Mr. R. C. Blanton, a prominent Salvation Army worker, who occupies the proud position of Deputy Band Master at the Temple, Toronto, bears testimony to the great healing power of Zam-Buk balm. He says: "Pimples and sores broke out all over my face and neck and notwithstanding all I did to try and cure them they spread. In places the skin was inflamed over big patches and caused me great pain and inconvenience. I was advised to try Zam-Buk and for several days I applied it to the sores and in a few days the inflammation was gone and the skin was healed. It is a wonderful healer!"

Zam-Buk cures eczema, itch, blood poison, festering, chronic and suppurating sores, burns, cuts, barbers' rash, fistula and all skin injuries and diseases. It is a specific for all. All druggists and stores. A box of 3 for $1.25. Send 16 stamp to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto for sample box.

The Kind of Critter He Was. It was at Cliff Dwellers, Chicago's literary club, and one of the members had just made a terrible, irreparable blunder about another—made in his presence and that of several other members.

"What ought I do now?" asked the blunderer, much embarrassed. "If I were you," suggested Fred Richardson, the artist, who had heard the whole proceeding, "I should go out and wrangle my ears and eat another thistle."—Success Magazine.

A Purely Vegetable Pill.—The chief ingredients of Parment's Vegetable Pills are mandarin and dandelion, sedative and purgative, but perfectly harmless in their action. They cleanse and purify and have a most healthful effect upon the secretions of the digestive organs. The dyspeptic and all who suffer from liver and kidney ailments will find in these pills the most effective medicine in concentrated form that has yet been offered to the suffering.

"One year," said the Court. "What!" shouted the autoist convicted of manslaughter. "Does your Honor or not realize that by the expiration of that time my new machine will be out of date?" They led him away still babbling of his constitutional rights.—Philadelphia Ledger.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors recommended a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Parment's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any catarrh that it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, etc.

Family Breeds, Etc. A novelist who lives near Indianapolis once engaged an individual who claimed to be a gardener. That his claim was without basis of fact was soon made evident to the employer, for the man proved well-nigh useless, in fact, that it became necessary to discharge him.

The man took the dismissal with much jaunty indifference, but the novelist was somewhat nettled. "You seem rather pleased than otherwise," said he to the man. "Oh, I am not worryin'," was the prompt response. "Indeed! Perhaps you won't do so well as you think. May I venture to enquire what you have in view?" "Well," answered the gardener, "if the worst comes to the worst, I may take up writing books. Since I've been here I've been out in the garden and seen an awfully bright man as I used to think it did."—Lippincott's Magazine.

OTHER DAYS, OTHER WAYS.

Modern Conveniences That the Average Maid Will Not Use.

The modern housewife may have in some instances an equipment that few "biddies" can or will utilize, says a writer in Harper's Weekly. "No, mum, if ye please; O'll do the washin' in the old way. O'd don't like this newfangled things," old Ann remarked to her mistress when she returned after many years' absence and found a steam washing machine installed. "O'll wash doin' washin' whin ye was in short dresses, Miss Mary. O'd rather rub thim on the board than wash the old thing," she concluded, with a glance of grim displeasure at the despoiled labor saver.

The "Miss Mary" of twenty years' standing as a mutton said to a neighbor who did her own work: "Ann simply won't use the washer. Wouldn't you like to have it?"

The neighbor accepted the offer, but in a week returned the machine. "I never never so disappointed," she explained. "I waited two hours for those streams of boiling suds to appear and pour through the clothes; then I washed the clothes on the board and was two hours late."

Inquiry revealed the fact that she had not used the cover of the machine and had actually expected to do her washing with the steam she had allowed to escape into the room.

"Well, you won't persuade me to try it again," she said testily. She is still using the washboard. So is Ann. There are, of course, women who cannot or will not apply a scientific principle nor understand a mechanical device, however simple. There are others, men and women, too, who grudge the lightening of any burden borne by another.

Obstinacy is frequently a bar more impassable for improvements than either ignorance or stupidity. The "old days" and the "old ways" interpose a sentimental or narrow minded obstacle to progress of every sort. Who despises the charm of the pastry baked in an old fashioned brick oven? Who wouldn't prefer a sand scrubbed white marble floor to the new white tile, cold and without sentiment—until one remembers the aching back of the one who must scrub? There is something substantially cheering about a heavy, shining coal range and its gleam of glowing coal, but think of the work of tending it, of keeping it and its surroundings clean. Watch the face of the woman who uses it for broiling or frying, then vote for the gas or electric range that does its work far more perfectly and leaves the worker cool and fresh.

