SOME CURIOUS SPOONS!

to Which They Were Put by Peo ple a Few Centuries Ago. We are familiar nowadays with spoons of many shapes intended for every variety of purpose, but some old fashloned styles are now merely curiosities. There is the old fashioned narrow spoon, for instance, which was used for extracting marrow from bones. It was made double, one end being used for small bones and the other for those of larger bore. Another example is the mulberry spoon. This has a perforated bowl and a spiked and pointed handle, says the London Globe. The implements were made for use in a day when mulber-ries were much more commonly eaten than they are at the present time. With the perforated bowl a little sugar was sprinkled on the berry, which was then conveyed to the mouth on the spiked end of the handle.

making of a variety of new kinds of spoons, including the necessary tea-spoon itself, some of which still re-main in use, while others have disap-peared. At South Kensington may be seen, for example, a curious collection of the little scoops so well known to our great-grandmothers as caddy Tea caddies of the old fash ioned kind have long been superseded, and when the caddy with its two lid-ded and metal lined end compartments and the sugar bowl in the cavity be tween went out of use the caddy spoon or scoop disappeared also.

Another obsolete curiosity is the snuff spoon, which in the days when nearly everybody took snuff and took it everywhere was used for conveying the scented powder from the box to the hand or in some cases direct to the nose. Candle spoons and pap spoons also are out of date. A Llangollen gentleman a few months ago wrote in gentleman a few months ago wrote in a Shropshire paper that he had in his possession a silver pap spoon which had been originally given by the Marquis of Exeter to a member of the Hoggins family of Bolas. The possessor of this spoon remarked that it had been given to him by his father with the wish that it should be handed over to the first married in each succeeding generation, for as such it had come to him through the intermarriage

A curious but decidedly unpleasant form of ornament gave its name to the "death's head" special, which was made for commemorative purposes, a very unattractive kind of "memento mori."

A RUIAL NURSERY.

Green and White Are the Colors Used

For Decoration.

The suit of rooms occupied by the heir of the Spanish throne is situated directly above the queen's bedroom and communicates with her apartments by a private staircase.

It is on the sunny side of the palace, and it consists of a day and a night nursery, a dining room, bathroom, a rmitory for the attendants and a workroom. Green and white are the colors of the day nursery. On the walls is a continuous series of animal pictures. Among the peculiarities of this room, which is to be the royal playroom, is the fact that there is not a sharp cor-ner in it. Every angle is rounded so that the stumbling of the little feet may not result in cuts and bruises.

Another feature is that the room it self from floor to ceiling and every ar-ticle in it except the delicately rose tinted carpet of English manufacture is washable. The windows are pro-tected without with hammered iron gratings of old fashioned design.

The night nursery is adorned with three frescoes, "Morning," "Midday" and "Night." The first shows a baby awakening in a cradle flooded with sunshine, the second a little child eat-ing and the third a little boy saying his evening prayers, kneeling by his The furniture is of mahogany, lac-and curtains removed. The court says she was afraid of the crown falling and crushing the infant. Most likely it was her modern appreciation of free circulation of air about the sleeping child that dictated the change.

All the rooms, though beautiful, are simple. They are planned and adorned in the child spirit. Queen Victoria is something of a fresh air fiend. She inherits it from her grandmother and namesake.

When dark velvet hat facings by Dame Fashion's stern decree went out of favor many women loudly bewailed the mandate, knowing well that their milliners were abandoning temporarily one of the most becoming modes ever invented for feminine adornment. Fortunately velvet has again been assigned a leading role among fashions for autumn hats, and none is more joyful-

In the larger shapes the facings are usually put on smoothly as it is not advisable to add to their bulk, and again the wired brims may more readily be bent into angles most becoming to the individual wearer and to suit the hair, which is dressed more oosely about the face and neck than was the case a few months ago. The folds of velvet trimming for the shirred hats are also wired at both edges, a treatment which makes the work of tively simple, even for an amateur, who has only to remember that the trimming must be kept fluffy and not Laughed Away the Danger.

An old traveler tells of an experience of his in midocean. The day was foggy, and most of the passengers were below listening to two evangelists who were holding a particularly fervid gospel meeting in the saloon. Suddenly and without the slightest warning there was a terrific crash and the engines stopped. Every one rushed on deck. The steamer had run into an ice-done, and everybody was ready to fly into a panic. The boats were lowered, and then for the first time the two evangelists, who had been forgotten in the saloon, appeared on deck. They wore their overcoats and their hats, and they carried rugs and handbags. They elbowed their way rudely to the rail, with the evident intent of secur-ing for themselves first places in the boat. It was just at a time when a breath would have sent the passengers panic stricken into the boats. The sight of the two evangelists was about to undo the work of cool headed officers when a pert little cockney stepped up to the gentlemen with the rugs and handbags.

"Beg pardon," said he, tipping his cap, "'ave a cab, sir?" And in the general laugh the danger of panie was averted. AND POSITION

A dealer in real estate tells this story: A middle aged widow came to his office to try to make arrangements for the purchase of a house and lot, "We can make a small payment down," she said, "and would sign a mortgage run-ning for a period of five years to secure the payment of the rest of the money. My daughters have good positions as bookkeepers in a large meri-cantile establishment and can save enough out of their salaries to meet the payments as they become due."
