The remarks of the Kingaton Herald we do not entirely coincide is, but we have given them a place is our columns, chiefly upon the greand of their showing the tamper in which the inhabitants of that locality are richined to view the proceedings of the House of Assembly on the Clergy Reserves and other questions. They have no idea of the inhabitants of that locality are right. This feeling, we believe, in pretty prevalent throughout the Province. So let the Legislature take care.

We have no reason to doubt the extremity to which the inhabitants are now reduced, and to which so many respectively to the persons testify. We know that many other parts of this District are already reduced to state of great suffering from the same cause, Quebes itself is far from being exempt from the Court of Appeals, and imputing to "an unjust rivalry" between them the reversal of each others judgments, in that Court. One would think that a paper should be very cautious to attribute to the highest suffering. Quebes Gesette.

We have given the Report of the Committee of the House on the Clergy Reserves, but it will be seen by our extract from the Christian Guardian, that there is only small probability of the Report being adopted by the House. As we stated a month ago, the members who voted for Mr. Hagerman's resolution are so much divided among themselves on the qualities of what Churches are to receive aid, that there is no prospect of a sufficient number of them agreeing in any measure that will command a majority in the House. The 21 rembers who voted against that resolution, will oppose any and every plan to dispose of these Reserves in accordance, with it, and their votes joined by a few of the year will negative every measure brought before the House for applying the Reserves to religious purposes. The 21 are not strong enough to carry their own measure of applying the reserves to education, but they are strong enough, aided by the divisions among their opposents, to frustrate any other plan. It would seem that this waxing question is as far from settlement as ever. Yet longer delay will only make the matter worse. Some members must give way, but who it is hard to decide.

At the same time it must not be concealed that great dissatisfaction prevails among a great portion of the people with the vote of these persons whose votes at the last elections turned the scale in favour of the constitutional candidates, express their displaceure at the vote for applying the Reserves to religious purposes, and
