FOREST PRESERVATION.

In Canada we will have to take up the nuestion of forest preservation in earnest some of these days, and when we do we can bearn much from what has been done, and is being done, in the United States in this direction. Several trates and the federall government have adopted systematic plans, and the reports of progress. published from time to time show how quickly and generously nature responds to the efforts of man in reclothing with forest trees area's turned into barren wantes by former cupidity and recklessness. Private companies, 100, whose business depends on an adequate supply of timber have gone into the work of forestry on practical business principles in a manner which has already given assurance of abundant success. Among these is the Houston Oil Company, of Texas, which owns a million acres of forest lands. In the contract it has recently entered into with a lumber company tonditions are made which could be adopted with evident advantage by our local government, and the preservation of the foregue thereby secured. Those conditions are intended to prevent the wasteful methods in vogue among lumbermen. The land is not do be lided waste by indiscriminate chopping, no: is young timber to be burned. This smaller trees are to be kept standing upinjured, and saplings are to be carefully protected. Provision is made for continuous growth, so that the woodfand thidll be kept intagt and magnify assured for trees, now in their growth or middle Me. If this plan, which is enforced with great strictness in the forests of Europa, had been instituted on by the govern ment of Canada in early days, the vast pine forests which have wholly disappeared in the regions traversed by our northern streams, and which are entirely unfat for agriculture. would sail be producing large quantitties of marketable timber, with the prospect of continuance for alges to come. But it is not yet too late Canada bailt possesses the largest and finest forests, on the continent, per-

The New York Journal of July 26 has an editorial under the caption: We Don't Need the Duke of Cornwall, 'referring to the decision of the Duke not to visit New York. After commenting erican anti-British press on the fact and declaring with much needless iteration that the people of New York are delighted the Duke and Duchess of York are not going there, the Journal launches a tirade of the most offensive and disgusting abuse against the Duke and King Edward. The article has been declared by the authorities to place the newspaper in the category of publications which should be prohib-

Generich Signal. It is for this reason we say that cabinet ministers, like Caesar's wife, should be above suspicion, and the coner the presidents, directors and medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the system, thereby deftroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative covers that they offer One solicitors of corporations get out of the game of attempting to play at statesmanship the better. Public opinion is awake on this point, and there is a rod in pickle for some of the gentlemen who are using political position to further personal gain. A short time ago the question of British statesmen dabbling in this kind of thing came up, and it was unhesitatingly condemned by the press and the public voice of Britain. That's what should be done here, and The Signal is willing to enter into a compact with its confreres to leave no effort undone to drive all "guinea pigs" out of public life in Canada.
