

Loyalty.

Our Empire is in danger
Through an enterprising stranger,
Who wants to claim our peaceful land
And of our ocean take command.

But we will show them how to fight
When e're their vessels come in sight,
We'll greet them with a right good cheer
That will scatter them both far and near.

We're ready both to stand or fall
When e're we hear the bugle call,
We'll thrash with steel and cannon, boys,
They who Britain's peace destroys.

Once and for all, we'll let them see
A just and loyal nation, we.
Those who fight will fight in vain
Who seek old Britain's shores to gain.

We'll show them that the boys in blue
Are to their country brave and true;
The bull-dog breed is in them still,
They'll fight for home with right good will.
