A Brother's Error.

They could see the men walking off with the prisoner between them, and they could hear him ask:

"Will you let me speak with my sister and Miss Blanchard? This may be my last chance."

"We can't do it," replied one of the men brutally. "If you wanted any favors you'd only ask Bouton."

They went on again, and when they were 50 yards from the camp Henry Kyle and Kuschat were on their feet and after them. The men with their prisoners walked fast, though the road was rough and the path so dark that the hand could not be seen before the face. They had gone over half the distance and were just abreast the place that Capt. Brandon had made so terrible by daylight, when Bouton's men came to a halt and one of them asked:

"Didn't you hear a noise as if we were followed?"

They were nearly through the pass, and Kuschat was about to ask Henry if the time for action had not come, when, quick as a flash, he bowed from her side, and with his uplifted rifle knocked one of the men senseless. He was in the act of raising his rifle again, when, with a cry of alarm, the other man leaped to one side, and, drawing a pistol, fired. So close was he that the shot would have been fatal had not Kuschat, with the rapid spring of a mountain lion, thrown himself on his arm and sent the shot into the earth. The next instant the second outlaw was down and fell in inoffensive to Bouton and his plans. Before Louis Kyle could comprehend what had happened a knife flashed and the rope that bound his arms fell to the ground.

"Follow me," whispered Henry, seizing his arm.

"Who are you?"

"I am your friend, and once you called me brother," was the reply, with a sob at the close.

"And you are still my brother," cried Louis, and he reached out his arms, for in the sweep of gratitude all the past of this brave though erring youth was forgotten.

He passed the voice demanded in low, stern tones, which Henry recognized as those of Pont Robb:

"Who goes there?"

No answer was made, but still the brothers, with Kuschat between them, hurried on.

"Answer, or I'll fire!" shouted Pont Robb, now thoroughly alarmed.

"I am Henry Kyle," replied the owner of that name.

"Henry Kyle!" exclaimed Robb.

"Yes, fire if you dare. I did not mean to bring you under my rifle, Pont Robb, for once I called you friend. You must begin the struggle between you and me, and I will end it."

"And what are you doing here?"

"I will tell you, I am here to carry the message to Bouton. While Henry was speaking he still kept walking on with Louis and Kuschat till they reached the foot of a rock at the exit from the pass.

"Let me hear."

"Tell Bouton that I have left two of his gang in the rift, and that I have rescued from their hands my brother. Tell him that I defy the bloodhounds he has put on my trail, and that one by one they shall go down before my rifle. Tell him that I stood over the ruins of my father's home, burned down by him, and that I there swore that this earth was too small for Bouton and me. I shall follow him night and day, for henceforth I am sleepless, and the balance of my life shall be spent in marking reparation to the innocent and bringing vengeance to the camps of the guilty. His end is nearing, and I shall live to see it."

This was said with a dramatic intensity of voice that struck horror into the souls of Robb and his companions. Every one of them felt that the weather had become suddenly cold, and the bravest did not dare to make a reply. Though stiff from being bound, and weak from anxiety and sleeplessness, the strength born of excitement kept Louis Kyle up and enabled him to follow his brother and Kuschat. After some time of hard climbing Henry came to a halt in a little depression on the mountain side, where his horse and Kuschat's were grazing.

Spreading the saddle blankets on the ground, he said to his brother:

"You must be very weary. You have yet hard work before you. Sleep here till daylight, and Kuschat and I will guard you as the eagles guard their young."

Louis followed this advice, and he felt again as he had felt in the past when his elder brother was his ideal of all that was brave and strong and handsome. The rising sun was flushing all the cloud patches floating in the upper blue and lighting up the crowns of the snow peaks when Louis Kyle woke from a refreshing sleep and saw his brother and the Sioux girl standing with their backs toward him and talking in low tones. Kuschat brought some dried meat from her saddlebag, and of this the three made a meal which to the brothers was the sweetest they had ever eaten. When they had finished breakfast Louis laid his hand on Henry's shoulder and said:

"Let us go to our friends. Let us find Capt. Brandon on the road and watch you fill out of all danger," replied Henry. "But do not ask me to go with you. I have sworn an oath, and when I have done as that oath before me I will come with you to father and mother and ask forgiveness. Till then do not urge me, but yet a little longer let me follow my own bent."