Chill them. Cantaloupes. Refrigerate overnight. Serve them cut in halves. Unless you're a crank, that is. This is absolutely the only way in many instances. They will be filled with raked ice. In average hotels the ice is simply taken out for "the crank." Needless to say, the flavor of a good cantaloupe is spoiled by putting ice in it.

No doubt places where many are served insist because of lack of refrigerator space. There's one way ice can be useful—place the half of a luscious cantaloupe in a bed of ice. In spite of all servants and others go on filling them with ice. Even one supposedly wise woman's magazine blithely advised this course.

Restful Combinations. Treat yourself for it will prove, indeed, a treat to plain French linen window and door hangings if your room rejoices in a bouquet wall paper. Reverse the thing in favor of a printed English chintz for the hangings and give or get a peacock design should your wall be but a plain tint. The tinted wall is no longer rare in houses that have benefited by the art of the modern decorator, but it is seldom found in the less expensive rented house.

The figured wall is sometimes quite possible even from the decorator's viewpoint. A great part of the work of this genus among men is "making the best of things," and with plain hangings and polished floors or one or two of the most of wall papers is not always odious.

A Rare Autograph. "What is the most expensive autograph ever sold?" inquired the reporter. "That of Thomas Lynch, Jr.," answered the dealer. The record book looked like a blank. "Never heard of him," he confessed. "Well, he was a signer of the Declaration of Independence. He signed it as proxy for his father, who was ill at the time. Soon after he went to sea and was never heard of again. Now, autographs of Declaration signers are much sought by collectors. None approach in rarity those of Thomas Lynch, Jr. In fact, so far as I know, there is only one in existence. This is attested by an autograph letter addressed by Lynch to George Washington, which lends it additional value. It was owned at one time by Jared Sparks, president of Harvard college. Subsequently it passed to Thomas Adie Emmet, from whom I bought it for the sum of $4,000. I sold it to Augustin Daly, who was a keen autograph collector, for $4,500. Later Emmet repeated of letting the autograph go from his possession and secured from Daly for $3,250, presenting it afterward to the Lenox library, New York, where it is now."

A Criticism. A physician at recent meeting of the College of Physicians in Philadelphia told a story illustrating the witty comprehension of a patient of Irish nationality. The physician declared that one of his patients, an Irishman, could not understand why, if one of his arms refused to perform its usual functions, the other should remain normal.

"It is the balancing power of nature," explained the physician. "If a man is blind in one eye, nature generally provides additional strength for the remaining eye. When deafness is discovered in one ear the hearing of the other ear becomes unusually acute."

"Now that you mention it, O' be-lieve 'tis so," said the patient. "When a man has one short leg, the other leg is generally longer."—Judge.

SAFETY FOR CHILDREN
Mothers should never give their little ones a medicine that they do not know to be also—lately safe and harmless. The so-called soothing medicines contain opiates that stupefy the child without curing its ailments. An overdose of these medicines will kill the child. The Tablets cure constipation, indigestion, wind colic, diarrhoea, destroy worms, break up colds and make teething easy. THROW AWAY ALL YOUR FEARS
BACKACHE, GRAVEL AND RHEUMATISM VANISH BEFORE DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Proved Once Again in the Case of Mrs. Fred Krieger, Who Suffered From the Worst Form of Kidney Disease. Palmer Rapids, Ont. (Special.)—The thousands of Canadians who live in daily terror of those terrible forms of Kidney Disease known as Backache, Gravel and Rheumatism, will be deeply interested in the story of Mrs. Fred Krieger, of this place. "I was for years a great sufferer from Kidney Disease, Gravel, Rheumatism and Backache," Mrs. Krieger states. "It all started through a cold, but I got so my head ached, I was nervous, my limbs were heavy, I had dragging sensation across my loins, and I was totally unfit to do anything. "Reading about wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to buy some. After using a few I found they were doing me good and this encouraged me to continue their use. Eight boxes made me well and healthy. I have been able to do my own work ever since and to-day I am completely cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me health and I feel like a new woman."

If you keep your kidneys strong and healthy you can never have Backache, Rheumatism or Gravel. Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to make the kidneys strong and well.

Father Was an Invidious. It had been a third day in the field and father and son were very hungry. The only things eatable on the table were twelve very large apple dumplings. The father had consumed ten while the boy was eating one, and then both reached for the one remaining. "Son," pleaded the father, "You wouldn't take the last apple dumpling from your poor sick pa, would you?"

CHICAGO'S FIREBOATS.

Water Guns That Discharge Nine Thousand Gallons a Minute.

