January 22nd. 1917.

Dear Father Mine,

Will you write and let us know how things are going at the school. I gave authority some time ago for orders to be taken with regard to the two engines, and I should be glad to know whether the results have been satisfactory.

There has been some delay in getting the broad mixer, but I have now received the price for a broad mixing machine of a half-barrel capacity. Before ordering this, however, I have asked the Agent to let me know whether the smaller engine now in the school will be suitable for running this mixer or whether an additional engine will be necessary. Do you think a broad mixer of this capacity will be suitable?

Yours very truly,
