Notes on the Women Members OF THE ENGLISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

No longer can men say that the only women in Parliament are those elected because of their husbands. If they were not divided politically they might say, "We are eight"; and some of them haven't husbands, anyhow. Here are some little sidelights on their characters and appearances by a woman politician.

Lady Astor—many people call her by her familiar name of "Nancy" and that it is sometimes a term of affection and at others a term of contempt is very typical of the first woman M.P.'s place in public opinion. In—first and foremost a woman. Typical woman, I mean. There is nothing masculine about her at all. He is delightfully illogical, inconsistent and idealistic, and when she goes to "manage" people, does it perfectly. She does not always care though! The kindest heart and the widest sympathies in the world are hers, and any criticism or doubting raises in her a flame of fury. Yet she is not intolerant in the least. Amazingly young in appearance, with excellent taste in frocks, clever family, and her father is a leading authority on certain historic periods, while her half-sister was a Senator in 1887, when women's successes at the Vespertine excited astonishment. The duchess knows a good deal about politics and both Houses of Parliament, and has a very quick and witty tongue. She has probably made more speeches even than Lady Astor, but she can be relied upon not to talk for the sake of talking.

Nothing Else Matters with a good appetite and a generous portion of Pan Cakes for Breakfast, and our Pure Maple Syrup.

Miss Jewson comes from Norwich, and has been connected with the Labor movement there for some time, ever since she was a schoolgirl, which isn't as long ago as it is the case with most of the other M.P.s. She was educated at Girton, and has had an adventurous career. Once she went to a hotel as a chambermaid, in order to find out for herself whether certain statements were true. She writes well, speaks well and will certainly be a very valuable woman in the work of reconstruction.

Lady Terrington was described during the election as being thirty-five, looking twenty-five and having the enthusiasm of eighteen, and I doubt if I can improve upon it. She has been prominently before the public for some years, chiefly in connection with charity efforts. She and her husband are to be found lunching at the Ritz, just inside the door, and close to the table that used to be the favorite of the Duchess of Rutland, whenever they are in London. They have a flat in Clarges Street, a house in the country, and whenever two or three are gathered together Lord and Lady Terrington are usually to be found. She is a pretty woman who makes a good, if careful, speech, and she is not likely to make mistakes in the House of Commons, although, on the other hand, she is not likely to electrify its members. But she may be a "dark horse," and prove much more interesting than one expects, for she has ambition.—Saturday Night.

"DIAPEPSIN" ENDS STOMACH MISERY. GAS, INDIGESTION

Instantly! Stomach corrected! You never feel the slightest distress from indigestion or a sour, acid, gassy stomach, after you eat a tablet of "Diapepsin." The moment it reaches the stomach all sourness, flatulence, heart-burn, gas, palpitation and pain disappear. Druggists guarantee each package to correct digestion at once. End your stomach trouble for few cents.

Scotty's Reproof

Mr. Pett Ridge, in his "A Story-Teller: Forty Years in London" writes of Pentonville, twenty years ago, and of a Londoner known as Scotty who was under sentence:—

"He had quarrelled with a Guardsman in a public-house; the Guardsman had taken Scotty's money, and Scotty declared that unless the money was handed back, he would knife the other; the Guardsman did not refuse. On the morning fixed for the execution, it was arranged that the chaplain should look in on Scotty at eight o'clock for a last heart-to-heart talk. For some reason the reverend gentleman was late in arriving at the condemned cell.

"Now then, chaplain," said Scotty, "this won't do, you know your right to have been 'ere, and now it's 'alf-past. I shall be seeing your governor at nine, and I'll tell him about you!"

BILLY'S UNCLE

The London County Council is by no means a bad training-ground for Parliament, and Miss Susan Lawrence, who is a convert to the Labor Party, will, at any rate, bring to the House a vigorous personality backed by a clever tongue and a fine debating style. She was imprisoned, with other Labor councillors, in Holloway for a time, and went to prison smoking a cigarette! It was typical! After Miss Bondfield, the Duchess of Atholl is probably the most clever of the New M.P.s. She is not in the least like the kind of overwhelming duchess the playwright loves to portray, but rather slender and unimpressive—until you begin to talk with her. Of course she comes of a very

Earl, V.C., Joins Empire Fellowship

The big task of organizing the Fellowship of the British Empire Exhibition is making rapid progress. The Earl of Dunmore has the distinction of being the first V.C. to become a member.

