

ABSOLUTE PROHIBITION NOT TEMPERANCE, IS CRY

Problem Plainly Discussed At Mass Meeting in Ridout
Street Church.

BATTLE CRY GIVEN

Speakers Anticipate An Early
Opening of Severe Bitter Fight.

Warning their hearers that the coming fight between prohibition forces would be getting bitter and severe, Rev. W. E. Millson, president of the London Methodist Conference, and W. H. Moorhouse, told a mass meeting in the Ridout Street Methodist Church Sunday afternoon that no stone should be left unturned to defeat members of the Moderation League.

"It is not a question of government control of liquor," said Mr. Millson. "It is absolutely impossible to control the liquor business. It is a question of government sale. It is a question of the people want to go into partnership with the government for the sale of liquor."

"We are not talking temperance, we're after absolute prohibition of the liquor business. You cannot control a wicked thing with moderation. It. Don't be afraid to talk of it to your friends in office of factory."

"The moderationists were glad to hear a man high in church circles state 'What we want is moderation.' It will tickle them half to pieces. But is the advance we have made been by moderationists?"

Referring to the present trend of the times, Mr. Millson praised Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain for the rum trade between Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Moorhouse predicted a vote in the liquor question in the future, and declared it would be a calamity if the O.T.A. was defeated. Quebec had made four million dollars revenue from liquor in the last year, and had spent thirty million, as well as having much crime and misery and broken homes.

NEW ST. JAMES'.

"God's Love of the Commonwealth" was the subject of an excellent sermon preached in New St. James' Presbyterian Church last night by Rev. James Mackay. The sermon was from Second Kings, fourth chapter, second verse, arising from the story of a widow who was in debt, the preacher showed how foolish it is for people to have God into their lives and ask for His help.

The widow was in debt, the bondsman was like to take her taken in, and in her distress she appealed to Elisha and told him she had nothing in the house but a pot of oil. The story showed how foolish it is for people to have God into their lives and ask for His help.

People often help themselves when there was no occasion for it, said the speaker. He said that the widow troubles half way, and that was what the widow did.

Men only looked upon themselves as destitute when they forgot God. Without God, the richest man was poor, and with God the poorest man was rich.

"God can take a very little thing and use it for His glory and our good," declared Mr. Mackay. "The woman thought of nothing of the pot of oil, but it became the salvation of her sons and home. The disciples in the wilderness fed 500 people. Though they had only a few loaves and fishes were nothing, in Christ's hands they became a great storehouse."

"We may have but one talent, yet one talent in God's hands becomes a mighty force. Before God will use the commonplace, it must be completely yielded to Him. His command to the woman was to pour the pot of oil into all the empty vessels she had. She began to pour the oil and it began to multiply."

ST. JAMES' ANGLICAN.

At the evening service at St. James, Rev. Leslie Armistead spoke on the Ascension. He stated the ascension was the close of the gospel story which was the story of the life of Christ. His birth in Bethlehem was not the beginning, neither was the ascension the end. The future church was to be built on that other land where He ever liveth to make intercession for us.

MOTORIST MISSES LOSING HIS CAR

But Detroit Is Assessed $200
For Having Car on Route.

COMPANION SOBER

A motor accident at 1 o'clock Saturday at Rectory and Dundas streets drew to the attention of Constable Knight to the car of Albert Marr, of Detroit, Mich. Investigation of the auto showed two bottles of gin and a glass, which resulted in a $200 fine or three months in jail for the Michigan man when he appeared in court Saturday.

Marr and a London friend who had been in the car told of a strange man who had driven for a mile east when they left the Homestead Club. He disappeared after the accident and the defendants assumed that he had placed the gin in the car. One bottle was found under the back seat, the second on the floor of the front seat, while the glass was in a sash pocket of the rear door.

Marr explained he did not know how the gin got in his car. The glass was kept in the car for his wife's convenience.

Marr denied having anything to drink, as stated by the constable. He just came over from Detroit yesterday to visit friends.

His companion, who was perfectly sober, was also charged with having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling, but the case against him was dismissed.

This was the first case before Magistrate Graydon under the O. T. A. amendment which states that any car in which liquor is illegally found may be confiscated. Mr. Graydon told reporters after court that there would be no confiscation in this particular case.

UNEMPLOYMENT AIDED BY SUMMER SEASON

Demand For Vacation Hotel
Help Increases—Farm Laborers Wanted.

Summer hotels and summer resorts that are opening their doors to vacationists are helping to clear up unemployment situation. There is now a fairly general demand for help and domestics. Such is shown by the summary of the week's activities in the employment services in Ontario received by J. C. Spencer, superintendent of the employment service of Canada.

There is still some call for farm laborers. The industrial situation is quiet, and building trades are not active.

In London, most of the work offered at present is for short terms. The cold weather here, as elsewhere in Ontario, has had a dampening effect on new work being started.

PRISONERS TOO DRUNK TO APPEAR IN COURT

High Constable Reunites Family,
But Efforts Not Appreciated.

High Constable Wharton re-united a family this morning, but it was hardly appreciated. The constable visited a home on Langarth street in which a family of five was living. He arrested Mike Flannigan and Mrs. Margaret Haines. The latter's son is already in jail for a long term.

Although Magistrate Hawkeham was present at the courthouse this morning and ready to dispose of the case, the prisoners were too drunk to appear, and will not come up till tomorrow for trial. Flannigan is charged with being disorderly and Mrs. Haines with vagrancy.

Two men who had been in the house made their escape while the high constable was on his way from the courthouse. There were a number of empty rubbing alcohol bottles strewn around the premises, the constable stated.

PLAYGROUND IS PROVIDED FOR ALL CHILDREN IN BLOCK

On the south side of Erie avenue is what is generally claimed to be the only community playground in the city. Here one can see some flower gardens belonging to the worthy citizens who inhabit this part of London entirely without any separating fences and all in one long play-ground, in which the children of this street can roam at will.

The mayor, who is one of the householders on this street, declares that he is not the author of the idea but at the same time is one of its most enthusiastic supporters.

"It's the first thing in the world," he says. "We just have this one big garden, and all the children can play there, and they have the whole place to run around in. It's the logical thing to do, when there is no playground near, and I think the people of the south side of Erie avenue, the founders of the first community playground in London, are to be congratulated. There should be one in every block in the city and, if you care to see one, go to the city hall and see the plans for the first centers in every district in the city before long."

Miss Berlo Explains Many Difficulties of Indoor High Diving.

COMES TO LOEW'S

Remarks On Splendid Reception Troupe Has Received in Canada.

Miss Berlo, who with her diving girls is the star attraction at Loew's Theatre this week, looked rather out of place this morning as she stood beside the great square tank in which the diving takes place. A very chic young woman, daintily gowned, perfectly groomed, slim and straight, and with the sunniest little curls peeking out from the shadow of her hat, she seemed just a schoolgirl playing truant from her class for a few minutes and seeing what the rest of the much older and much more staid world was doing.

"What wonderful parklike streets you have in London," said Miss Berlo, leaving the stage door with the rest of the much older and much more staid world was doing.

"Have the audiences been cold?" asked The Advertiser, perhaps flippantly.
