

The Exact Recipe For Your Hair

The very treatment your hair needs is all made up and ready in the Evan Williams group of Henna or Camomile Shampoos. Twenty-five years the favorites for imparting the right hue and sparkle. Concentration of the Dr. Williams' factories on the one thing, accounts for quality at low cost of 50c.

Sheen or Tint

For a Shampoo that goes beyond the ordinary and creates a positive lustre, select the Henna Shampoo, ordinary grade. To revive dull or faded hair, select the Camomile Tonic Shampoo. To bring back Auburn brightness and reflected tones—Evan Williams Graduated Henna Shampoo. To renew the sheen of hair that was light Golden—and without imparting Red tones—take the Henna and Camomile Shampoo. To halt and restore greying hair—enjoy Brown, Mid-Brown and Dark Brown shading. Take Tunisian Henna Shampoo at 60c. Camomile for Fair Hair, 10c. Henna Soap, 50c.

MEN WHO WERE SHOT REACH COURT; THOMAS STEPHEN IS CARRIED IN

Detective Says Simon Acknowledged Firing Shot in Syrian Hall.

Charles Simon was committed for trial by Magistrate Henderson in the police court this morning on a charge of shooting Thomas Stephen and Louis Corey with a revolver and inflicting serious bodily harm.

Both men who had been shot were able to attend the hearing, although Mr. Stephen had to be sent for and carried into the court room. Mr. Corey was able to walk with the assistance of a cane.

Although several witnesses were examined there was nothing brought out that would show any other motive for the shooting other than the fight which started in the Syrian hall.

Doctors Testify.
Dr. Francis P. Fleming told of being called to Brunswick street and on his arrival there seeing Louis Corey, who was then under the care of Dr. James R. McCourt. He saw a wound in Mr. Corey's thigh. He told of also visiting Thomas Stephen in Simon's house. An examination showed a wound in his leg above the knee. He had not attended either patient since.

Dr. James R. McCourt told of going to Mr. Corey's house and first saw the injured man coming in a rear door. His trousers were covered with blood. He found a wound in the right thigh a few inches below the hip joint and as he considered it in a serious location advised his removal to the Infirmary. The witness said the wound was a serious one and grave consequences might have resulted from it. He said he considered his patient was now out of danger and he was fortunate in escaping as well as did. He believed the wound to have been made by a bullet. With reference to Mr. Stephen he told of going to his home and later taking care of him at the Infirmary. He said the bullet had been extracted from his leg by Dr. McCourt and he was present at the time. He identified a bullet produced by Detective Power as the one removed from his patient's leg.

Fred Isaac's Story
Fred Isaac told of being in the Syrian Hall on New Year's night and was in conversation with Louis Corey, Thomas Stephen, Raymond Tobin and others when they were joined by George Corey. He told of seeing Thomas Simon approach and strike George Corey on the head and the latter fell and struck him with a club. Louis Corey then came and fired a shot and saw Charles Simon standing by one of the walls with a revolver in his hand. He said he heard Louis Corey holler and crying. He said he attempted to take the revolver from Simon's hand but was told to get back. In answer to a question put by the defendant he said he saw Louis Corey shove him back.

John Shalala said he went to the Union Station and there found the defendant on a train. He advised him to return with him. He asked Simon why he had shot Corey and the defendant had answered because he had hit him. He advised him to give himself up to the police and accompanied him to Prince Edward street where he was taken in charge by two policemen.

Louis Corey on Stand
Louis Corey then took the stand. He told of being in conversation with the defendant and of being joined by George Corey. He narrated how the trouble started and how he had shot and told the men they had hit him. He said he then took hold of Charles Simon and shoved him back and told the men they had hit him. He saw Charles Simon cross the room and draw a revolver from his overcoat pocket, and immediately went towards him. He said Simon turned and pointed the gun at the centre of his body, and although not a word was spoken, he fired at him. When William Tobias ran to him and asked him if he was hurt he said he cried out "My God I am shot." He saw some of the boys approach Simon and try to take the revolver from him and heard the defendant say to go away or he would shoot them. Ten minutes later Mrs. Simon came in and took her husband away. As he was going out he gave the revolver to Thomas Stephen.

Says He Acknowledged
Detective Power said he accompanied Abraham Joseph and another man and revolver was found on the roof of the building. There were five loaded shells in it and one empty one next the hammer. He told of taking the prisoner into his office and after warning him that anything he might say could be used as evidence against him, the defendant acknowledged firing the shot. Mr. Stephen was then sent for and after being assisted into the court room recounted the start of the trouble and the firing of the shot.

CITY DEPARTMENTS WILL HAVE CREDIT

City Council Will Take Up Matter of Estimates Next Week.

