

Daily Mercury.

SATURDAY EVENING, JULY 3, 1880
Colonial Representation in the Imperial Parliament.

The members of the National Club in Toronto had a dinner on Dominion Day. In reply to the toast of "The Dominion of Canada" Hon. Mr. Mackenzie made an excellent speech. He was followed by Hon. Mr. Blake, who thus spoke on the question of Colonial Representation in the Imperial Parliament: "He never really believed that the Act passed thirteen years ago was a final settlement for Canada, because without our full share in the prosperity of the great Empire of which we form a part we can hardly be said to be truly connected. He believed that four millions of British subjects residing in Canada should have a voice in the Council of the nation of which they form a part. The speaker then characterized the clauses of the Washington Treaty as common sense prevailing over the sword, and a great step in the march of progress, and one which will be followed by other nations, to the great benefit of mankind. We may not believe that all the wars in which England was engaged were just, but we have a just pride in all her glories. He considered that it was just and natural that Canadians should aspire to the proud position of being a part of the Empire, and he hoped that England may see her way to this happy consummation ere it be too late. His advice was to hold fast by those constitutional principles which have been referred to. He was a "home ruler" in every sense of the word, and insisted that it would be impossible to discharge the duties at Ottawa which could be fittingly performed at Toronto. The hon. gentleman concluded a brilliant address by calling on all to live like brothers in this fair country, thereby making our noble Canada a haven of rest and plenty for the down-trodden and oppressed of every nation in the world."

Government Advertising Patronage.

We have received a circular from the Inland Revenue Department about advertising, which has evidently gone astray. It is addressed to the MESSRS. but we think the Post Office authorities had better try the Mercury published in Chatham, N. B. Having accidentally come into our hands we may as well give its contents. The Mercury referred to is included in the list of newspapers that are favoured with Government patronage, but a gentle hint is given that it must not copy all the Government advertisements that appear unless under special authority. This means, of course, that some semblance of instructions must be obtained for inserting advertisements of only local interest, such as the one asking for tenders for building locomotives for the Pacific Railway, which were inserted in the Tory papers all over the Dominion, including the little sheet published on Manitoulin Island. These Government advertisements are a very convenient mode of bestowing patronage on the needy and impetuous newspapers which support Sir John, and thousands of dollars are monthly thrown away as recompense to those subservient sheets. In fact the Government paper in Manitoba—the Times—is kept alive by such paper, and were it not for this constant drain on the public money that paper could not be kept alive for a week. The whole course of the Government in this matter is of a most scandalous character, and deserves not only exposure but condemnation. It is in marked contrast to the course pursued by the Mackenzie Government, which zealously guarded the public interest in this matter, and only inserted advertisements in the papers which were considered to be valuable in respect of the special work wanted. The present Government, however, does the whole sale, and thereby secures the services of a subservient and shackled press, but at an annual cost of many thousand dollars to the country.

Four elections for the House of Commons are now pending, viz: North Ontario, West Toronto, Selkirk and Russell. Two of these seats have been held by Liberals and two by Conservatives since the general elections. The Government evidently experience difficulty in obtaining candidates in North Ontario and West Toronto, because up to this time the writ has not been issued in either case. There is every reason to believe that recognizing the fact that the return of Mr. Wheeler in North Ontario is a foregone conclusion, they have been through their agents negotiating with several Irish Catholic Conservatives, with a view to selecting one as a candidate, the object being, it is reported, to use such a bogus nomination as a stalking-horse in West Toronto. So far, each Irish Catholic approached has declined the sacrifice.

In one of Mr. Gladstone's speeches, the English leader contended that nobody had a right to press a voter to declare how he was going to vote, and that it would be a good thing if a law were passed making it an offence to annoy and worry voters who do not wish to declare their intention into declaring it against their will. It will be a right step when canvassing is abolished, for to the man who is canvassed it is an intolerable nuisance.

CONTRACTORS comment on the retirement of Mr. Page, Government engineer, to take a contract, in no pleasant terms, saying that civil servants should not have the right to tender for such work, as they are supposed to take advantage of their position.

It is stated that Mr. Nicholas Flood Davis has been appointed Secretary of the new Pacific Railway Commission.

The statement is now made that the Hon. Wm. Macdougall is to succeed Mr. Winkless as chief law clerk.

FROM TORONTO comes the report that Mr. Christopher Robinson has finally declined the nomination for West Toronto, although accompanied with the offer of the portfolio of Minister of Justice. Mr. Robinson has a large and lucrative practice, and besides he is no doubt very doubtful as to his success in the Division. The Robinson influence is wanting in that Division, and the Government's is still less.

