As Soft as

Eiderdown That's a common expression. To clean an eiderdown quilt and retain the softness and the fluffiness is a delicate task. We are prepared to do it and do it well. We can give a quilt much of the lightness and delicate softness which make it so designable.

John Nutkins and E. Parnell, asking that they be disqualified on the ground that last year's council, of which they were members, neglected to provide for the sinking fund. The action is regarded merely as a bluff, and it is not likely the cases will come into court. A writ against Ald. Brener, charging that he is an alien, has also been issued. The preliminary examination in the quo warranto proceedings against Ald. Powell was conducted yesterday, and the case will be argued in Toronto Thursday.

'The Grand Vizier." Thomas Q. Seabrooke was the magnet that drew a large audience to the Grand last night. His hit in the "Isle of Champagne" last year aroused expectations of something first-class, and they were reasonably justified by "The Grand Vizier," his latest success. It is hardly equal to the "Isle of Cham-pagne," but Seabrooke is as funny as ever, and he is the whole show in him-self. He has a quiet comicality, a serious way of saying droll things, and a reposeful manner that are more effective than the boisterous, effervescent and often overdone methods of many in his line. "The Grand Vizier," like most American comic operas, so-called, is a bundle of laughable nonsense tied by a slender thread of a plot, with some light music thrown in to give the chorus an excuse for appearing. The airs, though reminiscent, are tuneful and pleasing, and two or three solos and quartets won deserved encores. Seabrooke was ably assisted by Irene Murphy, who has a clear soprano voice and charming presence. The scenery is appropriate and beautiful, and the wardrobe effects, including the bifur-cated skirts, are handsome and origi-

The whole performance was heartily enjoyed by all.

The Dairymen's Convention. The Western Dairymen's Association will hold three district conventions this week—on Tuesday at Strathroy, Wednesday at St. Thomas, and Thursday at Simcoe. Among those who are expected to address the meetings are Hon. Thomas Ballantyne, Stratford; J. H. Monrad, Illinois; Prof. Dean, O. A. C., Guelph; Prof. Harcourt, Andrew Pattullo, Woodstock; J. S. Pearce and J. W. Wheaton, London. These local gatherings are held in those sections chiefly where it is difficult for the larger number of farmers to attend the annual convention. They have been attended with much success since the association has taken up this work, and the prospects for a successful series this year are very favorable. Mr. J. H. Monrad, who comes from Illinois, will addresss these meetings as well as those to be held in the north next week at Kincardine, Harriston, Flesherton and Newmarket. Mr. Monrad, who is a native of Denmark, has been intimately connected with dairy work for a number of years. His writings are looked upon as authorities upon all phases of practical dairying. He for-merly published the Dairy Messenger, a journal issued quarterly. Copies of this are now being sold as a sort of text book on dairying. In January Mr. Monrad retired from the editorship of the National Dairyman, published in Kansas City, and will make his first appearance in Canada at Strathroy on Feb. 19. It is hoped that every farmer and dairyman who can do so will avail himself of the opportunity of hearing Mr.

Monrad at some of these places. Everywhere and always analyses prove Dr. Price's Baking Powder absolutely pure. GALLANT MARINERS.

Praise for the Captain and Crew of the Teutonic-An Heroic Deed. The rescue of the crew of the Josie Reeves by the men of the Teutonic in the cold gale of Friday deserves recognition, even in the shadow of such disasters as the Eibe's. It was done in a wind of hurricane force, sharpened by a temperature that made ice the moment it came to rest. Owing to the thickness of the storm the Teutonic could not undertake to cross the bar, and while waiting for better weather she drifted down opposite Long Beach. where she met the schooner Josie Reeves, with nine men. We doubt if men ever voluntarily entered a small boat under more terrible conditions than confronted the four sailors and the fourth officer of the Tentonic who set out to the helpless schooner. It was almost cold enough for the lashings of the sea to be frozen white as fast as they formed. A man might as well have fallen into the Teutonic's furnace as to have gone overboard out of that boat; Death would have been as certain and almost as quick. But the boat was put off, and after an hour's desperate effort, in which the men's sufferings can perhaps be imagined, the attempt to board the schooner had to be abandoned, and luckily the boat got back to the steamer again. Then Capt. Cameron boldly took the steamer straight up to the poor schooner, so as to give her a momentary shelter under the Teutonic's great sides, and in that interval the schooner's crew managed to launch their own boats and get safe on board the Teutonic. It was an episode of heroism amid awful surroundings. Great credit is due Capt. Cameron for the handling of his men and his ship. and as for that special boat's crew we raise our beavers high. - [New York Sun,
