We breathe it not-we breathe it not,

What once was whisper'd round.

There was a time, which every tongue

In fordnes -lov'd to swed. That treasured name, and music sung

'Tis à forbidden s und,

No meaure hall so well

A light came dancing to the eve.

That name could ave impart.

Now-on'y 'nesth the starry skies,

We tell it to the evening wind,

I hat passes swittly by, It even seems to leave b hind The mu, mur of a sign.

We lov'd in other cays, But a dom in our reads, to shun The cold, and careless gaze.

They couple many a slanderous word

And off our aching ears have heald. The burning words of blame.

And we for years have never breath'd

Tast old familiar sound.
 But ake percent of flowers environmented,
 It cangs our heart strings round.

" WHY DON'T YOU TAKE THE
