THE PLANETS.

They All With Their Satellites, Exhibit Phases Like the Moon.

We are likely to regard the moon as the only thing in the heavens that exhibits phases such as the quarter, the half and the full. As a matter of fact, all planets and their satellites exhibit separately such phases, and most of them can be easily seen with a small power telescope. Thus Mars and Venus, which are comparatively close to the earth, show through the telescope at times a beautiful crescent, at others a half planet fully as brilliant, considering the distance, as does our satellite.

At times also the planets suffer eclipses, just as the earth, the moon and the sun, and there eclipses are forecast with as great accuracy.

As to just what causes the phases, say of the moon, is easy to comprehend by a homely analogy. If one stands in a corner of a room, places a globe of some description in the next corner and a light in the third corner, the phenomenon of the half moon is seen. The light, representing the sun, shines of course on half the globe representing the moon, but the observer in the corner sees only half of the surface toward him illuminated. If now the light be placed behind the observer

AMUSEMENTS

"HAMLET" AT THE NICKEL TWO-DAY.

"Hamlet," Shakespeare's tragic story of Denmark's melancholy prince, will receive a production of luxe in the Nickel Theatre commencing this afternoon and continuing until Saturday night. A short time ago St. John people were privileged to see the first motion picture extant in the Italian version of "Nero" or "The Burning of Rome," and they are now to be favored with this gorgeous Shakespearean revival. Some of the finest European players take part in this film-story, which is staged with singular elaboration. As an educational feature and a dramatic treat "Hamlet" will be exceptional. The rest of the Nickel's bill will contain Holmes and Buchanan in their farewell change of programme and the following string of miscellaneous pictures: "Conquering the Jungfrau of the Swiss Alps," which takes the watcher mountain climbing to a height of 15,679 feet. There will be two bright and original comedies and one orchestral programme. On Monday next the Nickel will introduce Miss Ray Hope of New York in dramatic film sketches, a distinct improvement on the lecturing idea. There will be a new singer as well. The Saturday matinee will be a bumper day for the school children.

BAND AT THE VICTORIA RINK TONIGHT.

A large crowd is expected at the Victoria rink tonight. The band has prepared a splendid programme to offset the disappointment of Tuesday evening when the ice was not fit to use. The ice is in perfect condition for this evening and there will be no disappointments.

DON'T MISS FRIDAY'S CARNIVAL.

The manager of the outfitting company at the Nickel reports a heavy run on costumes for the carnival Friday evening. The fact that but two carnivals are given during the season is quite remarkable indeed, and this being undoubtedly the last one, and only opportunity to enjoy an evening of this character, there is no doubt whatever as to the interest that will be taken. It costs but little to secure an outfit which will provide much interest and merriment, and many of these are in course of preparation in hundreds of homes beside those being supplied by the Canadian Outfitting Co., St. John.

HAVE YOU HEARD SILVER AND SANDS AT THE ORPHEUM?

Those who have yet to hear Silver and Sands, the Orpheum act which is making such a hit this week, have a very great pleasure in store. Their clever singing, dancing and Lauder impersonations combine to provide the most entertaining act in the opinion of many Orpheum patrons that has been seen in this city for a very long time. Not only has the act been a success this week, but the splendid pictures which are providing the greatest interest and favorable comment. The pictures at the Orpheum, heretofore, will include the products of such well known firms as Biograph, Selig, Essanay, Kalem, Edison, Lask, and Italia. With such a good service and good vaudeville acts the Orpheum deserves its full share of the amusement business.

THE GEM.

One of the most beautiful and gorgeous productions ever shown is being shown in the Gem's programme. Shakespeare's comedy, "Twelfth Night," is a most elaborate subject, the scenery of which surpasses anything in stage craft ever gotten together. This production is the same which captured New York, playing for over three months in the New Theatre, New York, the latest playhouse of the century. The cast is made up of stars. The drama and romance, which is depicted in this production stamps the actors to the first class.

Too much cannot be said of the scenery—or the costumes. The story is told in condensed form and is easily understood. This subject should claim the attention of every lover of Shakespeare and dramatic art. "The Last Look," a drama of the detective series. The Bertillon system is followed in tracing the criminal and is a story in itself, interesting and instructive, as this theory is now in use with the great detectives of the world. "An Aerial Acrobat," a vaudeville act by the great female trapeze artist in the world. It is something out of the ordinary and is full of excitement. Other subjects of interest are shown, making up a programme of unusual merit. Matinees are given daily to large audiences.

The orchestra which is playing the music is showing at the afternoon performances are chosen to suit the ladies and children. On Saturday afternoon a souvenir matinee will be given for the children. Mr. Percy Harney will be heard in a new song tonight and Master Holland will play some choice violin selections.

FINOU AUDIENCES DELIGHTED.

At the Bijou last night good houses again witnessed the excellent programme provided by Blayth and Malvey. The new pictures were most favorably received and the feature picture, "The Beautiful Dolores," a delightful Spanish love story, with a lecture by Mr. Malvey, easily takes first rank among all pictures recently shown to St. John audiences. The brilliant comedy picture, "The Aeronaut," keeps the ground, also scored a wonderful success. These and other vaudeville acts, which are shown last night will be repeated.
