thousand wonders and novelties. It has great value as a world's exposition. It presents all types of the human race, together with their costumes, tapestries, banners, flags, weapons, engines of warfare, statuary and paintings, carriages of state, mythology and idols.

For the children there are fete days and kermis scenes, fairyland tableaux, depicting all the characters from Mother Goose, Alice in Wonderland, the Arabian Nights, the Water Babies and Robinson Crusoe.

The show grounds of this big circus are a city in themselves. Here will be found an immense dynamo plant, generating power for all kinds of shops and supplying current for 7,000 electric globes, arcs and beacons.

One entire section of the train is needed to transport the vast equipment of the spectacle "Cleopatra," which opens the performance in the main tent.

Humors Come to the Surface in the Spring as in no other season. They don't run themselves all off that way, however, but mostly remain in the system.

Making a Flat World Round

When Columbus set out to reach India by sailing westward, he met with opposition and ridicule. He believed the earth to be round. Wise men held that it was flat—that Columbus was mad—and that he'd fall off somewhere if he departed from established beliefs.

The Business World is flat to some men. Their profit-bearing shores of Opportunity stretch only so far as their grandfathers' trod.

For instance, they believe the business year is a flat one—not an all-year round of trade, with East joining West, with Spring merging into Autumn—but just two distinct seasons, with sawed-off edges gaping into space.

They confine their activities to a Spring trade and to a Fall trade. To them there is no intervening continent with stores of waiting wealth. Their world is flat. They have not explored the mid-year months of Summer trade.

Surely this conception of Summer as a "dull" season is as fallacious as the delusion that the earth was flat. People have just as much money in the hot weather and spend quite as freely as in Spring and Fall.

The modern Columbus has discovered this Summer trade—this golden West lying between the known continents of old beliefs. Departing from established habit, many have made their energies and their Advertising an all-year-round proposition.

Keeping up Advertising during the Summer months not only links your Spring and Fall, but produces rich harvests from the Summer months themselves.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 405 Lansden Building, Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.
