The Single Market Program

The mid-1980s proved to be years of building the Single Market. Finally, from the efforts to complete the work that had begun in 1986 since the ECIS was established, came the desire to set to increasing competition from the United States, Japan and other industrialized nations such as South Korea, Hong Kong and China. The Single Market in the USA, the proposed framework for this revival, it improves the decision-making process by streamlining the process, it provides incentives to
