To the Editor of the Telegraph.
Sir.—The letter of "Doctor" G. Cor bett, in to-day's Telegraph, denying the statements, published in Saturday's WATCHMAN, was a surprise to those who know all the facts of this very bad case The WATCHMAN, no doubt, will substantiate its charges. In the meantime, it is right the public should know that-Corbett was sued for his board bill in Bathurst, as stated in the WATCHMAN. That he has been exhibiting bogus notes of hand, professing to be made by John E. O'Brien, of Bathurst, and which O'Brien

These several notices, although the last appears to have no connection with those proceeding, have been occasioned by the facts which justified the publication of a paragraph in last week's Watchana relating to the operations of "Doctor" Corbett. The history of Corbett affords a remarkable commentary on the ease with which quacks and impostors can still warm themselves into the confidence of many of the unsophisticated citizens of St. John. Was Corbett a Doctor? In answering this question we are necessarily called on to state much that is known of a party who signs himself M. D., and who has been quietly and successfully, "under God," practising his profession on Brussels street, in this city. Where Corbett sprung from is not known; he claims to be a Scotchman and to have had "Sutherlandshire" for his home County, while he has the purest Milesian accent and a face that probably never saw Scotland. His first appearance in this country was at Newcastle, where he called himself a doctor and practiced for some time, but THE HALF-CHESTS SUPERIOR CONCOUTEA

When interrogated here he has alleged that he studied medicine in Scotland, and that he graduated at Harself Scotland, and that he graduated at Hars moved themselves to the vicinity of the Centennial grounds, again to the loss of Parker and Fox" where they are probably ranning a hotel; she has lost a home, married an imposter, and generally thrown has diploma to produce? "Yes." "Have you it with you?" "Not on my person." "Have you it in St. John? "No—not in St. John? "No—not in St. John. As all his earthly possess. in St. John." As all his earthly possessions are in St. John, (his trunk and wardrobe being still in Case's Hotel, although he has been keepinghouse for some weeks, it is hard to define the whereabouts of gling," so to speak. Money that was required to pay the firm's bills maturing, was not on hand, and enquiry revealed the state of things which we have but imperfectly described. He went for Corbett and wanted back his $150 odd that had one out of the business for Corbett's here. and wanted back his $150 odd that had gone out of the business for Corbett's benefit. Corbett hadn't the money then but he expected to realise soon on notes of hand which he held,—the notes of hand of John E. O'Brien, Esq., of Bathurst. He showed Mr. Parker two notes,—and he had previously exhibited these and other notes for large sums to others—the two together amounting to nearly $1,000. Mr. Parker was not satisfied in regard to the genipeness of the documents and the genuineness of the documents and asked to be allowed to show one or other the people generally not having confidence in him he abandoned the profession and place. After leaving there he appeared at Privell's Railway Section on Barnaby River as an M. D. and clerk, and the small pox then being there, "the Doctor" commenced the art of vaccination with the white of an egg. The people being afraid of him, he pulled up his stakes and appeared on Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. Gough's section of the I. C. R., and Mr. The information soon reached the keeper. He remained there until Gough's connection with the line ceased, and after this he remained in Bathurst. Having loafed around town waiting for payment of his claim against the Government, he contracted a board bill with one Jacob White and being unable to pay he placed two watches, a revolver, etc., in White's hands as security. We find him next on board a tug boat at Chatham in the caps two watches, a revolver, etc., in White's hands as security. We find him next on board a tug boat at Chatham in the capacity of cook and bottle washer. He next entered the employment of one Cyrus Brown, of Chatham, as head bar keeper, but Cyrus, after a short acquaintance, dismissed him, and strange rumors followed his summary ejection. White, of Bathurst, was then compelled to sue him, his Government claim having been paid, and he issued a garnishee process and attached his money in the hands of Mr. John E. O'Brien, The case was tried at the last April Term of the County Court, and his legal detence was that Mrs. White did not give him butter sauce on his fish. The verdict went against him and Mr. O'Brien, on a judge's order, paid the sumonut of the claim. Mr. O'Brien holds now a receipt in full from Corbett, dated 1st May, 1876, in "payment in fall of debta, dues and demands to date," signed "G. W. Corbett."

He has no notes of John E. O'Brien or any other Bathurst merchant. As to his moral character, many and strange stories are told. His first raid on the I. C. Railway line resulted in the sudden departure of the housekeeper of the Government boardral character, many and strange stories are told. His first raid on the I. C. Railway line resulted in the sudden departure of the housekeeper of the Government boarding House on Section 16, whose wages, it was said, Corbett drew. There has also been a warrant sent from Bathurst to St.

Corbett came to St. John early in May—and we now approach the era of the "Parker and Fox" portion of the story. The money which the Government allowed him had been placed in the hands of John E. O Brien, of Bathurst, and Corbett's numerous creditors hearing of this