WINNIPEG papers inform us that the Islanders are dissatisfied with their condition on the shores of Lake Winnipeg and already three quarters of the original number have passed over to the United States. The departure is attributed to the efforts of a clergyman of their own faith in Dakota. These Islanders obtained a considerable sum of money, advanced by the Dominion Government to provide themselves with seed, stock, implements, etc., which was to have been repaid. The loan has not been repaid, while the people who obtained it are taking along with them into Dakota the property and cattle purchased by the Government. This is not honorable dealing on the part of the Islanders, but their removal will be no great loss to the country. Though an estimable people in many respects they are poor farmers, and almost totally lacking in enterprise.

Presentation at Erin.

On the eve of the departure of Rev. D. Rogers to another field of labor, a number of the members of the church and representatives of other churches, met in the Methodist Church on Monday evening, the 28th inst., to convey to Mr. and Mrs. Rogers their feelings of respect and affection for them, and to say farewell. After spending an hour in pleasant conversation, eating and drinking, singing, etc., Mr. Wm. Tyler read the following address:—

To the Rev. David Rogers, minister of the Methodist Church of Canada, Erin, Ontario.

Rev. and Dear Sir—I am deeply indebted to you for the many kind words and hearty good wishes on the occasion of your departure from this to a new field of labor.

Your journey with us has been of short duration, only one year, hardly time enough for us to know of a church to become fully acquainted with their minister, but, sir, when we think of the many kind words and hearty good wishes on the occasion of your departure from this to a new field of labor, we are reminded of the words of the apostle, "Ye have been as fathers to the fatherless, and as mothers to the widows." We have been very much indebted to you for the many kind words and hearty good wishes on the occasion of your departure from this to a new field of labor.

We have always found you to be ready to work for the Lord under all circumstances. When the temperance revival had burst upon us, you were found in the front ranks, steadily advocating the principles of total abstinence. We will long remember with gratitude the assistance rendered by you in endeavoring to advance the interests of the Club every time your help was needed. And how I would have loved to have the valuable services rendered by your excellent pen, and the choice of the fine Boston Temperance Club. For over six months she had devoted much of her time to that cause, and as a week with her band of singers, poured out every strain of music made us feel that we were in the presence of a great power. Also, sir, in every department of the church she was not wanting in doing her part. In order to advance the cause of the Sabbath School, and as choir leader in the church choir, her faithful attendance at the prayer meeting and class meeting, all these things together with her natural ability blended with her Christian grace, have made her highly esteemed and beloved, and she stands to-night as one to whom we do not wish to say "farewell."

I present you, sir, with this purse on behalf of your friends as a token of true regard for you and your estimable wife, for the services rendered to the church and community the past year. Receive it not on account of what it contains, but rather on account of the respect and esteem in which you and Mrs. Rogers are held by your numerous friends on the Sabbath, and as we this evening give you the parting hand, and say to you and your companion farewell, not knowing that we shall ever see your faces again on earth, we wish to assure you that you carry with you the best wishes of your friends on this mission that you may have a very prosperous time in your new field of labor, and that you may all through life enjoy the pleasing assurance that "The Lord of Hosts is with you and the God of Jacob is your refuge."

MAITLAND, ONT., Feb. 25, 1880.

I have used Perry Davis' PAIN-KILLER for the last 20 years. I carried it with me all through the American War. I believe I would have been dead long ago, if it had not been for your PAIN-KILLER. I think it is the best remedy in the world for which it is recommended. Yours very truly,

W. N. LAFORCE.

A Romantic Career.

A Rich Canadian Colored Girl Love.

Was sold by her husband into slavery—her sad death.