The two new Chicago fireboats are 120 feet long and of the six-foot beam, and their fire fighting battery as well as the means resorted to by which they can anchor solidly anywhere in the river instead of having to fight a fire alongside a dock is as revolutionary and interesting as the power plant. The main water battery consists of two great "water guns" that can be swung in any direction or at any angle upon their standards. These standards are mounted on a platform just over the positions of the pumps, each great nozzle taking the entire force of 4,500 gallons of water per minute from the pump under it. When desired, or should the necessity require it one nozzle, by inserting a slightly larger head, can take the combined 9,000 gallons per minute of both pumps and throw it in one huge, shattering stream.

Each nozzle with a two inch opening and each receiving the full force of the pump under it, can throw a powerful stream fully 500 feet, while one of them, with a three and one-half inch opening and receiving the water from both pumps, can throw the stream to twice the same distance, perhaps a little farther. In addition to these justly named water guns, the fire fighting battery consists of sixteen continuous for hose; but of course, the larger the number of lines of hose used, the more the force of the stream from the water guns. It would, however, be impossible to use the water guns on many fires, as their force would soon batter down the walls of an ordinary brick building if the fighting were at close range; also should the necessity require lines of hose could be run from these connections to supply fire engines at a few several blocks away from the river. In fact, the boats could be used from several points in the river or from the lake front to fight any fire in Chicago's business district.—Popular Mechanics.

Telephone and Phonograph. Some time ago a magnetic phonograph was invented which its designer hoped to use in connection with the telephone to receive and record messages in the absence of the owner of the phone. The objection to this system was that a person calling up a number and receiving no response was not inclined to deliver his message to someone to receive and record messages in the absence of the owner of the phone. Street Noises. When the first international congress for the suppression of street noises, called to order in Berlin in June, 1910, a resolution was passed, according to a statement made by Mr. Berdengen of the Society for the Betterment of London, from the United States, England, Germany, Austria, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, and Denmark. "It is the duty of the city of the New York society," the objects of the organization will have become better known and we will have outlived the ridicule with which the noise fighters are now looked upon." The doctor had prescribed a medicine which I had taken four times in the night. I said I was afraid I should not wake up at the proper time. "Oh, I'll fix that for you all right," said he. "I will instruct the telephone company to call you at 10, 12, 2 and 4 o'clock and to keep on ringing till you answer. It is very simple. "Apparently it was. He gave his instructions. The girl called me at the specified hours. I took my medicine, and so a new use for the telephone was born." —New York Sun.

Makay's Idea of Hospitality. The commander of a punitive force in the Kamerun sent to chastise some recalcitrant natives has just made his report to the German government. The natives giving trouble is known as the Makays, and they delight in cannibalism. The chiefs, according to the report, fatten slaves to eat them. Captain Makay says that it is the custom of the country, should visitors arrive unexpectedly, to bring in one of the slaves and kill him as we should a fowl for the entertainment and welcome of the guest.—London Globe.

Although it is the first European post, it is not the first outside the limits of the United States, as there are already four in Canada, one in Peru and one in Honolulua. There are, according to the United States pension commissioner, about 5,000 pensioners residing in foreign countries.—St. John (N. B.) Globe.

Realism. During one of his presidential trips, Mr. Cleveland, accompanied by Secretary Olney, arrived at a town in heavy storm and they were driven from the station with hailstones rattling on the roof of their carriage. A brass band, undismayed by the weather, bravely struck to its post and played the welcoming airs. "That is the most realistic music I have ever heard," remarked Mr. Cleveland. "What are they playing?" asked the Secretary of State. "Hail to the Chief," with real hail." —Success Magazine.

NO REST FOR TERRIBLE ITCH
The Oil of Wintergreen Compound Made His Skin as Pure as Ever.

Mr. James Lulloch, of Iron Bridge, Ont., considers the D. D. D. Prescription of oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., a wonderful cure for his troubles. He has no reason to think so, too, according to his letter of Mar. 27, 1909. "I have suffered for years," he says, "with eczema, and now through using two bottles of your wonderful cure, my skin is as pure as it ever was. My face was so bad I could not see. I could not sleep. I could not rest at all for the terrible itch. Thanks to your wonderful medicine I am cured. As eczema is a germ disease, and as the germs are right in the skin, blood medicines will not cure it. The only effective way is to treat the itch where the itch is. D.D.D. Prescription penetrates the pores of the skin, kills the germs which cause the eczema, gives instant relief from the awful itch and permanently cures. For free sample bottle of D. D. D. Prescription write to the D. D. D. Laboratory, Department T. F., 23 Jordan St., Toronto. For sale by all druggists."

HALLEY'S COMET.

It May Come Blazing in Splendor or Comparatively Insignificant.

