An Interesting Case.—A case of some interest to liverymen was tried at the sitting of the Division Court here, on Monday last. It will be remembered that about a year ago a man engaged in taking out squared timber in Hullett hired a horse and cutter from Forbes livery, in this town, for the purpose of livery, in this town, for the purpose of visiting his works. After driving all day he put up at Brownlee's Hotel, in Kinburn, in the evening, and had supper and fed the horse. Oa, leaving the hotel for Seaforth, the horse through some cause started to run away, and in its flight got both its hind legs broken, and had to be killed. The man refused compensation for the horse, and Mr. Forbes brought action against him to recover the price of the animal. The case was decided, as we have already stated, on Monday, and we are sorry to say the day he put up at Brownlee's Hotel, in had to be killed.

compensation for the horse, and Mr.
Forbes brought action against him to recover the price of the animal. The case was decided, as we have already stated, on Monday, and we are sorry to say the verdict was against Mr. Forbes. Judge Toms, in giving his verdict, took the ground which is, no doubt, the proper one, that in hiring a horse and vehicle all risks of accidents rest with the owner, so long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the person long as it can be proven that the last year, and have tried satisfaction in every instance. THE DAYS OF MISERY AND NIGHTS OF UNREST endured by the sufferer from a persistant cough soon sap the vitality of the system and wreck the constitution. The queerest object in nature is a Spanish beggar, for these beggars beg on horseback; and it is an odd thing to see a man riding up to a poor foot passenger asking alms. A gentleman in Valparaiso, being arrested by one of these mounted beggars, replied, "Why, sir, you come to beg of me who have to go on foot, while you ride on horseback?" "Very true," said the beggar, "and I have the more need to beg, as I have to support my horse as well as myself."