There are many people in this district who remember old Joseph Mink, a colored man who, before Upper Canada could boast of a railway, owned and managed a line of stages running from Toronto throughout the country. He once kept a hotel and a warehouse, the post office now stands and afterwards removed his stables to Queen street, opposite Bay street, Toronto. From his business he amassed a large fortune, and was looked upon as the wealthiest colored man in America. He had a brother George, at Kingston, who was also engaged in the stage business, and who was at one time an aspirant for aldermanic honors. Both were superior representatives of their class socially, and in point of wealth, Joseph being reputed to be a millionaire. Those who remember him, however, and those who attended the same school with his daughter, estimate his wealth as variously reaching from $50,000 to a million of dollars. At all events, he and his daughter at the best of schools, and in addition to other property, owned a fine residence, where he lived at Baymond Hill. In 1858 Mink was 32 years of age, a quadrum, possessed of fine scholastic attainments, and very pretty in feature and form. During the early portion of that year it was very generally known that Mink's fortune was open for division to the first white man of respectability who would wed his daughter. In fact the old man publicly stated that at the consummation of a marriage he would give the sum of $30,000 to the venturesome bridegroom. Even in those days, and in free, liberal Canada, miscegenation was scarcely sanctioned in legal and social circles. However, a Yorkshire cabman, named James Andrews, who had become acquainted with Mink, proposed for his daughter's hand, and was accepted. Married her in excellent style and paid over (some say the full amount stated, others the sum of $1,000), and became domiciled at the elegant family mansion on Richmond hill. At the time the singular circumstances of the marriage formed the theme of considerable comment in the current public prints. Less than a year later, however, the affairs of Andrews and his wife glided into a series of circumstances forming one of the most stupendous sensations of the day. He evidently tired of his quadrum bride, and either squandered his money and employed her marketable value in the slave States to replenish her depleted purse, or was practical enough to effectually rid himself of her and pay the compensation of the experiment at the same time. A few months after their marriage he proposed a trip to the States, the four extending south of Mason and Dixon line, and actually sold his trusting and beautiful wife to a Virginia planter for the sum of $1,500. From that day until the present time nothing more has been heard of Andrews. The intelligence of the perdition of his son-in-law soon reached the ears of Mink. Through Sir Henry Bulwer, brother of the eminent English novelist, and at that time British consul at Norfolk, Mink redeemed his child and took her home again. Her experience had been a sad one, however, and she became restless, away to Elmira, N. Y., led a life of recklessness, and finally drifted into life among the unfortunate in the great cities. The Grand Trunk Railway broke up his father's stage line business and he lost the greater portion of his fortune. Minnie finally went to Chicago, and took up her abode on School street, where she took in washing, and eked out a miserable living in poverty, intemperance and ill health. On the 18th of June, says the Chicago Telegraph, the police authorities of that city were informed that an old negro woman had been found at No. 64 School street. The woman had been seized with diphtheria, and had died after a short illness. The remains were buried in the city's pauper's grave. The name of Nellie Jones to the doctor who attended her. A reporter for the Telegraph worked up the case, and by some means not mentioned discovered that the dead negro woman was Minnie Mink, the colored heiress who was sold into slavery.

A Great Law Suit Ended.

The Galt Reporter says:—In our last issue we gave the particulars as far as received of the heavy chancery suit at Toronto, in which Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch, of this town, were defendants. The case was, we are happy to say, decided in favor of our townsmen on the evidence of the plaintiffs only, the defendants' witnesses not having been called. The following is a resume of the case:—There has been a Consolidated Purifier Company, Toronto, have been trying the same game here by intimidating millers and manufacturers from making any use of any except by license from them. They tried to coerce Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch, Galt, to come to time, which they resisted, and ended in their being brought into the Chancery Court. While the case was in progress the plaintiffs wished the case settled in such a way as the public would believe that their case was good, and could try and intimidate other millers into paying them royalty, as they have done in the United States, but Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch would not consent to this dishonorable mode, and fought it to the bitter end. The Chancellor decided that the case should be dismissed, with costs against the plaintiffs. It appears that there were two prior patents, viz:—That of E. N. Lacroix and Sharnan Parkyn, late of Ailsa Craig.

A serious accident happened at Ballinacraig, on Tuesday, the 29th ult. As a boy named J. Dwyne was galloping a horse belonging to Adam Conry the Aston, the horse came in contact with a cow which was standing across the highway on the 7th line. The cow and horse were both thrown and the horse killed. The cow's wrists were both put out of joint, and were afterwards set by Dr. Freeman, of Georgetown. The boy is progressing favorably considering the circumstances. The cow is not expected to survive.

A great many of the people assembled on Tuesday, the 29th ult. at Ballinacraig, to witness the horse races, take part in dancing, ball practice, foot races, etc. There would not be less than from 500 to 600 persons present. The first horse race was won by a horse belonging to Alexander McDonald of the town line, Ennesing, and rode by a very smart and intelligent boy, son to Mr. Malcolm MacPherson, the owner. The second was won by a horse belonging to David Hill, hotel keeper, Ballinacraig, and that well known stallion "Boston," belonging to Duncan Hyndman. The latter won the race and the sum awarded was likewise $8.
