83,000 Swazis in Africa Are Added Peacefully to Empire.

Pretoria, July 28. - Once more a kingdom built up by a black race is to bow before the irresistible advance of the white man. Swaziland will soon be but little more than a name, around which many curious stories will cluster. The pioneers of the old days will still tell of the horrible ceremony of the Killing of the Black Bull, which blooded the warriors for war, and of the great impis which assembled in the decided to write Manager Carr and re-quest him to run cars at least one hour the might of the Swazis, like that of tater during reunion week.

It is not so many years ago that Swaziland was a land of outlaws. Its lecay dates back from 1884, when gold the curse of South Africa, according to the Boers-was found at Pigg's Peak and Forbes' Reef. Then came an irrush of whites, and prospecting was begun in a slip-shod fashion. But conession-hunting was the main sport. Umbandine, careless of the future and needing money to gratify the new tastes he had learnt from the whites, sold any right that could be suggested to him. No country in the world has granted so many concessions nonopolies as Swaziland. Everything that the ingenuity of man could think of became a concession. A genius namto make treaties with foreign powers!" There was a concession "of the exclusive right to generate and use steam as a motive power." There were monopolies of "sanitation," of "advertisement rights," of timber and tanning, of auction marts and refreshment bars; there were exclusive rights to "sell jewelry and erect grand stands," to build bridges, and trade in soap and candies, to treat tailings and dip sheep; to sell licenses and to act as pawnbrokers. It is difficult to think of a business which was not covered by a concession. Indeed, one of the late comers, at a less to discover something for a con ession, was driven to obtain one "for all concessions not granted to any one else," and another secured the sole exclusive right of granting all future
