Mr. Fader's dredger as an aid to the construction of this im-portant line of railway is one which must commend itself to shrewd and intelligent financiers. It is well known that the ordinary aid given by the government to railways of far less importance than the one under consideration is an absolute money subsidy of $3,200 per mile of road. This in the case of the proposed Crow's Nest Pass railway would amount to $640,000. Instead of giving this sum, the government's proposal was to make a loan to the railway company of $4,000,000 for 20 years at the interest of 314 per cent. per annum. It is probable that the company on its own credity could not raise the money-taking the price of issue and Rome to the Chronicle says: The report
