Amsterdam, Aug. 27.- German war experts are hopelessly at odds but a glance at the map shows each successive locality mentioned as the scene of fighting lies a few miles further eastward. This, says The Hamburg Nachrichten's military expert, darkly, is a bad sign for the enemy because it shows that his attempts to pierce the German front have failed and that he seeks to substitute width for depth." He further argues "that the earlier German thrust towards Amiens forestalled the enemy and now even if the Germans are losing ground, it is no absolute gain for the enemy, but merely the recovery of earlier losses."

These sophistries are not wholly shared by The Kreuse Zeitung's critic, who frankly admits that it is the German scheme which has gone wrong inasmuch as "the enemy has successfully evaded battle on both sides of Rheims and therefore the German plan to tie up and split the enemy reserves has failed." He say's incidentally that American aid "has happened to flow somewhat more freely than anticipated and Marshal Foch is thereby able to deliver his blow.'

It is no longer a fight for lines, but for deep zones, this critic says, and the task of the German army is to destroy the enemy's forces within these zones. He insists the strategic success will be denied Marshal Foch because the preliminary conditions for success "are lacking" but the battle, he thinks, will continue for a

The German Tages Zeitung's writer follows another line of thought and believes that "the next few days must show that Marshal Foch needs breathing space as strategically he has already lost the battle and the enemy's losses are enormous. The Rhenische Westfalian Gagette's correspondent, Baron von Der Osten, fills a column with "justifiable hope" that the German army will be unbeatable, although he is not very comfortable about it, for heavily reliable points.

Another similarly valuable point is Montauban, northwest of Mametz, which fell yesterday after the Germans had been given strict orders to hold at all costs. The strict orders to hold a strict orders to hold a strict orders to hold a strict order to hold a strict orders to hold a strict order to hol hold at all costs. Fighting in Bapaume Bapaume, having been almost surrounded, has been entered by British patrols, and they have been fighting in the streets. The town therefore is a sort of no man's land for the moment, but its complete capture seems only a matter of hours.

The Germans are exhibiting still greater anxiety to get away from the advancing British, and even the morale of the enemy machine gunners seems to be diminishing, as they are not holding to their posts with as much determination as early in Various sections of the front same fresh attacks launched to-day. North Arson Charge of the Scarpe, where the operations taken in conjunction with those south of the Scarpe, where the operation of the river are gradually releasing the pressure on Arras, the outskirts of Plouvain, were reached, and the line then ran at an angle slightly west and due north from this point with the British still going rapidly and the enemy resistance decreasing South of the Scarpe the British reached Pelves, but the situatio there is uncertain. Almost directly south of it, however, the Bois-du-Sart and surrounding ground have been captured and thus Pelves cannot possibly hold out for long.
