"You was in the nick of time, Sir, to prevent that young party from chucking herself away. I was watching her myself, but wasa't so near sa you," said a policeman of the 'S' division, emerging from the furze bushes. "I've seen her here twice before in the early moratug."

"Do you knew her?" I asked.

"No. Sir; I don't think she lives hereabauts, and I don't fancy she's a lady." Meditatively, "She hasn't got no locket, no feather."

My apinion was the reverse.

"Keep a lookout near the pool, then, my man; you understand," said I, slipping half a crown into his hand.

"Thank you, Sir; I'll keep my weather eye open. A nod's as good as a wink to a blind horse."

Because uric sold in the blood causes most human aliments is why Warner's safe cure restores to health so many people suffering from so many apparently different diseases. It neutralizes and removes the uric said.

"Thank you, Sir, I'll keep my weather eye open, A nod's as good as a wink to a liked horse."

For days after this adventure that girls pathetic voice rang in my ears—her beautistic dark ages seemed eaves before me. When I slept I dreamed she had thrown herself ign the pool and I was powerless to save her life.

It chanced at this time that L-thad to call at my surgical instrument maker's, in the Strand. A block of vehicles having cocurred in that crowded theroughters.
