

While modern science and technology is certainly no panacea for contemporary problems, neither is it the sinister Frankenstein implied by romantic environmentalists. The notion of security is fundamentally conservative, in the sense of preserving and/or restoring the status quo of a society. In this project, the application of non-traditional security approaches can be crucial.