She greeted Max with the lady-like courtesy which always characterized her; but she was deeply moved when Agnes told her that he was the brave hero who had saved her life so long ago. The young man spent a half-hour very pleasantly with them, growing to feel the charm of Agnes Walton's beauty and loveliness more and more; and finally when he rose to leave he begged finally, when he rose to leave, he begged permission to bring his mother to make their acquaintance

Both Agnes and her mother expressed the pleasure which they would experience in knowing Mrs. Remington.

Agnes, particularly, was delighted with the prospect. She had never forgotten the beautiful woman who had kissed her to tenderly when, after her narrow estate the control of the cape years before, she had lain so weak and faint upon the station platform. Many, many times she had thought of her. She had often dreamed of her of her. She had often dreamed of her and seemed to feel over again in those visions, the impress of her quivering lips, and to hear those tremulous, fer-vent words, "God bless you, my dear. with his adventure, his heart glowing with happiness, his face shining. He had found her—the beautiful girlwith those eyes of blue and that voice of music; that had haunted both his waking and sleeping hours ever since that recrains when she had so deftly that morning when she had so deftly bound up Mr. Archibald's wound with her own dainty handkerchief, She seemed even more beautiful to him

"Have you forgotten that almost tragedy at Elgin, nine years ago?" Max

How Max's heart leaped at those words, "your Agnes Walton!" and it came to him suddenly that he should only know complete happiness when he could claim possession of the beautiful girl. She was his ideal of what a sweet, true woman shoud be, just such a woman he would like to win for a wife, and he knew that already he loved her.

"The very same," was his reply to his mother's questions. Then he related the occurence of the afternoon, to the details of which Laura Pomeroy eagerly listenthough her heart was racked with hate and bitterness, for it was easy to perceive, by Max's earnest, thrilling tones, how he had been affected by the recent interview.

countenance, a more symmetrical and graceful figure, a more fasciating manner, than those possessed by the young girl whom he had taken into his carriage THE ASSOCIATION with Max Remington.

He had seen at a glance, however, that girl, although her neat and becoming street attire fitted her as exquisitely as if it had been made by the most fashionable dressmaker of Chicago, and her dainty brown hat, with its cluster of holly leaves and bright red berries, could not have cost a five collar note.

SEISMIC PHENOMENA

Suggestions Which May Lead to Fruitful Investigations.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

One of the most disastrous earthquakes of recent times is that reported from Russian Transcaucasia. towns of Shamaka has been practically destroyed, only a dezen houses being left standing, while a population of 25,000 has been rendered homeless. The number of fatalities is as yet unknown. Perhaps it will never be correctly de-termined, for the fissured earth swallowed up some of the victims, and others are buried in ruins where they may never be disturbed. Over 300 bodies had been recovered at the latest accounts. To the student of seismic phenomena the interesting and suggestive feature in the Shamaka earthquake is that it has occurred in the neighborhood of the Baku oil district-the most productive field in the world, not excepting that of Beaumont in Texas. It is furthermore, a section of the world which has hitherto been exempt from these phenomena. The scientific inquirer will naturally search for a cause, for cause and effect must go together in the scientific analysis of all reservoir tapped by the oil walls of Baku, on the shores of the Caspin Sea, located under the site of Shama-ka, and has the tremendous drain of mineral oil from the same caused a void and a subsequent shrinkage in the earth's crust in that neighborhood? The inquiry is not far-fetched. It is usually issumed that water takes the place of the oil withdrawn from the measures, filling the vacuum created by the latter's withdrawal, but if the water, being more tenuous, should find an independent vent elsewhere, the vacuum created by the draining of the mineral oil would remain, and a shrinkage of the unsupported crust of the earth would naturally follow sooner or later. It has been suggested that the tapping of the oil measures in the southern part of this state has relieved the mineral oil-bearing formations from sure, and thus removed one of the supposed causes of earthquakes in that section. There may be nothing in the theory, but it has been observed that the Los Angeles district has been notably exempt from seismic disturbances since the oil measures were tapped and vent given to the gases generated in them. Likewise, the theory that the Shamaka earthquake was due

Discusses the Question of Rural School Consolidation—Officers Chosen.

Toronto, April 2 .- At the trustees' section of the Ontario Educational Association this morning consolidation of rural schools was discussed, the general feeling being very strongly in favor of it, and of use being made of provisions of the act. The inspectors discussed the authorization of text books, objecting to authorization in advance and favoring competition with selections by a committee of experts appointed by the department and acting in conjunction with the inspectors. At the conclusion of their morning sessions the various sections elected their officers as follows: Inspectors' Department President, Robert Park, of Chatham; secretary,

A Funny Language.