The biggest fear show that this generation will have been will soon be given. Its arena will be high up in the sky, where everybody may see it, and there will be no need of crowding. It will be a one star show. Halley's comet. The last time it was seen by the people on earth was in 1835, and it is now in the last stages of a journey of 6,800,000 miles, which had to be made to play this return date.

Again, notwithstanding the advance of science, fear will mingle with wonder at its apparition. A thrill of apprehension will be felt by millions who see its fiery head plowing through the stars and its sword shaped tail brandished over the earth, as if monitoring of unknown and unavoidable evil. Astronomers have calculated that Halley's comet must have crossed inside the orbital distance of Jupiter from the sun about the 1st of last January. In the middle of January its distance from the earth was estimated at 440,000,000 miles. During the late fall it is expected to become visible to the naked eye after having for months before been photographed and studied with telescopes. It will slowly brighten during next winter, being seen from nearly all parts of the earth.

Gradually approaching the sun, it will make its perihelion passage at a distance of about 66,000,000 miles from the solar globe on the 13th of next April. Its greatest brightness is expected to occur after the perihelion passage, when it will draw nearer the earth and be visible in both the evening and the morning sky. But at that time it will be south of the celestial equator and consequently better seen from the southern hemisphere. About May 18 the comet will be only 12,000,000 or 13,000,000 miles from the earth, although for more than a month it will have been retreating from the sun.

Just what its appearance will be no one can predict. It is the Proteus of space, it may blaze with amazing splendor, as it did when trembling Europe saw in it an avatar of the conquering sword of the prophet of Mecca, or it may be relatively insignificant. But in any event it will fix the attention of mankind and for astronomers will be the most interesting phenomenon seen in the sky for many decades.

The returns of Halley's comet have recently been traced back to the year 240 B. C., but it has probably been revolving in its elliptical orbit very much longer than that. Halley's discovery after its appearance in 1832 that it was a regular visitor to the neighborhood of the sun has always ranked as one of the capital triumphs of astronomy. His suspicion that the comet of 1832 was not paying its first visit to the sun was based upon the similarity between its orbit in space and the orbits of two other comets which had appeared in 1607 and 1531 respectively. (He did not guess its identity with the comets of 1456 and 1065.) If the three were identical, then the same reason could be used to return again after another interval of about twenty-six years. Accordingly Halley ventured the prediction that the comet would be back again in 1758. He died in 1742, seventeen years before the fulfillment of his prophecy.—Garrett T. Service in Hampton's Magazine.

Life Rings on Mountains. A remarkable example of the way in which a mountain may afford on a small scale an image of the earth's climate arranged in successively higher circles has been found by Dr. P. Lowell in the San Francisco peaks. These, which are ancient volcanoes, rise out of a plateau having a mean elevation of 7,000 feet above sea level. The peaks are encircled with zones of vegetation, which run almost like contour lines round them. Between 6,500 and 8,500 feet the yellow pine is the dominant tree. From 8,500 to 10,300 feet the Douglas fir, the silver fir, the cork oak and the aspen share the available ground. Between 10,300 and 11,500 feet the Engelmann spruce and the fir take place possession and ascend to the tree limit.—Youth's Companion.

Long Lived Birds. The Duchess of Bedford in "British Birds" gives some remarkable instances of longevity among birds in her own collection. A Barbary dove which had been in the duchess's possession for fifteen years was left her by an old woman who also owned it for fifteen years and who always said it was an old bird when it was given to her. A Chinese goose has been in the possession of the family for fifty-seven years. A phalarope, which the duchess bought twenty years ago, when it was an adult bird, still survives. The bird was taken from the nest in 1832 and died in 1900. "It was chained by the leg to a small hut," says the duchess, "and lived forty-eight years under these miserable conditions."

The Era of Preventive Medicine. The era of preventive medicine has barely dawned. Statesmen are beginning to open their eyes to the vast importance of conserving the health of the nation in order to insure its civic integrity and permanence. The industrial world is not only no longer unwillingly yielding to wise laws designed to safeguard the health of the laboring classes, but is actually initiating of its own volition measures for improving the physical welfare, and therefore indirectly the educational authorities are beginning to focus their attention upon the bodily health of the child, for without this all efforts at mental training are worse than useless.—Philadelphia Record.

"Much may be done," said the Acute Observer, "by an authoritative voice. Now, if a man says to a dog, 'Come here!' with a note of absolute authority in his voice, the dog comes immediately."

"Yes," said the Traveler, "I've noticed it. And it is especially marked in Oriental peoples. Why, when I was in Khalsandharo, I heard a man say, 'Will be a one star show. In his tone, 'Oh, King, live forever' and immediately the King lived forever." —Success Magazine.