"Let it be as you say, Henry. I only wished others who loved you so much to be made happy by the change that has come over you."

"Tell them when you see them," Henry was interrupted by a low cry from Kuschat. She had ascended an elevation near by and was watching in the direction of the pass.

"What do you see?" called Henry.

"The white smoke of rifles," she replied. "The brothers ran to where she stood, and looking toward the valley they could see that a conflict was in progress."

"Capt. Brandon is attacked," exclaimed Henry, "and he is holding them at bay. Now to the rescue! Now I may have a chance to avenge the blow that I swore should fall on Bouton's head. We will leave the horses. Come, Kuschat! Come, Louis!"

With blazing eyes and compressed lips, and nostrils dilating with the keen excitement of the occasion, Henry Kyle, examining his rifle as he ran, dashed down the mountain.

CHAPTER XXV.

Kuschat was not mistaken. She did hear firing and see the smoke of puffs, and Henry Kyle was right in thinking that Brandon had been attacked. Far down the rift the clatter of hoofs and the jingle of arms told that Bouton was through the pass and in possession of the trail leading to the Prophet's valley. The captain saw that a minute's delay would place him between two fires.

"Keep cool, my men," he shouted. "We must get in Bouton's advance! Press on and I will cover." He checked back his horse, and the others, intent on getting down the trail before Bouton, urged their horses into a wild gallop, looking neither to the right nor left.

Robb and his men were on foot, and they attempted to head off the horsemen. They would, without doubt, have succeeded in their object had not the captain flung himself from his horse and brought them to a sudden halt by sending down the man who was in the advance. Still on kept the captain's party. They were 200 yards ahead of him when he remounted to follow. But in his efforts to save his men he had placed himself in deadly peril.

BRAVE ELLA SMITH

Saved a House but Lost Her Life by Doing So.

Detroit, Aug. 3.—Ella Smith died on Saturday at the home of Mrs. F. B. Boden, Locust street, of blood poisoning, resulting from gasoline burns received about a week ago. The unfortunate woman had been acting as nurse in Mrs. Boden's family. On July 23, while she was lighting a gasoline stove, the oil exploded, igniting some towels that were hanging over it. Miss Smith at once rushed out doors with the burning towels, which she threw away. Running back into the house, she hastily lit the oil stove and carried it, too, outside. In doing so, however, she spilled oil on her arms and her sleeve caught fire. The oil flowed down her arm to her back, and the flames were rapidly enveloping her entire figure, when she picked up a rug and extinguished them. This was not accomplished, though, before the woman's flesh had been painfully burned by the flames. By removing the stove so quickly Miss Smith saved the house from burning. For a few days following the accident Miss Smith seemed to improve, but blood poisoning set in Friday, and on Saturday she died. She will be buried in Elmira, N. Y.

Democrats Have Decided to Hold a Convention in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Chicago is to witness another national Democratic convention within a month. The good standard Democratic leaders have decided definitely upon a new convention, to be held about Sept. 1 in this city. The announcement has been authentically made that such a course is a certainty, unless something wholly unforeseen intervenes. The arrangement looking to the consummation of the plan are already under way, the New York leaders particularly regarding matters settled beyond a peradventure, as far as the location and date of the convention are concerned, and being inclined to busy themselves now chiefly with discussion as to the question of candidates.

CINCINNATI DELUGED.

Cincinnati, Aug. 2.—Four rain and hail storms, with the wind at 60 miles an hour, accompanied by terrific thunder and lightning, visited the city Saturday afternoon. The rain continued till last night. Telegraphic and telephone communications were cut off for some time, but soon resumed. Reports from the railroads indicate that the storms extended many miles north. Numerous barns were blown across the tracks, and there was much damage from the wind as well as from washouts. Chas. Baugh was killed by attempting to throw a telegraph wire out of his door yard. The wire was crossed with a trolley wire.

