"I Didn't Stop a Moment."

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"Keep busy to keep happy" is one of the wisest bits of advice the proverb-makers ever wrote. There is nothing that I seek of life any more frequently than that I may be "too useful to be lonely and too busy to be sad," to the very end of my days.

But we should not forget that there is another angle to this matter, as to everything on earth. One must keep busy in order to keep happy, but one must keep fit in order to be able to keep busy. And in order to keep fit, one must not drive one's self too hard, must not cram every waking moment full of busyness.

"I don't see why I'm so tired tonight," I heard a woman say the other day. "I haven't done any heavy work or anything that ought to tire me."

"What have you been doing?" I asked.

"Goodness," she said, "don't ask me. It would take half the evening to tell you. I put the house in order and then I went downtown to have my suit fitted. While I was there I did half a dozen little errands and put in an hour at the dentist's. This afternoon I wrote a big batch of notes in regard to some statistics I am getting for our woman's club, spent an hour or so at the telephone making arrangements for our college sorority banquet, finished that waist I was making,—and what else did I do? Oh, yes, I know, washed out some silk stockings and chamois gloves, and did up two of my fussy coffars."

"Then you were pretty busy most of the day" I asked.

"Busy!" I should say so," she retorted. "I didn't stop a minute."

And yet she wondered why she was tired.

"I didn't stop a minute"—how often that could be said of the average woman's day.

How many women fill every hour of their waking life crammed jammed full of such activities, rushing breathlessly from one to another; often nervous and harried because they are afraid of not being able to get everything in, or of having some unexpected call made upon them, or of not being on time for some appointment! How many women fill their days with sixteen or seventeen such hours, and their weeks with seven such days, and then wonder why they are tired and nervous, why they are easily fretted, why they don't enjoy life as much as they did when they were younger!

No day should be planned so full of activities that there will be no passive time left. Every day should have some moments unplanned, some time kept for the unexpected call or for just relaxing.

Only so can one be fit to really enjoy the great privilege of being busy. Labor is the salt of life. Do not spoil your capacity to enjoy the great privilege of being busy. Labor is the salt of life. Do not spoil your capacity to enjoy it. For "if the salt have lost its savour, wherewithal shall it be salted?"

Why Women Are Not Rich.

Man is a millionaire many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal man has five million—the woman only four and a half million to a cubic millimetre of blood.

A decrease in number of red blood corpuscles and a person "looks pale"—in fact, is anemic, the blood does not get the right food and probably the stomach is disordered.

Dr. R. V. Pierce found years ago that a glyceric extract of golden seal and Oregon grape roots, given a root and a half, would help the assimilation of the food in the stomach, correct liver ills and in Nature's own way increase the red blood corpuscles. This medicine he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By assisting the food eaten the system is nourished and the blood takes on a rich red color. Nervousness is only "the cry of the starved nerves for food," and when the nerves are fed on rich red blood the person loses those irritable feelings, sleeps well at night and is refreshed in the morning.

"It was attacked with a severe nervous disease, which was caused by a disordered stomach and liver," writes Mr. JAS. D. LEBLEY, of Washburn, Tenn., Route 2. "For several months I would die and the best physicians gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I bought a bottle and took it. My case had run so long, it had become so chronic that nothing would effect a permanent cure, but Dr. Pierce's medicine has done much for me and I highly recommend it. I heartily advise its use as a spring tonic, and further advise ailing people to take Dr. Pierce's medicine before their disease have run so long that there is no chance to be cured."

Fashions and Fads.

Yellow and amber are favorite colors. Fans with amber sticks are in favor.

The newest bonnet mirrors have very short handles. Cape wraps promise to be favorites for evening wear.

Burnt orange is a color much seen in the new millinery. A great many three-piece suits are being worn by young girls.

Some of the new mesh bags are jeweled in Bulgarian colorings. Flowered foulards are being used somewhat for the old boleros.

The fichu blouses are very soft and becoming to slender figures. Three flounce skirts are actually favorites among dancing dresses.