For the purpose of development, the country has been divided into groups. Lord Leigh, Lord Lieut. of Warwickshire, has become Chairman of the Provincial Group, and Lieut. Col. Hilder, who was formerly M.P. for South East Essex, Chairman of the London group.

At the moment the London group holds the record for members. The great banking and insurance companies in the city are enthusiastically supporting the Fellowship, and they are allowing their customers and shareholders to be circulated in its interests. Almost every post brings in to the Fellowship headquarters at 14 Grosvenor Gardens, applications for batches or forms from Companies whose directors and senior officials are anxious to support this new Imperial brotherhood.

Through the newly-formed Women's Section of the Exhibition many of the important Women's Organizations are applying for large numbers of application forms. In New Zealand, Lord Jellicoe is helping forward the movement. He has cabled to Rear Admiral Sir Hamnet Share, a distinguished naval officer, who fought with him at Jutland, to secure his own enrolment.

Local provincial groups are now in process of formation, and the Lord Lieutenants, Lord Mayors and Lord Provosts are responding admirably to the invitation to help.

During this month and next, a series of meetings is being arranged in connection with the Fellowship to be held in all parts of the country.

The plan of the Fellowship is, of course, primarily to help the British Empire Exhibition. Supplementary to that it will undertake certain definite tasks for Imperial education and for the better distribution of the Empire's population.

Membership of the Fellowship carried with it a Certificate on parchment paper signed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; a ticket giving free admission to the British Empire Exhibition at all times (or alternatively 25 single tickets of admission) and the badge of the Fellowship.

CRIPPLED DRIVERS.

WALT MARION

pose: these a rhymes. Jim Casing's boy is nine years old, and saved off for his size, yet he presents an aspect bold as up the road he flies. And Casing's grand-sire's been on deck since apples first were sown, and it is said to see him trek at fifty miles an hour. For some day he will hit a cow or slay a farmer's hen, and if he seems a little now, what will he look like then? Oh, any man may licensed, he to drive a deadly wain, though he is deaf and cannot see, and isn't strictly sane. So fatal drivers run amuck in every blood-stained town, and if we haply dodge a truck, a roadster runs us down. The day must come when every swain who would a license win, will have to prove that he is sane, his works all sound within. He'll have to show a doctor's screed which proves that he is sound, with wits that are not gone to seed, with legs that reach the ground. He may not drive a car of zinc, nor yet a car of tin, if eyes or ears are on the blink, if he is steeped in gin. Some happy day, no doubt, the State, which hasn't woke up yet, will put the lid on every skale whose driving is a threat.

A delicious sauce to serve with cottage pudding is made by adding two-thirds cupful of powdered sugar, the grated rind and juice of an orange and the juice of one-half lemon.

A Mysterious Package Found

Two large packages, containing groceries, dry goods, etc., picked up near Long Pond on Friday night last are now in possession of the police and await an owner at the lock-up. It is not known whether the "booty" in question has been stolen or undeveloped, and Head Const. Byrne, who has made several enquiries without avail, would like to be further enlightened on the matter.

The 7th Card Tournament of the 8 series of Card Tournaments of which the Star R.R. & B. Committee are holding will be held in the Star Hall on Monday, Feb. 25th, at 8.30. There are 4 Special Prizes in Gold to the persons getting the highest number of games at the close of series. There will be the 3 Prizes as usual on each night. Admission 50c. Men only.—Feb 23, 24

Just Folks. By EDGAR A GUEST

SELFISHNESS
A man has built a chimney stack between the east and me
And spoiled a patch of golden sky
Where beauty used to be;
And yonder to the westward was a clump of maples tall.
But now an ugly barn is there and I have lost them all.

The quiet and the calm are gone
From scenes which once I knew.
The clover fields of yesterday the trains go rushing through
The brook which laughed and danced along its journey to the sea.
Now wears upon its weary face the look of slavery.

How fair the dawn of day would be
but for that chimney stack
How fair the west if only man could put those maples back!
Yet almost everywhere we turn some lovely view to scan.
We find the realm of beauty being encroached upon by man.

Yet why should I complain at this,
why mourn the maple tree,
When day by day my selfishness
steals beauty's charms from me?
I will not check some whim of mine
to serve the broader view.
But raise my barns and chimney
stacks for what I want to do.

Household Notes.

Appicot shortcake is quite as delicious and much more digestible at breakfast than after a heavy dinner. If the turnips or onions in your cellar are putting forth tender sprouts, use them in a spring salad.