Wholesale Theft of Thoroughbred Cattle at Puce.

The Oil Product at Bothwell Continues to Prove Satisfactory.

Mr. Wm. Shaw, of Chatham, has been appointed organist of Knox Church, Galt.

The Grand Opera House at Chatham has been sold to Mr. R. O. Kinney, of Detroit, for $45,000.

The Ridgeway Caledonian Society will celebrate on or about Aug. 10. Lord Aberdeen will be invited.

One of the candidates at the entrance examinations in Walkerton was a married man, 32 years of age.

Miss Gibson, formerly lady superintendent of the Galt General Hospital, has gone to Perth, Scotland, where in future she will reside.

David Purvis, of Puce, had eight head of thoroughbred cattle stolen from his farm Thursday night. There is no clue to the thieves.

Word has been received that Father Wagner, of St. Alphonsus' Church, Windsor, who died in Alaska for the benefit of his health, is much improved, and that no immediate fears are entertained of his death.

A letter has been received from Lord Aberdeen's secretary, stating that his Excellency would be pleased to visit Brantford and open the Agricultural Fair of the Six Nations Indians on Oct. 1.

The corner stone of the new church, which the congregation of Christ Church, Listowel, is erecting on their fine site, will be laid by his Lordship the Bishop of Huron on Tuesday, Aug. 4.

Referring to the mysterious disappearance of Walton Smith, the adopted son of Mr. A. Smith, con. 9, Mersey, who comes from Glenwood, the boy is alive and well and in the employ of Samuel Cooper, Port Alma.

On Thursday, at the residence of the bride's father, Miss Maggie, daughter of Mr. Wm. Simson, Ridley, was united in marriage Mr. Wm. T. Street, of Palmyra. Very handsome presents were received. Mr. and Mrs. Street will reside on the Street homestead at Palmyra.

Fatal results are anticipated in the case of the deaf mute, Leguille, struck by an Erie and Huron train Monday morning. The injured lad has been removed to his home, down near the Eau. He is only 17 years of age, and recently came up from Belleville Institute, where he was a pupil.

Mr. James Burnett, Mitchell, narrowly escaped death on Wednesday. He was ripping up a piece of rock with a circular saw in the Mitchell plant, when a strip flew back and struck him upon the chest. For some time his injuries were thought to be fatal, but he rallied, and is now doing nicely.

Essex town has decided to hold its civic holiday on the same date as Windsor's, Aug. 12. Under the terms of that town will join the Windsor brethren in an excursion to Put-In-Bay on the steamer City of Detroit.

After the confirmation services held in the Ridgeway Roman Catholic Church on Thursday, by Bishop O'Connor, members of the congregation waited on and urged the bishop to have a resident priest sent there. His lordship complied with their views, and will carry out their wish. It can be shown that a priest can be supported there.

While steel rails were being unloaded from the ship, power Porter at Point Edward Saturday morning, one of the pulleys about 30 feet from the deck broke loose, and descending with great force, struck Benjamin Volney on the shoulder, knocking him down and smashing his foot. An inch nearer and he would have been struck in the head and killed.

The death of A. Sample, aged 64, occurred on Monday night at Ridgeway. Mr. Sample came to Canada from England in 1857, settling in Brantford, moving to Ridgeway from Tilsonburg in 1877. He leaves three daughters, Mrs. Charles Latta, Mrs. Robert and Mrs. Ebbelouse, of Brantford. Mr. Sample was a member of the C. O. F. and one of the original 540 who seceded from the Independent order.

The Bothwell oil fields are pleasing the most sanguine of interested parties. On Thursday the Detroit Oil Company's well on the Allen farm struck a second show of oil, and the fluid rose 110 feet in the well. They started pumping Friday. The Walker well is still pumping. Two more drilling rigs have reached the fields.

