

Farmers Learn How Others Are Growing At Canadian National

Farm Productions in Grain, Fruit, Live Stock and Poultry as Well as the Show of Machinery, Power and Construction Appliances Touch the Value of Agriculture in the Nation—Some Prize Winners.

The farmers' interest in the great Canadian National is none abated. Thousands from Ontario have flocked to Toronto during the past few days and the education in all branches of the work that comes from competition and display, cannot be estimated.

British Columbia's exhibit has been an attractive one. That a third of a province can do what she has, she gains our appreciation for the expanded chest of her resources. In the knowledge of the other provinces, the visiting farmer has secured the worth of visiting fees.

The fruit growers, the great competitors, the vegetable growers, and agricultural education in all its branches contribute to the effect of the big display of the west wing of the Horticultural Hall.

The interest in the horses will never down, no matter what motor car moves into the display this year is creditable. "I see as good specimens of the Canadian-bred Clydes," said Judge Robert Copeland.

Other noted horse lovers are also Galbraith of Illinois and McLaughlin Bros. of Columbus. Both are noted horsemen. Mr. McLaughlin has returned from the Paris show, and of course can talk Percheron easy. He is one of the firm that has made a million in horse dealing.

Tom Graham has vowed not to long ago that he would sweep prize lists this year by sheer merit of his importations, and he has done it.

Of the other big stables Thomas Mercer has been doing things. So have Hickok and Adams, Dalgety Bros., with an importation of big draughty animals.

A few new faces are out. J. G. Borland of Clearmont, Frank Bayne of Brookline, and W. J. Cowan of Cannington had choice ones in their class.

Hackney horses are well represented. Old Crayke Mitchell, owned by Graham & Renfrew, stands his old honors.

Graham's new importations are grand specimens of the breed. Geogor of Simose; Cox of Brantford; Hodgkinson & Tidale of Beaverton; J. B. Hogate of Weston; Elliott of Kelso; Oak Park of Brantford, and Bennett & Sons of Carleton, were exhibitors.

The Farmstead.

Did you see Gertie Pride? Clydesdales are still in the lead. The Jerseys and shorthorns draw big crowds.

R. H. Ogilvie, secretary of the American Clydesdale Association, is at the fair. Miller Bros., Brougham, are not showing, but their animals are winning.

J. Lockie Wilson feels a fatherly pride in decorations. Where in that press pavilion in the horse ring? Will somebody suggest a method to handle the flies?