Next week the city commissioners will take up the estimates for the coming year and judging from present indications will probably have to assess for more money this year than last unless the balances in the several departments amount to enough to overcome what increases will have to be made. All of the departments this year will have credit balances, except the lighting which had $5,000 taken off last year in expectation of hydro reducing the cost of this service.

The market will have a credit of about $5,000 in the police and fire departments there is expected to be a credit of between $8,000 and $10,000. The harbor will show a credit of about $10,000 and the water and sewerage credit, it is expected, will be about $5,000. These amounts go into the general revenue account and help to reduce the assessment for this year.

JUDGE REVERSES FORMER VERDICT

New Trial Ordered in Case Regarding Father's Board Bill.

In the Supreme Court Chambers this morning Chief Justice H. A. McKewen presiding, judgment was given for the defendant setting aside a former judgment and ordering a new trial in the case of Kenneth Davis against Harvey Rice, both of Queens county. In this case which was tried before Squire Nickerson in Queens county on November 10, and on which occasion judgment was delivered for the plaintiff, Davis sued Rice for monies, representing reimbursement for board and care of the defendant's father for a considerable time previous to his death. The defendant contended that he had paid Davis this money, when he had sold the house which had belonged to his father to Davis, for a considerable amount less than the property was worth, claiming at the time that the reduction in the value of the property would make up for his late father's board. His Honor this morning ordered costs in favor of the defendant, H. W. Robertson appeared for the defendant and A. N. Carter for the plaintiff.

HOME FOR BURIAL

Funeral of Wm. McLean to be Held in Fredericton Tomorrow.

Mrs. Archie McLean of Elliott Row will leave this evening for Fredericton to attend the funeral of her father-in-law, the late School Inspector William McLean, whose body arrived there today from Vancouver. Mr. McLean died on the 7th, rather suddenly, though his health had not been robust for a considerable period. Alexander McLean accompanied his father's body across the continent. The funeral will be tomorrow.

The passing of Mr. McLean removes from the St. John scene of school work-day life a familiar figure for many years, one who labored faithfully with the teaching staffs in all districts over which he had supervision and previous to that as a fellow-teacher in St. John, notably in the High School when it was known as the Grammar School and was located in Odellville Hall, Union street.

It is with tender memories also that hundreds of the younger men in the city and hereabouts—and those who in other parts who will eventually hear of Mr. McLean's demise—will recall the days of from 15 to 35 years ago under the late inspector's classroom tuition. He was a painstaking, never severe or impatient, and possessed the happy faculty of blending a natural good humor and wit with the routine of study.

During that period in Grammar School history, when the staff included Principal McLean, George R. McDevitt, W. J. S. Myles and George D. Dill, the school cadet movement was the height, and Mr. McLean was chief of the senior classes, ever which he had principalship. Dr. Jack Maclellan, now of Grand Manan, was captain of the corps, and during the summer holidays—for a spell at least—the Grammar School boys went out to canvas at Baywater. It was here the boys learned more than ever to appreciate Mr. McLean's comradeship.

In the realm of citizenship, a school teacher through whose hands many hundreds of boys and youths pass their way to manhood and usefulness may justly be rated worthy of the respect of the community and given a place amongst those whose efforts bear much fruit for the betterment of the land and its people. William Miller McLean was one of these.

As Hiram Sees It

"I see them Labor fellows in England is right there amongst the docks and 'ave sounded mighty queer a hundred years ago," said Mr. Hiram Hornbeam to The Times reporter.

"I suppose that's true," said the reporter.

"Yes, sir," said Hiram—"they're sayin' they want schools an' colleges everywhere in the big towns so the workin' man's kids kin git as much as the Prince o' Wales."

"It would not hurt them any," said the reporter.

"It's just what they need," said Hiram—"for as near it as they kin get. But jist think what the hard-bled old aristocrats would-a said a hundred years ago if anybody heid said common folks orto be givin' any sich schoolin'. Why they'd hev gone into fits. An' now they're gonto hev a Labor government right there amongst the docks and earls. Don't it beat all? Well, good luck to 'em. If they jist show they her good sense nebber they'll make as good a fist of it as anybody. An' if they don't they won't last long. John Bull's a wise old feller—an' he can't be fooled in the long run—no, sir."

Art in Furnishing the Home—A Table to Grace the Living Room

Since a library table is perhaps the most conspicuous article of furnishings in the entire living room, why not have one that is really artistic in design? It will have a great deal to do with the attractiveness of your living room, and, as it is really a lifetime investment, its original cost should not be limited unduly.

Here you will find library and davenport tables that are wonderful examples of the furniture craftsman's skill. Many of them, of course, are in rich walnut and mahogany, along with quartered oak in fumed and golden finishes, and there are sizes to conform to the requirements of any size living room. Prices are very moderate.