John Ramsey alias Wentworth, was arraigned before Judge Bell in Chatham Saturday afternoon on a charge of stealing $200 from an Orford farmer named Bateman and pleaded guilty. Ramsey is believed to have a bad criminal record, and is also thought to have something to do with the Bothwell burglary. He was remanded for sentence, and by the meantime inquiries will be made for his record.

The town of Blenheim is much worked up over a most disagreeable affair, both plaintiff and defendant being prominent members of one of the leading churches. The facts are that Mrs. W. Burse, wife of Mr. Burse, of the Campbell-Rutherford mills, received a letter some time ago, in which very disrespectful statements were made. She suspected Mrs. M. Irwin, and a suit for criminal libel is the result. The police magistrate thought the case of sufficient importance to have it tried at the fall assizes.

The corner stone of the new Knox Church, Woodstock, was laid Thursday afternoon in the presence of a vast assemblage of townspeople. The ceremony was performed by Mrs. (Dr.) McMullen, wife of the pastor. A silver trowel was presented to her by Dr. McMullen, chairman of the plans committee, and Rev. Mr. McMullen replied on behalf of the recipient. The corner stone of the Sunday school building was laid by Miss Eva Hunter, daughter of H. D. Hunter, principal of the Collegiate Institute. Mr. C. C. Eber, and replied in her behalf. The church will cost over $45,000.

Railway Accidents.

Fatal Results of the Trainmen's Blunder.

Two Old People Killed at a Crossing and Their Grandchild Seriously Injured.

Clinton, Ill., Aug. 3.—Through the carelessness of trainmen a frightful wreck occurred on the curve just east of Hirkbeck, a small station on the Illinois Central, five miles north-east of Clinton, Saturday afternoon. Passenger train No. 504, going south, and passenger train No. 501, going north, collided while going at full speed. The killed are Charles Burchough, engineer, Clinton, Ill.; Wm. Baker, mail agent, Springfield. The injured are Miss Rosa Baker, Chestnut; N. W. Davis, baggage man; Thos. C. Dukes, baggage man; Walter Evans, engineer; Jack Lovell, fireman; Louis Martin, baggage man; Kankakee; J. T. Naylor, baggage man; E. D. Peckens, conductor; Shuman Swartwood, engineer.

Both engines are a complete wreck, one mail car was reduced to splinters, and the other mail car and both baggage cars are badly damaged. The trains were running 35 miles an hour. Engineer Burchough leaves a widow and three small children. He was a man of iron nerve, and when advised that his wife was fatally injured, he said, "No, I will stick to her till the last," and he did. He had been in many collisions, and was in the Clatsworth, Ill., wreck.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 3.—A carriage containing Mr. and Mrs. Willard Mastick and their 6-year-old granddaughter, Mabel Lavigne, was struck by a train at Smith's Crossing Saturday night. Mr. Mastick was instantly killed. Mrs. Mastick died soon after being brought to Plattsburg, and there are only slight hopes of the child's recovery.

THE VANDERBILT-WILSON WEDDING.

New York, Aug. 3.—The world says: "The wedding of Cornelius Vanderbilt, jun., and Miss Grace Wilson has been fixed for Friday at the Wilson home, on Fifth avenue. Frank Cook, of Boston, a classmate of Mr. Vanderbilt at Yale, will act as best man. Miss Wilson will be unattended."

IT IS IN THE AIR.

London People Talk About It.

It is in the air. Can't stop its spreading. Can't keep down a good thing. People who don't know about it want to know.

People who know want to tell about it. It is kidney education. London people are learning fast. Learning by experience from their neighbors.

It is what we say and what they say. We say backache means kidney ache. They say Doan's Kidney Pills cure it. We say lame and weak back means weak kidneys.

They say Doan's Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong. Here is a proof of it. Take the case of Mr. Edward Marshall, a retired farmer, living at 832 Dundas street, London, who says:

"I have taken one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they have cured me. They have accomplished the purpose for which I took them. I have no hesitancy in saying that Doan's Kidney Pills are a grand medicine for all ailments of the kidneys and bladder, and I am able to say from my own experience that I have never taken a medicine productive of such good results in so short a time."

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Scothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless your physician knows of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.