Lovers of the writings of Robert Louis Stevenson will be interest-ed to see an article on the Samoa of his day by his step-daughter, Mrs. Strong, in the March Century, from which we take this odd bot: The native dictionary is interesting in the light it casts upon the Samoan character. I find "an impossibility, such as an old man getting a young wife." Another word means "to beg de-liriously for fish hooks." "Unwelcome" is given "such as a visiting party that is accompanied by neither a handsome man nor a pretty maid." The definition of "widow" or "widower" is synon-ymous with detached shell-fish.

There are also definitions that show considerable thought and irony. "Meanness," for instance, can go no further than "to climb out on your own breadfruit tree to steal your neighbor's breadfruit." Faapuatama, like a trumpet blown by wild lads-blown anyhow and at all times; so conduct without consideration. Popoga, to look owleyed, as a person staring when food or property is being delivered. "Good brown earth" describes an honest, un-pretending man. To show how difficult the language is for the stranger, I may say that the little word ta means I, we two, to beat with a stick, to play on musical instrument, to reprove, to tattoo, to open a vein, to bail a cannon , to wash clothing by beating, and to turn a somersault.

Cigarette Smokers Barred!

[Indianapolis News.]

The Sante Fe has issued an order that no one addicted to the use of cigarettes shall be given employment by that company, and a number of cigarette smokers working for the company have been dismissed.

The crusade against cigarettes has not yet formally reached the Indianapolis roads, but is being quietly en-forced on some of them. At present the rule against cigarettes is applied principally in the clerical departments, and a number of clerks who have been let out in order "to reduce expenses" are not aware that they were dismissed because they smoked cigarettes. And many applicants failed to get positions for the same reason.

Every applicant has to pass a written examination, and in addition to that his personal habits are investigated. An occasional drink is generally overlooked, but if it is found that he is in the habit of smoking cigarettes there is no chance for him. The rule against cigarettes on some of the local roads is applied also to appli-cants for positions in the train service, though there is nothing in the blank application that announces the fact. Most of the railroad officers, however, are determined that the employes shall not be cigarette fiends, and it is under-

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New York, April 3.—The National League trouble is practically ended. A. G. Spalding resigned his claim to be chief executive of the organization, and the office will be tendered to William G. Temple, of Pittsburg. There will be no further contest in the courts. Mr. Spalding's letter of resignation, presented at the second day's session of the conference, is as follows:

"Gentlemen,—In accepting the presidency of the National League, to which office I was informed last December I had been duly elected, I promulgated the following platform as the policy of my administration: To promote, foster, elevate and perpetuate the game of baseball, the national field sport of America; to eliminate all objectionable features that may tend to degrade and demoralize that sport; to incuicate in the governors that may tend to degrade and demoralize that sport; to inculcate in the governors of the game, club officials, umpires, play-ers, and everyone interested in or con-nected with the national sport, a realizanected with the hational sport, a realization of what true sportsmanship is, and to subordinate the financial side of the game; to cultivate among the players a desire for the highest athletic development, that they may by their skillfulness, integrity and gentlemanly deportment, both on and off the field, raise their profession to a high plane and add luster and interest to the national game; to es-tablish a central governing body, in which all professional baseball interests shall be properly represented, this body to be clothed with ample power to carry into effect these and other objects that tend to maintain the integrity and high stand-ard of the game. Conditions have arisen which in my opinion make it impossible at this time to carry out all the prin-ciples embodied in the above platform, and as no compromise or modification of these principles will be satisfactory to me, I have decided to discontinue further efforts in this direction, and hereby tender my resignation as president of the National League, and respectfully ask that it be accepted without delay. I wish to amphatically declare "that I am that it be accepted without delay. I wish to emphatically declare "that I am prompted in this action solely by the belief that prolonging a factional, political warfare into the playing season would be distasteful to the public, injurious to the National League in particular and to professional baseball in general. Respectfully (Signed) A. G. Spalding." SPALDING'S SUCCESSOR.

While Mr. Temple has not been formally elected to the league's chief executive office, it was unanimously decided to offer him the place.

The league decided to establish its permanent headquarters in New York. It also decided to make the offices of president president, Miss Curzon, of Toronto; secretary-treasurer, E. L. Hill, of Guelph.
