GIANTS DEFEAT REDS, 3 TO 2

New York National Players Almost Clinch Pennant; Pitchers' Duel

New York, Sept. 26.—The Giants, in a pitching duel between Adolfo Luque and John Watson, defeated the Reds in Cincinnati, yesterday, 3 to 2, in a hard-fought game and almost clinched the pennant. The Giants are now four games ahead again, with only six to play, counting the one with St. Louis which has been cancelled. Watson allowed eight hits to the Reds, Luque pitched a perfect game. The Yankees, in a see-saw game with the Tigers, led in the fourth, trailed in the seventh, led again in the eighth and lost in the ninth, 5 to 4. The game was won when a pair of Cobb's pinch hitters, Manush and Woodall, came through with a hit apiece.

While the Braves were beating the Cubs in Chicago 2 to 0, the Red Sox, losing in Boston to the St. Louis Browns, who won 8 to 2. The Pirates, now that the worry of the pennant race has been removed, stepped out and trimmed the Phillies 18 to 6.

Philadelphia took both ends of a double-header from Cleveland, 6 to 3 and 5 to 1. Roy Meeker, a left-handed recruit, twirled the second game for the Mackmen and blanked the Indians until the ninth inning, when two hits produced a run.

The Senators defeated the White Sox, 5 to 2, in a game which was all square at the sixth inning, when the Washington hitters took two in a row and followed with another in the eighth.

The Cardinals defeated the Robins in St. Louis, 4 to 1. The latter took their single counter in the first inning, and were unable to score there, after, though they made ten hits to St. Louis' eight.

LOST YOUNG GIANT FOUND.
Allentown Detective Reads Mother's Appeal and Locates Southern Youth.

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 26.—Missing from his mountain home outside of Dillon, S. C., for three months, Sidney, the giant 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Sanders, was located in this city by Peter J. Trantz, a local detective, after he had read on appeal from the mother in New York papers. The youth weighs 190 pounds, stands 6 feet 7 inches and wears a No. 17 shoe. He was employed at one of the grandstand shows at the Allentown Fair. When told of his mother's appeal to him to write, he said: "I did not think Maw would take one so." Sidney was provided with paper and stamps and after writing a letter at Detective Trantz's direction promised to keep in touch with his mother during his travels. Sidney says he ran away because his father punched him after a dispute they had over money matters. He won a blanket at the fair, which he tucked into a box and sent to his mother.

AUTOS DOOM GAME, SAYS DR. HORNADAY

Declares Their "Hell-Bent" Pursuit Soon Will Exterminate All Wild Life.

That the use of automobiles in slaughter that will exterminate all wild life within a comparatively short period, is the contention of Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological Garden. Denouncing the hunter's use of the automobile, Dr. Hornaday says:

"The automobile is hell for the game." Characterizing it as the exterminator of all wild life and calling on the hunters to "go slow," if they do not wish to kill the sport they love so well, the director of the New York Zoological Garden, in an article which has been written for the Nature Magazine for September, says:

"In the United States alone there are now in use 10,500,000 cars. Of all the family units in our country 48 per cent. own automobiles, and many families have collections of them. No mental effort is called for to imagine the effect of these restless, restless and all-pervading new facilities for travel in annual pursuit of the world's remaining remnants of mammals, birds and fresh water fishes."

"It is my estimate that the automobile has increased the perils of wild life by 5 per cent., and thus far I have found no one who has contended that this figure is above the mark. It seems that the hunter of upland game—grouse, quail, woodcock, snipe, doves, rabbits, squirrels, and deer—can by means of his new gasoline ally hunt over at least four times as much ground in a day as the man behind a horse could exploit."

"On the other hand, the difference to the duck hunter is not so great, and so we think that 50 per cent. of the hunting average. I have seen four ruffed grouse hunters in an automobile cover in one day an area of hunting ground that to me was fairly astounding."

"Just imagine what the automobile will do to the quail of Ohio if protection is ever taken off Bob White in that state, as the sportsmen who are so fond of the quail demand. It would be like the slaughter of chamois in a section of the Swiss Alps after a long period of protection. Very nearly the entire lot of half tame and unsuspecting chamois were destroyed in the first few days of the present season, and in that area the species was almost instantly set back to the original vanishing point."

"Wherever there are roads either good or bad or open plains over which automobiles can travel, there will you find the automobile going 'hell bent' after whatever game is on hand. It is not enough that the game killer should have a bewildering array of assistants and accessories—guns, dogs, traps, automatic and pump shotguns, repeating rifles and limitless fixed ammunition, and gain even the advantage over the frightened bird and the harassed wild animal. It is not enough that the machine gun spray jets of lead should rain from a hose sprinkler. It is not enough that the modern rifle actually kills big game at a quarter of a mile or more. It is not enough that the 'hot' local guide, treacherously reveals the last hiding place of the game that he has seen reared for cannon fodder around his home."