Almost all the skirts to the silk suits show some form of drapery. The short tunic dresses are an important feature on dressy toilettes.

Bordered retine is one of the favorite members of the retine family. Plumed hats are very often trimmed with two long plumes instead of one.

Belts on children's dresses and coats are placed much lower this year than last.

Eggshell cotton crepe is much more in vogue than the striped, crinkly kind.

The newest pumps for women have a touch of red in the heels, vamp and buckle.

Some of the new "plumeless millinery" has plumes made of flowers and grasses.

Young girls like the cotton blouses with Balkan embroidery for out-of-door sports.

Some of the odd summer bracers are made of pink linen and crepe de chine.

Paradise plumes and egrettes are being used for evening and reception coiffures.

The newest heavy sweaters for country wear come this year in very bright colorings.

Bright greens, blues and reds are being used for odd silk boleros worn with white gowns.

Lawn, voile, crepe, sponge and batiste are the favored materials for graduation dresses.

Slipper bags to carry to the opera now have detachable cotton linings, which can be washed.

One of the new reys with a silky finish is particularly good for the severer tailored suits.

In Paris short draped mantelets of flowered silk are worn over lingerie and lace gowns.

The same bright colors used for women are a feature in the children's dresses of this season.

With white or cream linen and silk costumes there is nothing like kid gloves of a creamy tone.

Some of the new cotton volles have Dresden flower designs printed in very delicate colors.

Wealthy, He Still Begged.

A beggar with a fortune of $100,000 was discovered dead the other day at Conbeville, just outside of Paris. The mendicant, an old man known as "Father Daniel," but whose real name was Jean Baptiste Roastean, died in a gypsy camp caravan in which he lived. He was eighty-eight years old. The police found a key in the old man's dead hand. It was the key of a strong box in the Paris Bank, which on examination was found to contain the immense fortune in notes, gold bonds, and shares. The old man had begged for his livelihood for the last twenty years or more, and had concealed the fact that he was a man of good family and had inherited the fortune in 1808.

Alec Does Not Object

When Arrested by an Amazon "Policeman" he Goes Willingly.

Philadelphia, May 3.—Commuters scurrying through the Broad Street station to-day, on their respective way to the daily grind, stopped, craned their necks and stood aghast at the curious spectacle of a large woman dressed in a military cut blue suit, with her hand firmly on the shoulder of a well-dressed young man, escorting him hurriedly out of the waiting room. The two passed quickly to the street, the young man offering no resistance.

"What's it all about?" inquired one dumfounded commuter, of the station attendant. "What right has that lowering woman to treat a defenceless young man that way?" "Oh, that; that's merely a policewoman of the Philadelphia force throwing out a mischievous fellow."

The attendant calmly explained the situation. "She's just been commissioned. If you don't believe she has the authority or the nerve to eject or arrest obnoxious or disorderly persons, just start something. She throws 'em out in bunches every day—and she doesn't always merely throw 'em out. Hardly a day passes that some smart Alec doesn't object to being ejected by a woman, police-woman or no police-woman, and she carts him off to the police station. What's more, she hasn't lost a case yet. If you want a demonstration just take a few slants at any lone girl or woman in the depot and see if she doesn't get you quick." However, the inquirer was satisfied with what he had seen. As he walked away he was careful to look straight ahead.

The "lady copper" was Mrs. Mary Diehl, a superbly formed 1913 Amazonian style of woman, with pleasing but stern features and military bearing. She is on the Broad Street station beat and her chief work is to protect young girls and women against the simpering glances and advances of roysterers and mashers. She had sat unnoticed in a rear seat in the waiting room and had seen the young man approach a girl who had just arrived. Convinced from the girl's actions that the man was forcing his attentions on the girl, Police-woman Diehl stepped in and after questioning the two, flashed her badge and said to the young man, "Come with me." The offender was let go when the street was reached, on promise not to flirt any more.

Makes Hair Grow.

All drug stores sell SALVIA, and it is guaranteed to grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of. If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by first-class druggists under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" is on every bottle.
