

No more her years are checkered joy and pain,
Her hands no longer work the silenced loom,
But still does memory of her remain
Amid the shadows of her quiet room.