

of the Indus, has the same features and appearances, and will, therefore, require no further description. Having now returned to Scinde, my next will be the concluding Chapter, and contain a brief history of the events, in this country, under Sir Charles Napier.