Motored Hunters Ravage World.
"No. All these grossly unfair advantages seem not enough to poets against the automobile. The bedeviled remnants of killable game. To them the speedy and tireless automobile must be added if the hunter does not merely three or four times per season, but 10 or 20 times perhaps."

"Just as the automobile has gone all over the world wherever pneumatic tires can travel, so have they gone, and so they are going each year more and more, in a quest for game. The open plains of Eastern Africa, from Cape Colony to Karoo, are persistently hunted over by automobiles. North of Nairobi the game country has seen much of them."

Director Hornaday then fires a broadside at certain motion picture game-killing expeditions, referring to "The cruel chasing of large game by H. A. Snow in a flyover," which he says is "now notorious on three continents." He continues: "Mr. Snow chased a wart hog to exhaustion, overtook it, ran over it, broke one of its legs, and then ran over it twice more. He ran down and ran over a hyena and killed it, and he ran down several giraffes which are reported to have afterward died of exhaustion. Many persons who have seen the Snow movies have condemned them and in London their display had to be called off because of the many protests that were made against them."

Dr. Hornaday then goes on to say that an American promoter of hunting expeditions in British East Africa has advertised "extra easy hunting by means of his series of 'base camps' and communication between them by automobiles."

But it is in the United States, says Dr. Hornaday, that the hunting automobile is getting in its deadly work. "Show me," he says, "anywhere this side of the summits of the Rocky Mountains and the sawtooth peaks of the Sierra Nevada any territory with game in it that is not combed over by hunters in automobiles. We are told that in Florida rich quail hunters are driven into the more open pine woods in order that they may shoot quail from their automobiles."

"In New England the hunters of grouse, quail and deer now use automobiles almost as universally as guns are used. During the deer hunting season in the New England States, go into the deer country of New York, Vermont and New Hampshire, and you will very quickly begin to meet automobiles with dead deer lashed to their radiators or running boards.

"The automobile is getting in its deadly work on the game of the Kakotas, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Manitoba, Minnesota, Wisconsin and more other States and places than there is space to mention."

"What shall be done about curbing the fearful destructiveness of the automobile? It is a difficult question, and already the deadly car must about double the hunters' daily kill of game."

"In some places it may be possible to prohibit by local laws the use of automobiles in hunting. Such a proceeding could be carried into effect anywhere by men who are not afraid of fear that cutting the deadly claws and muzzling the deadly jaws of the flyover is mostly a practical impossibility."

"The one thing, however, that would count heavily and put an everlasting crimp in the flyover is a 50 per cent. reduction in all bag limits, and in the length of all open seasons, and reducing the automatic and pump shotguns to two shots. But as yet the masses of sportsmen in America have shown no signs of endorsing this program. Can anything make them see, before it is too late?"

New Pitching Mark Is Set By Parnham

Breaks Consecutive Record of Marquard and O'Keefe With 20 Victories.

Baltimore, Sept. 26.—Rube Parnham established a new world's consecutive pitching record of twenty victories here when on Sunday he hurled Baltimore to a double triumph over the Jersey City Skeeters in the final games of the International League season. The doughty Oriole heaver, in winning the second game, surpassed the consecutive victory record of Marquard and O'Keefe, at nineteen victories, while with thirty-three victories he also eclipsed the season's mark of thirty-two held jointly by Oden and Vickers, both Orioles.

The scores of the twin attraction today were 5 to 1 and 13 to 0. Parnham was master of the situation at all times while Musante, in the first game, and Carruthers and Hanson in the second, were hit freely.

The Orioles ended the season with 111 victories and 53 defeats, capturing the International League championship for the fifth consecutive year. Rochester was second with 101 victories and 65 defeats, while Newark finished next to last and Jersey City last.

THE QUESTION.
(Marian Osborne in The Canadian Bookman)

Is life then but a mockery at best, An anguish at the worst Youth ends in age, Love must know loss, death blots out every page. Are we but puppets under the behest And whim of some great Spirit without rest

Or sympathy? Is earth a monstrous cage With wheels unending for our heritage, And false delights the mirage of our quest Our vision is too weak to grasp the whole, The final purpose of each separate life. We only know that good begets more good, Evil breeds evil, and that every soul Answers for its own deeds of peace or strife, Though linked to all by bonds of brotherhood.
