While La Rose has cut a number of eins of spiendid appearance in diamond rill holes in Porcupine, which it has nder option, they have not, the North-Miner understands, produced any hing but low gold values. Directors of the Keeley silver mine tave decided to take immediate steps a increase the capacity of the mill rom 69 tons daily to 125 tons. Hamilton B. Wills, the president of the comton B. Wills, the president of the com-pany, said that having received some inquirtes as to a June dividend, he wished to say that there would be no such dividend payment, as the directors had decided to pay dividends semi-annually, in deference to the wishes of English shareholders, who are used to that form of payment that form of payment.

Underground development throughout the two large gold camps are officially reported as meeting with results totally exceeding all expectations, but none exceeding all expectations, but none have made more improvement in physical position than has Vipond Consolidated, which, during the past three months, has put a considerable tonnage of new ore, strictly high-grade, into sight at depth. The developments along the 400-foot level have been marvelous, inasmuch as two ore bodies, each ranging nearly 200 feet in length, have been opened up during this short period. The ened up during this short period feeling continues to grow that the Holinger vein system traverses a considerable portion of the Vipond's 120-acre Vipond's 120-acre roperty, and, with the milling plant xpected to again be in operation with-n the next lew months, the Vipond nine apparently is showing as steady xpansion as any, of the large mines

The reports coming from outlying sections of Porcunine—southwest of Hollinger, on the Hayden mine—are causing considerable attention by large nining interests, while to the south of the Dome, on Premier-Paymaster and United Mineral lands, apparently an entirely new vein system of ore is steadily being revealed. These three properties are reliably reported by engineers as likely to develop into producers of a size to make the almost and the producers of a size to make the almost and the producers. fucers of a size to make the already roven three larger mines hustle t

Variety, the "spice of life," is to be found a-plenty in "Rarebits," by Rex, who makes his bow as a paragrapher through the daily editorial page of The Advertiser, Rhyme, reason, sense, nonsense, comment, ironical, humorous, or wise on the daily news, and doings of politicians and others, find a place in nicely-measured proportions in the recipe for "Rarebit" evolved by Rex.

The "Rarebits" of Rex are piquant, appetizing and rarer still in a "Rarebit," easy to digest.

What a long procession of twins! They have been coming for weeks and weeks, those funny twins of the Moyer cartoons, and still their variety is seemingly infinite. Every day reveals a new pair in ludicrous situation.

Like Rex, the artist finds much of his inspiration in the world's happenings. Seizing upon the unusual angles of the news, he plays these up in mirth-provoking manner. The overturning of a government or the fact that a hen has been discovered laying eggs up a tree are indiscriminately immortalized in "Dibs and Dabs." They are material from which laughs are made through attention bestowed upon them by the versatila Moyer.

So far as Advertiser readers are concerned, Moyer is "Home Again." Several years ago, he was associated with the editorial staff as a reporter. But he had such a gift for drawing, and so humorous a twist that he eventually forsook the typewriter and went away to seek his fortunes in other fields. His reappearance, stronger and wittier than ever, has been hailed with delight by numbers of old Western Ontario friends.
