HOW A LOCAL BANK HAS BUILT UP ITS OWN TOWN AND COUNTY

Other Interesting Things About Our System of Banking.

The World returns to the banking question. Our piece de resistance to-day is the remarkable corroborative evidence that the town of Oshawa affords of the contention of the banker from Sleepy Eye, Minn., that local banks are more likely to be in living and direct touch with the industries and citizens of their town and the farmers of their neighborhood than branch banks. To give detailed evidence we cannot, without divulging the relation between bank and customer; but we refer him to visit Oshawa. It is easy to sneer at the man from Sleepy Eye-it is harder to answer his claims.

lieve we can show, wherein the Canadian system can be improved, and the criticism of the Sleepy Eye man in a measure justified. But the question is not yet ex-

I desire to call your attention in a particular sense to the town of Oshawa, because I believe a special study of business matters here will throw some light approximation under consideration. upon the question under consideration by yeu. Oshawa is and has been for many years a prosperous manufactur-ing centre. Thru the years of depres-sion she held her own a little better than any other town of similar size in Canada. To-day she has every prospect of substantial advancement. We are located, in a geographical sense, not very favorably for business, several miles from a poor harbor; only one line of railway, and no water power nor any other natural advantage from a business standpoint. Yet we are prosperous, progressive and hopeful. The reason for our somewhat happy state is not far to seek. We are not hampered by the branch bank, altho possessing one. The head office of the Western Bank is located here, and to this one simple fact I claim we owe our present status as a progressive town. There are as a progressive town. There are factories here to-day employing hund-reds of men that could not get a sat-isfactory line of credit from a branch bank that would enable them to cope with their business; yet, when fin-anced for a short time by our local bank the results to the manufacturanced for a short time by our local bank, the results to the manufacturers, and Indirectly to the business men of this town, were quite startling. If you think it worth while to send a representative to Oshawa I will undertake to produce the facts which induce me to say that at least one town in Canada, Oshawa by name, owes its existence and prosperity entirely to the circumstance of having the head office of the Western Bank located in its midst.

Y. E. Kaiser, M.D. Oshawa, Aug. 16, 1901. Oshawa, Aug. 16, 1901.

Editor World: Have we not now in Canada a small local bank. In Oshawa is the Western Bank. It is entirely a local institution, and some lessons ought to be learned from its history. Does it supply the needs of the business and farming community in its district to a greater or less extent than would the branch of one of the large banks? All Canada is interested in the question of banking, so interestingly dealt with in The World, and I would suggest an article on the Oshawa concern. If its usefulness is greater than the branch banks it ought to be known, and other local centres might follow Oshawa's example.

Kitchener says:

There are no more than 13,500 Boers now under arms. Altho they are not able longer to undertake extensive operations, their apparently inexhaustible supplies of food enable them to maintain an obstinate resistance without retaining anything or defending the smallest portion of this vast country.

The wearing down process is necessarily slow, rendering the employment of a large number of troops still necessary. Great patience is still required to see the inevitable end of an insensate resistance which, while it can not affect the result, has become unjustifiable in prolonging the war and the sufferings of women and children.
