Shows Remarkable Restorative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Chesley, Ont.—"Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had terrible pains in my sides and was not regular. Finally I got so weak I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest half way up the steps. I tried two doctors but they did me no good. I saw your medicine advertised in the newspapers and thought I would give it a trial. I took four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and was restored to health. I am married, am the mother of two children, and do all my housework, milk eight cows, and do a hired man's work and enjoy the best of health. I also found Vegetable Compound a great help for weak back before my babies were born. I recommend it to all my friends may print this letter if you wish."Mrs. Henry Janke, R. R. No. 4, Chesley, Ontario.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contra-diction that this grand old medicine has her. She dreaded to hear what they relieved more suffering among women would say. After the way her nextrelieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

We may as well speak," she said, since we're to live next to each other for a week.

Now, Henrietta Hen couldn't help peing puzzled. But whoever might win the first prize, she was sure it couldn't be she. Hadn't her neighbors on either side of her the same as told her that she couldn't win?

Henrietta would have felt quite glum except that she couldn't very we'l mope in the midst of the terrific racket all about her/ Soon her neighbors—both No. 1 and No. 2—were having loud disputes with the hens in the pens on the further side of them. It seemed as if every hen at the fair had left her man-"Goodness!" Henrietta Hen murmurwho are in need of medicine, and you ed to herself. "If there's a prize it may print this letter if you wish."— must be for the one that make the most women and children crowded into the poultry hall. They paused before the pens and looked at the occupants, making remarks that were sometimes full of praise and sometimes slighting.

Henrietta Hen felt terribly uneasy door neighbor had talked to her she didn't believe anybody could have a word of praise for her.

She soon heard all sorts of remarks about herself. Some said she was too about herself. Some said she was too little and some said she was too big; others exclaimed that her legs were too short, while still others declared that they were too long! As these—and many similar—comments fell upon Henritta's ears she promptly decided that there wasn't anything about her that was as it should be.

Having always called herself (before she left home) a "speckled beauty," she began to feel very low in her mind. And there was only one thing that kept her from being downright sad. All | the sightseers agreed that she had some pretty chicks.

Henrietta couldn't help wishing that they had a different mother—one vas worthy of them.

PARIS (By Mail.)-Two important eatures indicate the extreme newness of this blue serge dress. The draped waistline, drawn into the figure by the jet cabochon at the side, where the back of the bodice is brought around to the side front for fastening. And the transparent sleeves, colorful with delicate embroidery tracings in soft rose and silver. Note, too, the cut of the sleeves, which, though fitted at the armhole, flare out gradually into quite a circular shape at the wrist, which is emphasized by the deep band of rose chiffon. The hem is fashionably irreg-ular, broken by the funnel-shaped panel

Not a gown is this for the small woman, and not a gown for the kind of hard service usually demanded of a blue serge dress, but I include it for
