frequently in order that the vista of charming homes and well kept lawns and gardens may be more fully seen and admired.

Yarmouth has its full share of churches, nearly every denomination being represented. There are also Masonic, Knights Templar and Oddfellows lodges and Y. M. C. A. rooms.
